"This intelligence-testing business reminds me of the way they used to weigh hogs in Texas. They would get a long plank, put it over a cross-bar, and somehow tie the hog on one end of the plank. They'd search all around 'til they found a stone that would balance the weight of the hog and they'd put that on the other end of the plank. Then they'd guess the weight of the stone." —John Dewey

Wildlife Week

"Ecology: A Wild Idea" is the theme for national wildlife week which is being observed in the United States this week. Five years ago the word ecology would have been completely foreign to most people in the country; today it is almost a household word.

It is time that Americans became aware of their environment and what is happening to it. In fact, it is well past time. Much of the unnecessary damage which has been done by man to the earth on which he lives is irreparable. Entire species of wildlife have been caused to disappear forever by the thoughtlessness of man.

Perhaps it seems strange to attempt to tie the survival of wildlife into the world of modern man. Man has no need or real use for robins or chickadees or hawks or foxes or wolves or many other types of wildlife. Aside from occasional use for food, there is no real need for ducks, grouse, deer, moose, elk or other game. And so what if the passenger pigeon and dodo bird are extinct; who misses 'em?

Who really cares about wildlife?

Everybody should care. A nation that isn't fit for wildlife will not long be fit for humans—although humans can exist in a great deal more filth and squalor than most forms of wildlife. Disappearing wildlife should be heeded as a warning sign, a red signal flag that danger to all is imminent and that extreme caution is necessary. Life itself—human life—is at stake as well as wildlife.

Unfortunately, however, everybody doesn't care about wildlife. Those who care most have a direct interest because they use wildlife for personal pleasure. These people include the bird-watchers and nature lovers who like to observe wildlife; the hunters who harvest the surplus of game birds and animals; and the men and women whose job it is to produce and conserve wildlife through state and federal agencies created for those purposes.

Consider, if you will, these three interested groups. The bird-watcher and nature lover need invest nothing in his or her hobby interest. The professional who promotes and safeguards wildlife is paid for his or her services. Only the hunter foots the bill for preservation, promotion and propagation of wildlife of nearly all forms.

In seeking to perpetuate a sport he enjoys and to preserve the species he hunts, the hunter-sportsman voluntarily provides millions of dollars through various organizations in addition to the mandatory license fees which he willingly pays. He supports habitat programs which give living space to many forms of wildlife besides game birds and animals. He encourages wetlands preservation to protect our most valuable natural resource, our water. He cooperates with professionals in the wildlife field because he is concerned about wildlife. He CARES.

Everybody should care about wildlife—at least a little. It's a wild idea.

Disturbing Letter

A recent publicity folder sent to our office contained a copy of a letter supposedly written by a girl to her mother. It is from a book by Rev. Earnest Larsen, billed as a redemptorist priest. . . .with an approach to life that appeals to the young in heart regardless of age."

We don't know if the letter is actual or if it was written by Rev. Larsen for his book. In either case, its tone is a little disturbing to us. Here is the letter as it appeared:

Dear Mom:

I have decided that you and not I are the casualty in the "Battle of the Bedroom". Yes, my bedroom is a mess. Yes, it's true you don't ask me to do much. But will the war in Vietnam end because I make my bed? Will all the hunger in the world end because I hang up my clothes? With all the wonderful and terrible things happening in the world today, what does the condition of one bedroom matter?

Yes, I know that before the world can be put in order, each person must put his own little world in order. But dust doesn't bother my world. To put my world in order I need love, not Ajax cleaner. So, Mom, I'll make you a deal. You use a little love and I'll use a little Ajax."

Kathy

We think that if we were the "Mom" in that letter, our response would be something like this:

Dear Kathy:

I'm surprised that with your concentration on love that you failed to see it all around you. Is your little world of dust and clutter too small to allow an occasional look outside at what is going on around you?

No, the war in Vietnam won't end because you make your bed—but neither have I known a rumpled bedspread and crumpled pillow in a small, dusty bedroom to be a solution for world peace. Will an unmade bed end the war? No, all the hunger in the world won't end because you hang up your clothes—but that simple act will reflect some degree of thankfulness on your part that you have never had to really know poverty and deprivation.

The condition of one bedroom matters only in that it should be a reflection of yourself because it is yours, and that as you form your own life style you do not accept less than you could reasonably expect of yourself.

Dust doesn't bother your world? Would you be satisfied to wear soiled clothes, eat unwashed vegetables from dirty dishes? How far does acceptance of uncleanliness go in your little world?

Use a little love? Kathy, Kathy, Kathy. There is no greater love than a mother has for her child. Some day, God willing, you will experience that love yourself. . . .and you will wonder why your child does not recognize it for what it is, just as my mother wondered and I wonder today. You don't need a little love, you need a lot of it. But love is not always permissive and gay and free. Love is responsibility and concern and discipline as well. Some day you will understand.

Now, about that deal. . . .

Freedom To Advertise

Following editorial is from the Paynesville Press:

By special invitation, my wife and I were guests of Northern States Power Company for a banquet in St. Cloud last week. Among other things, we were treated to an informative talk by Bjorn Bjornson, vice president of public relations and advertising for NSP.

Bjornson is not new to newspapering, and his talk on the problems NSP faced in the last year were termed in newspaper-lingo all the publishers present could understand.

NSP has been critized from many angles for different reasons, but the recent request of some metropolitan ecology groups for NSP to stop all advertising was the central topic of Bjornson's talk.

The ecology groups maintain that advertising will increase electrical use which will result in new generating plants and consequently more pollution. NSP is saying their advertising is not aimed at increasing power output, but at informing consumers on how to use electricity efficiently, what nuclear plants really are, and generally to create good will for their company.

The underlying issue is, of course, freedom of the press, which Bjornson points out is not limited to the press. Freedom of the press, he said, is for everyone, including NSP.

It is frightening when our government can make a law prohibiting the advertising of cigarettes in a particular medium (TV) while simultaneously subsidizing tobacco growers. Besides its blunt hyprocrisy, this action is a dangerous precedent for freedom of the press.

If the government can cut off television cigarette advertising so easily, it can prohibit the advertising of any product equally as swift.

This might mean refusing advertising for power companies or even clothing firms.

The concerns of ecology groups about pollution are real ones, and cannot be passed off or ignored. We must all face these facts now. But, by atttempting to deny a power company of advertising is a measure that would be sure to backfire.

Since nuclear generating plants must, by necessity, become the power source of the future, a good informative advertising campaign now will do much to eliminate fears and misconceptions in the future.

Borrowed Nonsense

A Scotsman was giving directions to a friend, pinpointing his home. "And when you come to my house for dinner, you press the button with your elbow, you go inside and see my name on the mail post and you press that button with your elbow. When you reach my door, you press that button with your elbow, and . . ." "Fer the luvva Mike," gasped the friend, "what's all this about pressing buttons with my elbow?" "Heavens, mon," said Scotty, "ye're not thinkin' of coming empty handed, are ye?"

Korean Self-Help

Community Development Foundation (CDF), an international voluntary agency, assists Koreans in initiating and carrying out community development projects such as the chicken raising venture pictured above.

The Community Development Foundation (CDF), and its cooperating agency, Save the Children Federation (SCF), headquartered in Norwalk, Connecticut, reported today that during its fiscal year over 1,188 self-help projects were initiated and carried out in urban and rural areas of the Republic of Korea.

Of the 1,188 self-help projects carried out there were 103 community development projects and 1,085 family self-help projects.

Some of the self-help projects carried out during the 1970-71 fiscal year included cow, pig, rabbit, goat and chicken raising. Other self-help projects included land clearing, roof improvement, waterway construction, land reclamation, land purchasing as well as agricultural tool purchasing.

Training development has been emphasized by the CDF/SCF Korea Field office in its entire 20 years. Such training has included field work, case-work services and skills, and family counselling. During the past fiscal year some 17 seminars were held, training more than 225 people.

Included in the CDF Korean program is a demonstrated effort at national government and local levels in the capabilities of computer reporting and how the computer as a tool can facilitate the work of both accounting reporting and program development.

Community Development Foundation assists communities in this country and overseas to initiate and carry out projects which meet local needs and utilize local resources and local volunteer labor.

Incorporated in 1959, the Foundation was granted consultative status to the United Nations in 1966, by the U.N. Economic and Social Council. The Foundation is a member of the American Council of Voluntary Agencies for Foreign Service, the International Council of Voluntary Agencies, and is registered with the U.S. State Department Advisory Committee on Voluntary Foreign Aid.

Twenty six Senior Citizens were present at the meeting on Thursday, March 16. Visitors were Dennis Brekke of Warren, Melfrey Koland and Clara Nelson of Karlstad, Irene Carlson, Dick Weiler, James L. Larson, Mrs. Merlyn Nelson and David, and two ladies from Kennedy. The men helped by ripping a bag of Arctic scrap. Some of the ladies fluffed up material for stuffig pillows, and some worked on the blue blocks finishing the featherstitching. They sewed around the quilts which had been tied, so now there are three more completed. Quilts will be made to order. Jim and Dennis gave $1.00 gifts to the Center and Ione gave $2.00. Because Holy Thursday comes on March 30th, there will be no meeting at the Center that week. We will be playing games one week early on March 23. Lots of prize packages have been coming to the Center recently. Mildred Nelson served the lunch.

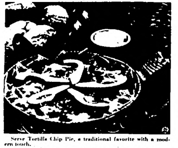
Tortilla Chip Pie . . . Ole!



Serve Tortilla Chip Pie, a traditional favorite with a modern touch.

Take some favorites from the land of maize and mariachi music. Tortillas, enchilada sauce, refried beans . . . all mean something good with a Mexican flavor. Tortilla Chip Pie is a traditional favorite with a modern touch. Convenience foods make this casserole dinner easy to prepare.

Tortilla chips, meat, enchilada sauce, refried beans, olives and cheese are layered in a casserole. Velvetized evaporated milk, mixed with the beans, gives your family an extra boost of protein and calcium.

Serve Tortilla Chip Pie in a pottery casserole, garnished with avocado slices. Your family will love this bit of Mexico north of the border.

Tortilla Chip Pie
(Makes 6 servings)

- 1⅝-ounce package enchilada sauce mix
- 1½ cups water
- 8-ounce can tomato sauce
- 1 pound ground chuck
- 1 cup chopped onion
- 16-ounce can refried beans
- ⅔ cup undiluted Velvetized evaporated milk
- 8-ounce package tortilla chips
- 2¼-ounce can drained, sliced ripe olives
- 2 cups grated Jack cheese
- ½ avocado

Combine enchilada sauce mix, water and tomato sauce in 1½-quart saucepan. Simmer 15 minutes. Place ground chuck and onion in skillet. Cook over medium heat until chuck is browned; stir occasionally to break up meat. Drain off fat. Stir in 1 cup enchilada sauce. Combine beans and evaporated milk in bowl. Stir until blended. Crumble ½ cup tortilla chips; reserve for garnish. Cover bottom of shallow 1½-quart baking dish with half of remaining tortilla chips. Making layers, top chips with one-half of the following: meat mixture, sauce, beans, olives and cheese. Repeat layering starting with remaining chips. Bake in moderate oven (350°F.) 25-35 minutes. Sprinkle reserved crumbled chips around edges of casserole. Garnish with avocado slices.

Clearcutting Ban Would Damage Lumber Industry

Proposed bans on timber clearcutting recently abandoned by the Nixon administration would have damaged Minnesota's lumber industry and inhibited wildlife habitat improvement, a University of Minnesota forester said.

The ban would have eliminated clearcutting on federal forest lands where 20 per cent of the state's timber supply is obtained by that harvest method, Zigmond Zasasa said.

"A clearcutting ban would have limited the amount of timber cut in the state because of increased harvesting costs and would have stifled habitat improvement on any sizeable acreage," Zasada said.

"It's ironic that many environmentalists in the state that oppose clearcutting also support the state department of natural resources wildlife habitat improvement programs that are, in effect, clearcutting to regenerate browse and cover for wildlife," he added.

While Zasada advocates clearcutting for aspen, jackpine and black spruce stands as the best method for both loggers and wildlife, he has been experimenting with strip thinning in red pine stands.

Logged strips in red pine stands can open the land for wildlife, campgrounds and hunting sites. Strip thinning also causes a minimum amount of disturbance to the forest and leaves it in a condition adaptable to future thinnings by individual tree selection or additional strips. Strip thinning coupled with mechanized harvesting can be used for harvesting timber in scenic zones and recreation areas, he said.

Congress is considering bills that would place partial or complete bans on clearcutting, Zasada said.

State's Beverage Industry Hits $301 Million

Alcoholic beverage industry of Minnesota poured more than $301 million dollars into the state's economy last year, according to figures released by United Alcoholic Beverage Industry of Minnesota.

The industry—which employs nuearly 50,000 men and women in 16,826 wholesale and retail establishments — reported payroll and earnings of nearly $240 million for 1970, of which nearly $199 million was spent largely within the state of Minnesota.

Revenues paid by the industry to the state and local communities totalled $62 million in 1970—up from the $59 million collected in 1969.

During the period 1934-70, the industry has paid $559 million to the state and $197 million to local units of government. Of these amounts, $508 million was collected from the sale of distilled spirits alone.

Taxes paid by the industry have been used to benefit all of the citizens of the state through education, health, law enforcement and other vital state functions. On the local level, these taxes have helped defray the cost of such local government services as schools, fire and police protection, sanitation and the like.

Aiding the state's local economies were 1970 expenditures of close to $200 million for goods and services purchased by the industry's employers and employees in Minnesota.

Last year they spent an estimated $45.4 million for food and related products, $29 million for housing, $26.9 million for transportation and automobile upkeep.

Other personal expenditures include $20.4 million for clothing, drycleaning and laundering, $3.3 million for personal care, $10.7 million for utilities and heating, $14.7 million for medical and dental care, $3 million for domestic services, $14 million for recreation and reading material, $3.3 million for private education and research, $11 million for personal business such as life insurance, legal and banking services, and $2.8 million for religious and welfare activities.

908 Miles Along Roads Designated As Scenic Areas

Some 908 miles along Minnesota highways have been designated as scenic areas. State law provides that scenic areas, defined as areas where control of advertising devices may be exercised, are to be established by the Commissioner of Highways in consultation with the scenic area board.

The board consists of the state commissioners of highways, economic development and natural resources as well as representatives of the outdoor advertising and motel, hotel and resort industries, appointed by the governor.

A program for scenic roads and parkways prepared for the President's council on recreation and beauty in 1965 provided the impetus to this national effort. Many states, including Minnesota, had already instituted the preservation of scenic routes, but federal assistance was limited to a provision in an old law allowing three per cent of the state's total federal highway aid to be used for scenic area acquisitions.

Subsequent to the passage of the federal highway beautification act in 1965, the state has purchased or acquired scenic easements on 143 parcels of land in 30 counties, with the federal government paying 75 per cent of the cost. Among larger acquisitions were 15 parcels in Ottertail county on Interstate 94 from the Ottertail river to the south county line, and 22 parcels in Pine county. The latter includes the Kettle river and General Andrews rest areas and a stretch along Interstate 35 from the south county line to its northern junction with highway 23.

Acquisition of an additional 33 parcels in four counties is underway, adding two new counties to the list. the largest of these acquisitions will be a 17 parcel addition on highway 61 from the west county line of Lake county to Two Harbors.

Junior, Senior HS Programs to Change

Changes in scheduling at Franklin junior high school and Lincoln senior high school are being planned for the 1972-73 year, according to Dr. Milton Hoff and Robert Ostazeski, principals for the respective schools. The changes are being made in anticipation of having grades six, seven and eight in the junior high school and grades nine through 12 in the senior high school for the 1973-74 school year.

In general, scheduling at both schools will tend toward a return to the traditional. Modifications will be made to provide for some flexibility in the scheduling, but students will have considerably less unscheduled time than under the present program.

Teaching staff of the local schools will be given greater responsibility in the scheduling within departments of both the junior and senior high schools. Team teaching concepts will be permitted to better utilize the alloted time at the discretion of the teachers in each subject field. Longer periods of time for shop and lab instruction in the senior high school will provide more useable time for projects.

Because students have been registering for classes in the past week and parents have questioned the procedure for the coming year, the Times has asked the two principals to prepare a concise summary of the 1972-73 program. The summaries written are as follows:

Junior High Report

by Dr. Milton Hoff
Junior High Principal

Franklin junior high school has begun registering students for the 1972-73 school year. The calendar for registration being followed includes March 15, registration materials presented to the students; March 23, registration in grades seven and eight completed; March 27, anticipated registration of sixth graders; and March 31, sixth grade registration completed.

In addition to the required courses of mathematics, science, English, social studies, physical education, art, industrial arts and home economics, seventh and eighth graders will be selecting a music course and will be offered Spanish as an elective. Ninth grade students will be taking the required curriculum with industrial arts, home economics, art, Spanish, music and agriculture as electives. Total number of students expected to register is approximately 860.

Students will be registering for a schedule somewhat different than the modular schedule in effect for the last three years. Under the modular schedule students had 16 periods, 25 minutes in length, with the possibility of a student moving to a different area every 25 minutes or 16 times a day. The time schedule for next year is arranged so there would be seven periods, each 54 minutes in length, and the students moving to a different area seven times a day or every 54 minutes.

Under the present modular system a student may go to several instructional or class periods and then may have several periods of study time in various areas of the building. Under the 1972-73 schedule a student would have his class time and study time in the same room and under the supervision of the teacher for that class. The 54-minute period would allow 25 minutes for instruction, 25 minutes for study and four minutes for passing to the next class.

Flexibility under the schedule would be determined by the teachers of the subject. The teachers may elect to group the children in different ways and

Senior High Report

by Robert Ostazeski
Senior High Principal

Lincoln high school will be modifying its scheduling pattern for the 1972-73 school year for a number of reasons:

(1) This is the third year of the three-year experimental program granted by the state department of education.

(2) The school district has purchased the old arctic plant and office building for the purpose of moving our business and vocational subjects to that site and utilizing vacated space at Lincoln for expansion of academic subject areas.

(3) The change in the organizational pattern of the secondary schools will be fully implemented during the 1973-74 school year. We will be moving from a grade pattern of grades 10 through 12 (which we now employ) to a grade pattern of housing grades 9-12 at Lincoln for the 1973-74 school year. This will bring Lincoln's enrollment from an expected 757 students in grades 10-12 during the 1972-73 school year, to an estimated

A SURPRISE GIFT was presented to Knox elementary school by these students in the sixth grade class taught by Don Hejlik at Knox school. Entirely on their own the students took up a collection and purchased the above picture to be hung in the school as a gift from the class. Richard Sauer, school principal, was called to the classroom to accept the gift for the school. The gift was perhaps inspired by another picture hanging in the school and bearing an engraved plate noting the contribution from a class in the 1921's. A plate is being prepared for the above painting and appreciation was expressed by Sauer on behalf of the school for the students' generosity and thoughtfulness.

BAGGED MARIJUANA was among the material seized in a pre-dawn raid Saturday on a farm house in northern Red Lake county. Conducting the raid were law enforcement officers from six agencies. Five young men were arrested and marijuana, controlled substances and other items were confiscated to be sent to the state crime bureau laboratory for analysis.

Pre-Dawn Raid Nets Illegal Substances

Ten officers from six law enforcement agencies combined forces in a pre-dawn raid early Saturday morning which resulted in the arrest of five young men and confiscation of a quantity of marijuana and other items and substances.

Acting on information provided by an informant, the officers obtained a search warrant for a farm house in northern Red Lake county about 13 miles south of Thief River Falls.

Cooperating in the early morning raid were officers of the sheriff's departments of Pennington, Red Lake and Roseau counties, the Minnesota bureau of criminal apprehension, state highway patrol and Thief River Falls police department.

Arrested in the raid were LeRoy Ose, 19, rural Thief River Falls; Kim Engelstad, 19, Red Lake Falls; Calvin Wicklander, 20, Red Lake Falls; Michael Sorenson, 25, Minneapolis; and Gary Toren, 19, Red Lake Falls. All have been charged with possession of marijuana and controlled substances and are being held at the Polk county jail at Crookston.

According to L. M. Graham of the state crime bureau, hearings will be held for the five men today in county court at Red Lake Falls.

Search was made of the farm house and items were confiscated from every room, Graham said. He estimated the street value of the marijuana alone at "a couple thousand dollars".

Also confiscated with the four pounds of marijuana were an assortment of cigarette papers, water pipes and regular pipes, various tablets and capsules, scale, plastic bags, syringes and needles and other items. All are being sent to the state crime bureau laboratory for analysis.

Graham said the raid was planned with sufficient law enforcement personnel to prevent anyone from entering or leaving the farm while the raid was being carried out. He said it was not known how many people were in the house before the raid took place, and that all five men were sleeping and offered no resistance.

Blind Student Tells Of Past Experience

(Editor's Note: Following is the text of a speech given by Charles Campbell, student at Lincoln senior high school, in a speech class at the school. Because of the extraordinary circumstances outlined in the speech, and the courage, ability and perseverence of its writer, we reprint it here for public appreciation. We commend Charles for his past efforts and wish him well in future exploits.)

"There are many misunderstandings about and injustices done to the handicapped because of a lack of training of supervisors. I shall try to point out some of these injusticis by telling you about happenings in my own life.

"My blood begins to boil when I think of the fact that at the age of five, I was placed in an institution for the mentally retarded, classed as a child who was so mentally retarded that I simply couldn't learn and consequently no attempt was made at teaching me anything in the fields of elementary education.

"When I first came to this place I was frightened. It seemed like a prison. The windows were barred, the doors were locked, and there were high fences around the building.

"No one was allowed to have any personal belongings as toys, books or other things that any child would enjoy. I was terribly lonely because no provision was made for playing games, leaving the grounds or going any place for recreation or entertainment.

"Each day seemed un-ending for there were no goals, nothing to look forward to and during the day, some inmates would make blood-curdling noises, some would be curled up on the floor mumbling to themselves, others would be crouched in corners shivering with fright, and some would be making loud noises by hammering on the furniture.

"For sleeping quarters, there were two large rooms with cots—one for the boys and one for the girls. For meals, the food was dished up for us and many of us ate at large tables but no attempt was made at teaching proper eating habits; consequently some of the kids would dive into the food with their hands, getting their hands and faces all

Co. Board Airs Redistricting At Meet Friday

Members of the Pennington county board of commissioners met Friday to discuss redistricting. Little progress was made because the board did not have necessary information on the population distribution for the county. Commissioners did draw tentative lines on a map to be considered when census information is available. The subject will be discussed again at the next board meeting, April 11.

Bob Kinsman presented plans for his proposed motel complex. He requested a committment from the board to issue a liquor license once the motel is built and the property is de-annexed by the city of Thief River Falls. He was told that the board would have to give the matter more consideration before answering. It was also suggested by members of the board that a legal opinion should be obtained from Minnesota's Attorney General.

Linda R. Knutson Becomes Bride of Robert Helgeland

Miss Linda Rae Knutson and Robert Allan Helgeland exchanged marriage vows recently at a double ring ceremony at St. John Lutheran church in this city.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Knutson of this city. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Helgeland, also of this city.

Rev. Paul R. Biegner officiated at the ceremony before an altar graced with baskets of assorted roses. Along the center aisle, the pews were marked with red, pink and white roses, accented with white ribbon streamers.

Mrs. David Schwartz, organist, played the traditional nuptial selections as the guests were ushered in by Robert Witt of Red Lake Falls, cousin of the bride, and Mark Stenseth of this city, a friend of the couple. She also accompanied Debbie Penning, a friend of the couple, as she sang, "The Lord's Prayer" and "Song Of Ruth."

The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She was attired in a gown of white candy-flowered, dotted Swiss fashioned with a fitted bodice and long, full sleeves, ruffled at the wrists. Matching ruffles flowed down the front of the bodice, outlining the bib that complemented the bodice. A bow in back at the high rise waistline held her chapel-length train, trimmed with lace. Her profile lace headpiece, re-embroidered with seed pearls, secured her veil of bridal illusion. She carried a Bible, covered with white lace, and edged with ruffles. Attached at one corner, were two red sweetheart roses.

Mrs. Richard Stenseth of Goodridge, a friend of the couple, was matron of honor. Other attendants were the bride's two sisters: Mrs. Marvin Hutchinson and Debbie Knutson, both of this city. Their gowns, designed like the bride's, featured floor-length skirts of pink and white scalloped fabric, topped by solid pink bodices. Headpieces of matching material, trimmed with three small roses on each side, held their veils of pink illusion. Each carried an arm bouquet of three long-stemmed red roses tied with long pink satin ribbon streamers.

Attending the bride as flower girl was her niece, Vanessa Hutchinson of this city. She was attired in a floor-length gown in the same design and of the same fabric as the bride's. A pearl headpiece held her elbow-length veil. She and the ringbearer, Paul Helgeland of this city, a nephew of the groom, carried a basket of assorted roses and feathered carnations.

All the gowns and headpieces were designed and made by the bride.

Best man was Richard Stenseth of Goodridge, a friend of the couple. Groomsmen were Marvin Hutchinson of this city, brother-in-law of the bride, and Alan Newton, a friend of the couple. All wore dark business suits with red rose boutonnieres. The groom and ring bearer wore white shirts and the groomsmen light pink shirts to correspond with colors worn by the bride's attendants.

The bride's personal attendant was a friend, Mrs. James Amundgaard of this city.

A reception in the church parlors followed. Mrs. Frank Donarski, a friend of the bride's family, served as hostess. Mrs. Ed Stromland, a friend of the bride, presided at the guest book as Cindy Helgeland, a sister of the groom, served the punch.

The three-tiered wedding cake, iced in white with red roses and trim, was topped with a golden Christogram featuring the double wedding ring symbol. Mrs. Herman Witt, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Albert Cleven, cousin of the bride, cut and served the cake. Pouring were Emily Nelson, cousin of the bride, and Linda Olson, a friend.

Mrs. James Helgeland, sister-in-law of the groom, and Pauline Gust, friend of the bride's family, were at the gift table. Waitresses were Bobbi Knutson, Vicky Joppru and Cheryl Haynes, friends of the bride. In the kitchen were Mrs. Seymore Nelson, aunt of the bride, Mrs. Jerold Nelson, Mrs. John Cullen and Mrs. Edson Hillyer, friends of the bride's family.

The parents of the groom were hosts at a supper at the Frontier room following the reception. Guests were members of the wedding party.

For her going away attire, the bride wore a three-piece ensemble featuring a beigh and white herringbone vest and pants accented by a brown silk blouse and matching shoes.

The newly-weds are now at home on route 4, Thief River Falls. Both are employed in this city. The bride is employed at the Frontier room and the groom by Arctic Enterprises, Inc. Photo, Lund Photography, Roseau

Safety Poster Contest Slated By Department

All Minnesota elementary school students have been invited to participate in a statewide pedestrian and bicycling safety poster contest, announced this week by Mary M. Williams, pedestrian safety coordinator for the Minnesota department of public safety.

The 10 winning posters will be used in statewide television public service announcements featuring Governor Wendell R. Anderson.

The contest is sponsored by the Minnesota department of public safety, the Minnesota safety council and the Minnesota state automobile association, as part of a statewide safety campaign to reduce the number of pedestrian and bicycling accidents in 1972. Last year, a record number of pedestrians—155—were killed in Minnesota, many of them children under 14 years of age.

Ten slogans have been chosen for participants to illustrate. They are:

1. I'm just a little guy. . .so please watch out for me when you turn a corner and I'm in the crosswalk.
2. I'm just a little guy. . .but I war reflective patches so you can see me when I'm out at night.
3. I'm just a little guy. . .so be sure you give the school patrolman time to help me cross the street.
4. I'm just a little guy. . .and I have trouble crossing the street when cars are stopped on the crosswalk.
5. I'm just a little guy. . .and have no protection when I'm walking in traffic. I know I'm a lot safer, though, if the motorists around me haven't been drinking.
6. I'm just a little guy. . .so when I'm riding my bike and you're going to drive past me, please be careful.
7. I'm just a little guy. . .but I always obey all traffic signals when I'm riding my bicycle. Do you when you're driving your car?
8. I'm just a little guy. . .but I always signal when I'm going to turn my bicycle. Do you when you're driving a car?
9. I'm just a little guy. . .but I know I can't ride my bicycle unless it's in good condition. Do you feel that same way about your car?
10. I'm just a little guy. . .but I know that my bicycle is part of the traffic. When you're driving your car, do you remember that?

The posters, on 10x10 inch heavy paper and done in color media, are to be mailed by May 1 to: Mary M. Williams, Pedestrian Safety Coordinator, Minnesota Department of Public Safety, 210A State Highway Building, St. Paul 55155. Judges will be staff members of the sponsoring agencies. Winners will be announced May 15 at the annual Governor's Safety Conference.

KITCHEN KARNIVAL

Sunday, Christians all over the world will be observing Easter. For many people, it will be a time for personal rejoicing in the knowledge that Jesus conquered death. For some, it will be just a day to display the latest fashions. For others, Easter is a culmination of weeks of cleaning and preparation. Homes have been cleaned and made ready for guests, and in churches the age-old story of the suffering, death and resurrection has been retold at Lenten services. Even nature, in this area, has been preparing for Easter. The dormant branches are again swelling with pussy willows, proclaiming the wonder of God's creation and the promise of a life hereafter. (EMS)

Today's recipe is especially suited for a time when homemakers find it difficult to make meals. Mrs. Erickson stated that it is one of her most used recipes as it is easy to make and is a complete meal.

Tater Tot hot dish

1½ lb. ground beef
1 can cream of celery soup
1 can cream of chicken soup
1 can green string beans
1 can whole kernel corn
Tater Tots

Method: Season ground beef with salt, pepper and chopped onions. Mix and crumble over the bottom of a 9 x 13 inch cake pan. Cover with drained corn and beans. Over this, pour the sups that have been mixed with the juice from the corn. Cover with tater tots. Sprinkle with salt or onion salt. Bake in a 400 degree oven for 45 minutes. Serves eight.

They are David, a senior, Peggy, a junior, and Peter, in seventh grade.

The Ericksons are members of the Zion Lutheran church at Viking and are active in the alcoholic program. Mr. Erickson is Marshall county counselor on alcoholism and together with Mrs. Erickson sponsors an Alateen group in Warren. Unemployment In Minnesota Rises To 5.3 Per Cent

Minnesota's seasonally adjusted unemployment rate for February increased to 5.3 per cent from 5.1 per cent for January, Commissioner Emmet J. Cushing of the Minnesota department of manpower services announced today. A year ago the unemployment rate was 5.1 per cent.

The national seasonally adjusted unemployment rate in February was 5.7 per cent, 0.2 of a percentage point lower than in January and 0.1 of a percentage point lower than in February of 1971.

The total number of unemployed in Minnesota was 104,900—up 6,300 from January and up 5,800 from a year ago.

The total number of employed persons in Minnesota in February was 1,554,500—an increase of 13,200 from last month. However, the major component of total employment, nonagricultural wage and salary workers, was down 3,300 from January.

A net decline in nonmanufacturing employment of 4,600 was primarily the result of seasonal decreases of 1,800 in construction and 4,200 in trade. On the other hand, Cushing said, manufacturing employment increased by 1,400, most of which was in the durable goods sector. Nonelectrical machinery employment was up 700 from January.

Compared with the same month last year, nonagricultural wage and salary employment in Minnesota in February increased by 39,100 or 3.1 per cent. The bulk of the employment gain took place in the nonmanufacturing industries, which increased by 32,000 or 3.3 per cent. Construction employment was up by 4,200, trade by 12,400 and government by 10,700 workers.

Employment in manufacturing industries also rose from February of 1971. Durable goods employment was up by 5,700 or 3.6 per cent and nondurable goods employment gained 1,400 or 1.1 per cent. Employment in the other durable goods category, which includes scientific instruments and ordnance, increased 2,800 over February, 1971. This increase, however, reflects the settlement of a labor dispute in the industry over the past year.

Production workers in manufacturing industries earned an average of $158.00 per week in February, as compared with $156.82 in January. The average hourly earnings remained the same as in January at $3.95 per hour.

The average work week for manufacturing in February was 40.0 hours, compared with 39.8 hours per week in January and 39.6 hours in February of 1971.

Bergland Gives Results Of Area Opinion Poll

U.S. Rep. Bob Bergland has released preliminary results of the questionnaire mailed to all 7th District households. The initial replies, based on approximately 7,000 questionnaires, were returned last week.

Replies indicate that the majority of area residents believe controls on profits, dividends and interest rates should be added to present price controls; that a specific date should be set for our final withdrawal of American troops from Vietnam; and overwhelming disapproval of President Nixon's proposal for a value added or national sales tax.

On the Vietnam question, residents expressed the following opinion: For military victory, eight per cent; for immediate, unconditional withdrawal, 19 per cent; favoring specific date for withdrawal if prisoners are returned, 54 per cent; for present policy of gradual withdrawal, 10 per cent. The balance had no opinion.

On the national economy, 62 per cent favored the addition of profit and dividend controls and lower interest rates to present wage and price controls; nine per cent favored the present policy of price and wage controls only; and 19 per cent favored the elimination of all government controls. Eighty-two per cent do not want the value added tax proposed by President Nixon.

Rep. Bergland said that because of the hight rate of return, final tabulations on the questionnaire will not be available for several weeks. They will be made public on completion.

Many Veterans Could Lose Some Of GI Benefits

Many Minnesota veterans could lose part or all of their GI educational benefits if they don't act promptly, the Veterans administration warned today.

John R. Murphy, director of the VA center at Fort Snelling, explained that those whose benefits are in danger were discharged from military service between Jan. 31, 1955 and June 1, 1966. For these veterans, eligibility for VA educational assistance payments for GI bill schooling expires May 31, 1974, whether or not they are enrolled at that time.

He said the expiration date is fixed by a 1966 law which, for the first time, extended eligibility for education benefits to post-Korean veterans with service after Jan. 31, 1955.

Each veteran has eight years in which to use his benefits. Normally, the eight years are computed from the date of his release from military service. But because the benefits were not available until June 1, 1966, when the law became effective, the eight years start from that date for those discharged before that time.

Murphy said that certain types of training, authorized for the first time on Aug. 31, 1967, are not affected by the 1974 expiration date. Included are flight training, apprentice and on-the-job training, and farm cooperative training. These forms of training are available under the eight-year policy, until Aug. 31, 1975, or eight years after discharge, whichever is later.

VA records show that when the 1966 law became effective June 1, it made over four million veterans eligible for benefits. Of this number, about three million have not used their benefits or have used only part of them.

The VA official said that, nationally, about 300,000 of this group are in training at the present time. Total enrollment under the GI bill in January of this year was over one million—bringing to three million the number of beneficiaries who have received training under the current GI bill, he said.

Veterans earn one and one-half months of educational benefits for each month of military service, up to a maximum of 36 months. Those who serve 18 months or more are entitled to the full 36 months.

The VA currently pays veterans with no dependents, attending school full-time, $175 a month. Those with one dependent receive $205; with two dependents, $230; and those with more than two dependents, $13 for each dependent over two.

To qualify for educational assistance, post Korean veterans and servicemen currently on active duty must have served at least 181 days, any part of it after Jan. 31, 1955. Veterans separated for service-connected disabilities also are eligible for payments, regardless of length of service.

Murphy urged veterans interested in educational benefits—especially those whose benefits expire in May of 1974—to contact the VA center at Fort Snelling, local representatives of veterans service organizations, or county veterans service officers.

Franklin Jr. HS Program Changes Are Reported they may take them to other areas of the building such as the library.

Because of the different schedule and because of the traditional class size of 30 students, the library should be open for student use all day and it would seem possible to eliminate the "Early Bird" schedule. This would mean that all students attending Franklin junior high school would begin the school day at 8:45 a.m. and would be dismissed at 3:30 p.m.

The schedule proposed for the 1972-73 school year is more traditional than the previous schedule and will be transitional toward the type of schedule used in middle schools. It is anticipated that when Franklin junior high becomes a middle school (grades six, seven and eight), in the 1973-74 school year, the periods of class time may be extended to 75 or 80-minute periods.

Lincoln Sr. HS Program Changes Are Announced

enrollment of 1,103 in grades 9-12 in 1973-74.

Tentative plans for scheduling for 1972-73 have been completed. Courses which can use an extended block of time (such as a two-hour period), like our industrial arts or agriculture, will be offered the opportunity to schedule in this manner.

This would mean that a course that previously met for 18 weeks at the rate of one hour per day would meet for nine weeks at the rate of two hours per day. Other courses could possibly be taught in this manner as well, if they are of an activity, shop or lab type of course where projects or "hands on" activities are the prime method of instruction.

Other courses, including the majority of traditional academic subjects (English, Math, History, etc.) will be organized on an hour per day basis. We will, however, allow staff the option of combining sections for a team-teaching situation where appropriate, and also allow teachers the management principle of breaking the hour down into two small groups where appropriate.

Teachers will also be able to have students work on independent study projects, where they—the teachers—feel it is for the best interests of the student to pursue a project that is unique to the normal class assignment. This feasibly could be done for enrichment or remedial reasons.

In summary, one would consider the scheduling we will attempt to accomplish as a modified modular program. The large group classes of more than 55-60 students will be eliminated as a standard operating procedure, and only used where cooperating teachers might desire on a team basis by combining sections of the same subject area.

The student's schedule will look much more traditional in pattern (that is, courses will meet every day of the week) with the use of that time to be determined by the teacher in relation to the ability and needs of that particular group of students, and to the type of learning activity that the class might best to able to utilize for that phase of the course work.

Therefore, we might say that the teacher will be the determiner of the activity and method employed in each class situation.

AWARDS for agricultural proficiency in occupational experience activities have been made to (l to r) Larry Panek for fish and wildlife management, David Lee for processing, Steve Berry for sales and service and ornamental horticulture, Mark Naplin for agricultural methanics, Scott Sorvig for home improvement and James Gunstad for soil and water management. Richard Lian received an award for agricultural production but was not available for the photo.

Dollar Value Of Life Studied In Highway Survey

What is the dollar value of a life lost in a traffic accident?

The question is important for a number of reasons, says Minnesota's commissioner of public safety W. R. Hoaglund. One of the reasons is that the national highway traffic safety administration uses dollar "worth of life" estimates in cost-benefit studies to determine whether certain vehicle safety measures are worth their cost in human lives, Hoaglund explained.

"The dollar value of a human life has been placed by the national safety council at $45,000 based on calculations of wage loss, medical costs and other factors. The national highway traffic safety administration used the figure of $43,000 in a cost-benefit study of passive restraints in passenger cars.

"The same agency used a figure of $200,000 when it considered requiring protection against underrides on trucks and semi-trailers and then decided that the benefits would not be worth the costs.

"Another figure used by the NHTSA is $300,000, which it says is based on information from the federal aviation administration. The size of the estimate depends partly on the factors considered. One of the higher estimates includes, in addition to the wage loss and medical costs considered in the lowest estimate, such factors as loss of income to the family, lost community services, employer recruiting and training costs, and estimated accident prevention and investigation costs."

Northwestern Bell Has Lower Earnings

Northwestern Bell's net income and earnings per share for 1971 fell below the previous year, according to the firm's 1971 annual report released today.

Earnings per share were down to $2.05 in 1971 from $2.28 in 1970 on operations in the five states in serves (Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska, North Dakota and South Dakota).

"We operated the business with today's costs and yesterday's prices," T. S. Nurnberger, company president, comments in the report. He added that the 1971 earnings level "would not long permit the company to provide the kind of service customers have a right to expect."

Northwestern Bell "must continue to seek additional repricing of telecommunications services in the year ahead," according to Nurnberger. He pointed out that, "the company's earnings for 1971 would not have been adequate even if every cent of the rate increases requested earlier in the year had been granted."

Despite the earnings drop, the report says, "service measured up remakably well to high standards. Northwestern Bell is a consistent leader among Bell system companies in the quality of service it provides."

The company added 183,000 telephones during the year and handled an average of 1.2 million more calls per day during the year 1971. Its capital investment in the five states it serves grew by $198 million to $2.2 billion, as the company kept pace with growing service needs.

The earnings decline was attributed to a sharp climb in expenses and interest costs along with a slowdown in the economy. The company's revenues grew at the rate of seven per cent, the report states, while expenses climbed 12 per cent over 1970.

Payroll and related costs, according to the report, reached $283 million, $32 million more than in 1970. State and local taxes (excluding income taxes) were up 8 per cent in 1971 to a total of $43 million. Interest costs, up more than 22 per cent over 1970, came to $39.7 million. The capital required to meet service requirements in 1971, the report says, came at higher rates. In January of 1971, the company sold the largest debenture issue in its history, $150 million, at the highest cost in its history, 7.93 per cent.

Those increases offset the fact that from a dollar standpoint, the company's revenues (at $628.2 million) were the highest in history.

The report says the earnings slide weakens the company's capacity to provide top-quality service and damages the firm's ability to attract capital.

Northwestern Bell's report states that construction necessary in 1972, if completed as planned, will cost an estimated $320 million, or $50 million more than in 1971. Even larger construction programs are foreseen: "Plans now call for construction programs in the three years 1972 through 1974 totaling more than $1 billion. In order to carry them through, we must increase revenues and improve our earnings."

As the report was issued, Nurnberger noted that a large amount of the construction dollars the company spends goes for wages in the five states served by the firm. He pointed out that the $320 million construction budget planned for 1972 will mean the equivalent of nearly 8,000 jobs either within the company or in building and construction trades.

The report discusses various ways the firm "used new ideas and hard work to slow expenses down," and points out productivity gains by telephone employees: "It took 68 employees to provide service for 10,000 telephones in 1971, compared to 91 in 1961."

In April, the report states, Northwestern Bell adopted a new affirmative action program which re-stated and expanded the firm's commitment to provide equal employment opportunities. At the end of 1971, the report continues, there were 650 minority employees on the Northwestern Bell payroll, 2.43 per cent of all its employees.

About 55 per cent of all Northwestern Bell employees are women, and one in three management jobs is held by a woman.

The company printed its report on recycled waste paper.

Give and take:

drug rap

By Bob Olander

He's been there.

We really don't know much about drug abuse. I've said it before in this column. All we know is what we are able to see, and what we see is only a small tip of the iceberg.

How many heroin addicts are there, anyway? What is the realtionship between drug abuse and crime? What about the economics of drug abuse: Who exactly is making money from the stuff? What kind of people get into drugs? What kind of people stay in drugs? What kind of people get out?

If you get looking into it seriously, you'll find there simply are no answers to questions such as these. We know drug abuse chiefly by its visible effects. We have little knowledge of the thing as a whole.

That's why the recently completed study at the University of Minnesota is so great. It gives us comprehensive knowledge about the attitudes and habits of about 4,000 students, charted over a four-year period. This study will be a landmark in the field, and a light that will kindle more light in this dark and unexplored area.

I noticed several striking facts in the study.

Striking fact number one: There were great differences between the reasons given by present drug-users and ex-users, as to why they got into drugs in the first place.

Users, for example, listed "loneliness" three times as many times as ex-users did. Users tended to give such subjective reasons as "consciousness expansion" and "insight into personality" as reasons for getting into drugs. Ex-users listed such reasons to a far lesser degree.

I will hazard the guess here that the ex-user—the person who knows the drug scene from personal experience but has given it up—looks at things more honestly than those who stay on drugs. The ex-user sees drug use as a sham. He finds there is no mystical insight into his own personality, that drugs do not "expand" his mind; he comes to see that drugs can be a sort of mental and physical trap.

It's possible that ex-users have more internal resources than those who stayed with the stuff. For certain reasons (and I think it is awfully important that we get to learn more about this) some people just don't "need" drugs as much as others do.

It was interesting to me that the highest percentage of users was found among those who claim to have no religion. Seventy-one per cent of current drug users in the study said they had no religion.

Striking fact number two: There has been a marked shift in the kinds of drugs being used over the past four years. Part of this shift is good, part of it bad.

There has been a big increase in the use of marijuana but a decrease in the use of potent hallucinogenics such as LSD. There has also been a decrease in the use of "pep" pills or amphetamines.

But there has also been an increase in the use of hard narcotics classifed as "opioids". These are habit-forming drugs such as heroin or dilodid produced either naturally or synthetically. In 1968 only one girl, a sophomore, said she was currently using hard narcotics. But in 1971, two per cent of the males (out of a senior class which contained about 4,000 male students) and three per cent of the females (out of about 2,000 famales who were seniors) said they were currently using hard narcotics. These figures are terribly significant, for they show the growth of the core problem of drug abuse: The "hard" or addictive drugs which bring with them affiliated problems of rehabilitation, crime and enormous personal suffering.

Striking fact number three: The greatest increase in the use of all drugs over this four-year period, was in the use of alcohol. In 1967, 58.7 per cent of entering freshmen interviewed said they were currently using alcohol. In 1970 the figure was 74 per cent. This seems to me to mean that while drug education has had some effect (decrease in amphetamines and LSD use, for example) students have returned in large numbers to alcohol... the good, old socially-approved drug.

By the way, do you watch the Dean Martin show? Have you seen the way he totters around, smiling that half-drunken smile, making a great, big joke about drunkenness? I'll bet if you were an alcoholic trying to shake the habit you wouldn't laugh as hard as your neighbors at Dean Martin. One out of 13 persons who drink at all are going to have an alcohol problem some time in their lives. That's a lot of people. They must view such appeals to drunkenness with bitterness, and so do I.

Ehrenstrom To Attend M.S.C.

Assessors Must Take Test Or Enroll In Class

Examinations are being prepared which will be offered to those assessors who believe they have the knowledge and experience to hold their office. Those who do not receive a passing grade will be required to enroll in classes prescribed by the state board of assessors.

Recent action by the state legislature created a state board of assessors and established requirement for certification of assessors in cities, villages and townships of less than 10,000 population.

Those political subdivisions intending to continue the office of assessor will be required to prepare a resolution to that effect and send it to the commissioner of taxation before April 1.

Local assessors may choose to by-pass the examination and enroll in classes that the board has prepared or approved. They will be given credit for any approved courses they successfully completed previously.

"Dame Fortune plays with a man who surrenders himself to her caprices as a child plays with an ivory ball on a billiard table, pushing it hither and thirther, and laughing with joy, when by chance she sends it into the pocket; and an expert player, who calculates speed, reaction, distance, angles, and a crowd of other things, does what he pleases with the ball; but Fortune is not a learned gometrician, and he who abandons himself to her must stand the hazard of the die. She seems, indeed, to take a malicious pleasure in proving that she is not blind; she has never raised me up except with the intention of casting me down afterward." —Casanova

U.S. Going To Pot?

Will the United States go to "pot" as has been encouraged by some segments of our sick society? Will we retreat a little more from our responsibilities to our fellow man and legitimize a noxious substance which is at best a symbol of defiance? Will we legalize marijuana?

Perhaps we came on step closer to that day with the report from the National Commission on Marijuana and Drug Abuse. That commission recommended repeal of all jail terms and fines for private smoking of marijuana and private possession of one ounce or less.

It recommended retention of felony penalties for growing marijuana, selling it for profit or possessing it with intent to sell, and fines of up to $100 for smoking in public, public possession of more than one ounce, and not-for-profit distribution of small amounts in public.

An Associated Press story on the commission's report noted that the commission found marijuana "is far less dangerous than the American public thinks."

But it did find that long-term daily use of marijuana by adolescents sometimes contributes to a general lack of motivation; that anyone driving under the influence of marijuana is a serious threat to public safety; and that heavy, daily use over a number of years may cause damage to heart and lungs.

We say that is dangerous enough. Coping with the drinking driver is already a major highway safety problem. Trying to deal with the potential potheads would be a whole new ballgame.

And if it is illegal to grow marijuana or sell it for profit, where are all the users going to get their one-ounce quantities or less for personal and private possession and use? Adding respectability to the use of marijuana will certainly increase the market potential.

Those who believe marijuana to be relatively harmless may be interested in this editorial from the Walsh County Record in Grafton, N.D.:

William Chapin, a professor of journalism and former newspaperman, has written the intensely personal account of his child's descent into drug addiction and subsequent mental illness.

The parents' struggle to prevent that disaster was unavailing. It is the true story of one middle-class family's battles, loves, hates, reconciliations and contacts with the drug and medical worlds. These are the strong stirring elements of "Wasted—The Story of My Son's Drug Addiction."

Starting with marijuana at the age of 14, the author's son, Mark, quickly moved on to experiment with LSD and amphetamines. How much was taken is not known, but enough to mess up the boy's head.

"He's crazy," exclaimed the father. "I have to say it to write it down, to grind it into my own awareness, to accept it. He's Crazy."

Now 21, Mark is confined to a mental hospital with a schizophrenic psychosis. The years of confusion and anguish, the frustration from obstacles encountered in seeking help, the constant struggle to understand and deal with the boy's deteriorating condition are described in simple unemotional language by the author. The result is an unsparingly honest and hauntingly poignant book. The title: "One Life to Live."

The old familiar story? It started with "harmless" marijuana. Enormous fortunes await giant companies if they can get marijuana legalized. In publishing the book, McGraw-Hill has given us some powerful ammunition against its legalization.

Parks and Plexiglass

It was last July 6 when the Thief River Falls city council approved a plan to charge campers using the local tourist park a fee for such use. Fee collection began immediately thereafter and by the end of the season had produced $1,860 in camper fees which were added to the city's general fund.

Campers are charged $1 per day for tents or trailers and $2 per day if they hook-up to sanitary sewer connections which have been provided. Although we don't fully approve of charging camping fees to those who would be guests in our city, the rates are reasonable in comparison to most camping areas.

Our current concern is not with the charging of fees for park use but rather the use to which the funds are being applied. The council a couple of weeks ago approved a proposal to purchase and install plexiglass in the north end of the hockey arena, with funds for that purpose to come from this season's camping fees.

We think that this decision raises a question of legitimacy of the use of the camping fees. There are improvements which could be made in the tourist park to make it more attractive and useful, and it seems that the fees which campers pay should be used for these improvements.

Furthermore, the need for plexiglass in the north end of the arena is also open to question. Except for rare occasions during the hockey season, the bleacher area on the north end is not needed for spectator use. The present screen provides all the safety to the public that plexiglass will provide and is no real hazard to the players. Expending many hundreds of dollars for plexiglass installation seems to only be laying an additional sacrifice on the altar of the great god of hockey to satisfy some inexplicable vanity.

The city fathers recognized a good thing in the tourist trade when they established the park and improved, expanded and equipped it throughout the years. Because of this foresight and attention, the park has been a haven to travelers who pause here on their way and a terminal point for many Canadian families who use it as a base of operations.

It was only recently that the city extended electrical outlets and added sanitary sewer hook-ups which greatly improved the utility of the park. Some additional lighting, surfacing of the park road to reduce or eliminate the dust problem, replacement or addition of playground equipment at Riverside park, provision of more shelter area and picnic tables—all are improvements which would cost money that camper fees could provide.

In the past year, camper fees went into the city's general fund. With council approval of the plexiglass plan recently, this year's fees are already committed in advance.

Let us hope that the city will not shortcut the needs of the tourist park because of lack of funds this year, and that in future years the camping fees are designated for park purposes.

AN ADDED NOTE—We assume that the council acted on initiating the fee schedule for camping on July 6, since an item in the Times news columns on Wednesday, July 7, listed the action as being taken at a special meeting Tuesday.

We attempted to verify the action—and to find any indicated use of the funds derived therefrom—in the official minutes at the city clerk's office. Instead we found that there are no minutes of the July 6 meeting at all. They were apparently lost along with minutes of other meetings somewhere between meeting adjournment and secretarial typing from dictation.

And we couldn't resist suggesting that if the minutes had been published in the Times, as required by law, that we could have looked them up ourselves. At least there would be a record of those proceedings somewhere. Well, we've walked that path with the council before and wound up nowhere. Right now we're concerned with parks and plexiglass.

It Makes Sense

Following editorial is from the Ortonville Independent:

Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, R-Maine, deploring what Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield had called lack of maturity and responsibility in the Senate, has renewed her proposal for automatic expulsion of any member of Congress who misses 60 per cent of the roll-call votes in a year.

With eight cosponsors she reintroduced a proposed constitutional amendment providing that a Senate or House seat would become vacant if the member misses either 200 roll-call votes or 60 per cent of the roll-call votes in a single year, whichever is smaller.

Mrs. Smith acted after Mansfield, for the second consecutive day, berated the Senate for absenteeism, immaturity and unwillingness to work.

Some of the senators, he said, "would have been fired by now" if they had been absent so often from any other job.

Mrs. Smith, who holds the all-time voting record of 2,941 consecutive roll calls, broken by hip surgery in 1968, said, "not only is the majority leader's patience at an end but so is the patience of the American people, for I have received thousands of letters from people throughout the nation expressing very solid support of my proposal."

It makes sense, too!

notes from the governor

For several years we have been moving, at all governmental levels, to modernize and coordinate our entire system of criminal justice.

The federal government, through the Law Enforcement Assistance Agency, has provided significant financial help to the states and local governments.

This effort has yielded results, and will continue to do so.

But the job that is often the last directly affected by improvements and innovations in the system, remains that of the policeman.

To quote from a book entitled "The Honest Politician's Guide to Crime Control," written by a professor of police administration at the University of Chicago, the policeman is "denounced by the public, criticized by preachers, ridiculed in the movies, berated and unsupported by prosecuting officers and judges. . .He is exposed to countless temptations and dangers, condemned when he enforces the law and dismissed when he doesn't. He is supposed to possess the qualifications of a soldier, doctor, lawyer, diplomat, social worker and educator, and he gets paid less than a daily laborer."

That quotation is as true today as when it was written 43 years ago.

It is perhaps long past time, then, that we give proper recognition to the role of the police officer in our society.

Last week the Minnesota Chiefs of Police Association presented six "Minnesota Police Officer of the Year" awards.

The top award went to Capt. William Joseph Grillo of the Hibbing Police Department, a 38-year-old father of four whose professional and civic activities range from coaching the Hibbing boxing team, to off-duty participation in drug education programs, to leading a fund drive for a fellow officer who lost both legs in the line of duty.

The five other officers honored were Officer Leonard Vierzba, Detroit Lakes, of the Minnesota Highway Patrol; Juvenile Officer Walter G. Johnson, Hopkins; Lt. LeRoy H. Thielen, St. Paul; Sgt. Claude L. Jarvis of the University of Minnesota police, and Patrolmen Laurence E. Will and Dennis D. Lokke of Minneapolis.

I was highly honored to participate in the presenting of those awards.

They should, and will, I am sure, become an annual tradition.

The American Conscience

by Dr. RUDY SKOGERBOE

Major national health insurance proposals have been made by leading participants in the health field as well as organized labor. I will briefly describe the four major plans and give my view based on the concept of maintaining both solvency and individual freedom.

MEDICREDIT, for the Health Care Insurance Act as proposed by the American Medical Association: This would make comprehensive health care insurance available to all by federal sharing in premiums through vouchers or tax credits. This is a voluntary plan administered by the states. It would use federal revenues and pay premiums in full for the poor and a graduated amount for others based on ability to pay. Estimated cost $14.5 Billion.

KENNEDY (REUTHER) PLAN or Health Security Act of 1971—Sponsored by the AFL-CIO. Compulsory comprehensive national health insurance through providers under government contract. It is administered by the federal government and would cost $57 Billion the first year—more thereafter.

NIXON PLAN OR NATIONAL HEALTH INSURANCE STANDARDS ACT. This is supported by the present administration and offered by Sen. Bennett and Representative Byrnes. This would maintain compulsory health insurance furnished by the employer, it would cover the employee and his family and 75 per cent would be paid by the employer. It would be administered by private carriers. Medicare and medicaid would continue. Cost 3 to 6 Billion.

AMERIPLAN: American Hospital Association. The intent is to restructure the present delivery system and finance health insurance for the poor. It would cover the poor, those who can, would pay for their insurance, and it would eliminate medicare and medicaid. It would be administered by the states. Financed through federal funds and payroll and self employed tax for others. The cost is unknown.

My comment is that a great amount of work has been done to provide more and better care for those who are not getting it now. This is good, provided it is not compulsory and will not result in government medicine. If either of these two features are incorporated into any plan, we will have a regression, not an improvement. My experience in the Veterans Administration Hospital system is extensive and recent. It is good in many ways, but the cost and the efficiency would in my opinion make it totally unworkable for the whole country. This would be essentially what the Kennedy or socialized medicine plan is and I strongly oppose it. If enacted, our federal income taxes would very likely be increased 15 per cent over and above what we are now paying. The other plans are less objectionable, but the administration of medicine for the whole country from Washington is a most difficult task and lends itself to a beaurocracy that has many frightening features. Briefly, I would favor coverage that does a better job for the poor and the near poor. The most efficient way for this to be done is through the county welfare systems. In addition to this I would recommend coverage for major medical care or catastrophic care which would bankrupt most anybody at present rates. This can be done through private insurance companies and government participation should be on a graduated basis depending on the ability of the individual to pay. One should remember that Hitler's police state used compulsory medical care for all Germans to insure popularity. The welfare state comes first, the police state later.

On January 1, 1972, some 19,100 parents, drawing Veterans administration benefits for service-connected deaths of veterans and servicemen became eligible for $55 monthly aid and attendance payments.

Legislative Letter

from ANDREW SKAAR
STATE REPRESENTATIVE

As the income tax deadline of April 15 is rapidly approaching I would like to remind all renters that they may be eligible for up to $90 in renters' credit for refund. This is a result of the law passed in 1971 by the Minnesota legislature.

This is double the amount a renter was eligible to receive previously. Check schedule RC in your 1971 Minnesota individual income tax form and instruction booklet to see if you are eligible. Forms are available at most banks or post office. For those citizens who are over 65, you may be eligible for an even larger credit. These citizens should follow instructions given in the Minnesota income tax form for claiming senior citizen income tax credit (yellow booklet).

All rural people continue to express concern about legislative redistricting and large loss of rural representation. A three-man court has ordered a reduction in size of the legislature by nearly one-third. Although the size reduction is being hailed by some as a way to save money, actually, because many additional research personnel will be needed at salaries three to four times that of legislative salaries, costs can conservatively be estimated to be over twice the current costs.

A reminder to all township boards and mayors, these officials must make known their intention to retain their local assessor by April 1 of this year otherwise the office will be abolished on November 30, 1972. One of the articles in the recent tax bill provides that a board is to be named by the Governor to determine the qualification of local assessors. This board has been named and they are in the process of establishing the procedure that will be used to certify local assessors. All town board chairmen and mayors have received this notification but should check to see if they have met this requirement.

If there are any questions on this or any other provisions of 1971 tax law, please feel free to contact me.

SPRING VEGETABLE SOUP FOR PASSOVER

No Jewish menu, whether it's a festive holiday gathering or simple family meal, is complete without soup. From a clear chicken soup to a thick barley and bean soup, it always has its place on the menu.

An ideal "meal opener" for one of the eight days of Passover is Spring Vegetable Soup with Mondlen. It's light, yet sets the scene for the festive meal to come. And it adds variety to Passover meals, for the conscientious homemaker who wants to serve interesting meals, yet is restricted by Jewish dietary laws.

This simple, savory soup is a melange of fresh vegetables — potatoes, carrots, celery, scallions — in rich chicken broth. Crisply fried, almond-flavored Mondlen are added at serving time.

Both the vegetable soup and the Mondlen are prepared with peanut oil which enhances the flavor of other foods without imparting a taste of its own. Lightest of the common cooking oils, Planters Peanut Oil is the first choice of Kosher cooks.

Introduce Spring Vegetable Soup at forthcoming Passover meals and your family will insist it become a tradition. It's not only flavorful but festive.

SPRING VEGETABLE SOUP

3 tablespoons Planters Peanut Oil
1-1/2 cups diced potatoes
1 cup sliced carrots
1 cup chopped celery
1/2 cup chopped scallions
1/4 cup chopped parsley
6-1/2 cups chicken broth
1 teaspoon sugar
1-1/2 teaspoons salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper

Heat Planters Peanut Oil in a large saucepan. Add potatoes, carrots, celery, scallions and parsley. Saute, stirring occasionally, about 5 minutes. Add chicken broth, sugar, salt and pepper.

Cover and simmer about 20 minutes, or until vegetables are tender. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

PASSOVER MONDLEN

1/2 cup ground Planters or Southern Belle Blanched Almonds
1/4 cup matzo meal
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon ground cinnamon
2 egg yolks
2 egg whites, stiffly beaten
Planters Peanut Oil

Combine ground Planters or Southern Belle Blanched Almonds, matzo meal, lemon peel, salt, cinnamon and egg yolks. Stir in a small amount of the egg whites; fold in remaining egg whites.

Drop by teaspoonfuls into deep hot (375°F.) Planters Peanut Oil. Fry until golden brown on both sides, 2 to 3 minutes. Drain on paper towels. Serve with soup. Makes about 3 dozen.

EASTER LORE AND LEGEND

Though Easter is a universal holiday, it is celebrated in many different ways.

In Florence, Italy, a rite preserved from the Middle Ages annually commemorates the passing of Lent and serves as an omen for the coming year. As thousands watch, four white oxen draw an ornamented cart filled with explosives which are ignited at the proper moment. If the fireworks explode, great rejoicing follows, for it is believed that this foretells an excellent harvest.

Easter festivities in Mexico center on the destruction of Judas. Effigies of Judas are hanged or burned on the day before Easter.

The tradition of rising with the sun on Easter morn comes from an ancient peasant belief that those who witnessed sun-up on a certain day in spring would be blessed with good fortune, good health and fair crops. Even farm animals that rushed out to see the sun were presumably insuring lots of cream, fat bacon and grade-A eggs for the next year. The present version of this rural fete is, of course, the holding of countless early services on Easter morning.

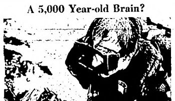
Until the 4th century, Easter was less a religious holiday than a continuation of ancient rites in honor of the coming of spring. Eggs, for example, are a simple symbol of new life, and the giving and receiving of colored eggs signifies a wish for the brightest of new things in the year to come.

We can also thank the early Teutons for our colored eggs and "Easter rabbit" traditions. The name "Easter" comes from Eostra, a Germanic goddess of dawn and spring. It was an ancient belief that each spring an egg descended from heaven and was hatched by doves. Out of it came Eostra, who brought the sun's warmth to earth and ended the winter. Soon after, a rabbit is said to have presented Eostra with the gift of a new egg. Today, gayly colored eggs still imply new life and are given as gifts to celebrate the day.

Interpreting the season's modern mood and spirit, FTD florists have created the HappyNest, a special basket bouquet of colorful spring flowers. This fresh floral arrangement, which also features brightly colored eggs and a traditional "bunny" in its design, is a delightful gift that can be sent almost anywhere in the U.S. and Canada, via local FTD florists, throughout the week proceeding Easter.

An Easter without the accompaniments of the holiday's finery and its customs seems unimaginable: The dour sages tell us that there's nothing new under the sun — but, under the Easter sun, all things look wonderful, meaningful and joyously new. — M. M.

A 5,000 Year-old Brain?



Up from the depths comes Florida Marine Archeologist Carl Clausen with the skull of an Indian who lived in southwest Florida 5,200 or more years ago.

NORTH PORT CHARLOTTE, Fla. — A rare archeological find which may cast new light on prehistoric Florida and change history textbooks has been brought from the depths of Little Salt Springs in southwest Florida.

When General Development Corporation learned that the 220-foot pool on their North Port Charlotte property concealed archeological relics, company president Frederick E. Roach joined forces with the State of Florida to recover the treasures.

The agreement had personnel, a research grant and construction totaling $12,000 given by General Development, while the Florida Department of State furnished diving archeologists to probe water as deep as an upended 25-story building.

They found perfectly preserved prehistoric leaves, nut-hulls, twigs, sticks and small logs. Also, a "cemetery" of bones of people from 1½ to 35 years of age, including skulls, large arm and leg bones.

Unvarying water temperature preserved the remains in near-perfect condition for 5,200 years, early radiocarbon 14 tests showed. But experts believe the spring still holds the bones of some 200-300 Indians who lived 5,000 or more years ago.

One of the most exciting finds of State Archeologist Carl Clausen and his team was a skull with material inside which was suspected to be preserved brain matter — 5,000 years old! Samples are now being analyzed by a pathologist.

Ninety feet down, animal bones were found, identified as either mastadon or mammoth, bison and both giant land turtle and ground sloth. Also, the skeleton of an as-yet unidentified creature that died before history began.

Florida Secretary of State Richard (Dick) Stone praised General Development for its "responsible, conscientious efforts" which made possible a discovery believed by archeologists to be the most important one in this hemisphere.

Year-long laboratory study should yield invaluable data because the remains represent a base population from which evolved later Indian tribes of southeastern U.S.

Also, General Development hopes, future exploration may solve the mystery of why so many bones in one pool?

How's Your Health

(Prepared in the public interest by the Minnesota Medical Association.)

Drinking and driving do not mix on the highway or on Minnesota's fields of snow. No matter when it is used, alcohol deteriorates judgment and reduces inhibitions—dangerous impairments for one driving a snowmobile, says the Minnesota state medical association.

From recent statistics obtained through a study of snowmobile accidents, two Minnesota physicians concluded that alcohol is a significant factor in snowmobile accidents.

Richard A. Fink, M.D., Rochester, and James J. Monge, M.D., Duluth, reported that 22 per cent of those involved in snowmobile accidents admitted alcohol ingestion. In addition, a significant percentage avoided answering the question.

Other major causes of snowmobile accidents cited in their report included high speed and reckless driving and stunting.

Snowmobiling injuries will increase with the popularity of the pastime, projected Doctors Fink and Monge.

But, snowmobilers can do a better job of protecting themselves, says the Minnesota state medical association. Here are some suggestions:

Learn to know and respect the capabilities of your snowmobile; do not go on extended excursions alone. Carry extra fuel and a safety kit of vital spare parts when on a long trip.

Do not travel over strange terrain at night, choose protective clothing, particularly safety helmets, do not drink and drive; do not drive when fatigued; and practice defensive driving and leave stunting to the very skilled.

It seems everyone is worried about iron deficiency anemia these days. It has become a catch-all for self-diagnosed ills. Unfortunately, along with self-diagnosis comes self-treatment and neglect of the true disease or true cause of anemia.

Anemia is a serious health problem that cannot be treated lightly, says the Minnesota state medical association. It may have various causes including, improper diet, poor absorption of food, excessive or chronic bleeding, injury to the bone marrow, certain parasites and infections. If you believe you are anemic, consult your physician. Only he can determine whether you actually are anemic, and if so, what is the cause. Then he will prescribe the proper treatment.

The symptoms of anemia typically include pallor, fatigue, shortness of breath and lack of energy. If your blood has too few red cells or too little hemoglobin, you have anemia and your blood is unable to carry out its function of delivering oxygen to all your body tissues.

Iron deficiency anemia means a lack of hemoglobin in the blood which can be prevented and sometimes overcome by eating food rich in iron. Some foods containing iron are liver, oysters, kidneys, tongue, heart, egg yolk, meat in general, dried peas and beans, dried fruits, leafy green vegetables, molasses, and whole grain and enriched breads and cereals.

Avoid products which are advertised to supplement your diet and correct nutritional deficiencies. You may be wasting your money and risking your health by delaying medical attention or masking symptoms from your physician.

MOTIVATION!

Industry is finding it takes more than a fatter paycheck to keep employees happy. American Oil Company cited a study by Dr. Frederick Herzberg showing that supervision and working conditions are the major reasons for complaint — not salary questions. The best incentives, on or off the job, are: 1) recognition; 2) actual achievements; 3) increased responsibility, and 4) opportunities to learn. The job of pollution control has the biggest incentive of all — a healthier environment. AMOCO is urging that we all get the lead out and do something about pollution. That something can be as small as picking up litter. Write your congressman or local environmental protection agency to find out what you can do.

Prowler Pucksters Award Team Honors At Banquet

PETE SULLIVAN (right) received the symbolic "captain's stick" from Mike Protz after being named captain of the 1972-73 Lincoln high school hockey team Thursday night at the squad's banquet. Protz was this year's team captain.

Junior goalie Pete Sullivan was voted by his teammates as captain of the 1972-73 Lincoln high school hockey team at the squad's banquet Thursday night.

Also receiving special recognition were seniors Mike Hamilton and Rory Anderson. Hamilton was picked as the team's most valuable player, while Anderson received the "windmill award" for his hustling style of play and team spirit.

The Prowler pucksters, under the direction of head coach John Schmitz and assistant Don Zaph, finished the 1971-72 campaign with an overall record of 15-6, the best Lincoln hockey mark since a 16-4-2 slate during the 1967-68 season.

The Prowlers' 15-5 regular season record was compiled with wins over East Grand Forks (7-3 and 4-2), Crookston (4-1 and 6-3), Eveleth (4-1), St. Paul Hill (3-2), Bemidji (4-2), Roseau (4-2 and 3-2), Warroad (10-3), Grand Forks Central (5-3), Hallock (3-2), Red Lake Falls (13-0), Baudette (8-2) and Moorhead (11-0). Losses came at the hands of Bemidji (4-3), Grand Forks Red River (3-1), Virginia (9-3) and Warroad (5-3).

The loss to Warroad in the next-to-the-last game of the regular season snapped an eleven game winning streak for the Prowlers, the longest winning streak for a Lincoln sextet since the 1953-54 undefeated state champion team which finished the season 20-0.

The 15-5 regular season is even more remarkable when a person takes into consideration the exceptionally tough schedule the Prowlers played. Six of the Prowler opponents were at one time during the season rated among the top 15 teams in the state, including Bemidi, Eveleth, Virginia, Warroad, Anoka and St. Paul Hill. A seventh team, Grand Forks Central, was the North Dakota state champion.

However good the Prowler regular season was, the year ended on a frustrating note with a startling 4-2 region eight first round loss to East Grand Forks. Speaking to the squad at the banquet Schmitz said, "Sure the loss to East Side was a big disappointment, but I still feel we had a fine season. You can't throw out a 15-5 record because of one game."

Nine seniors will graduate from this year's team, but with three of the squad's top four scorers returning, along with the regular goalie and a junior varsity squad which finished the year with a 16-1-2 record, the Prowlers will be a prominent team in region eight hockey next season.

Here We Go Again

The Viking Sportsmen's club at Alexandria is preotesting the 'early' opening of the bass season this year. Every ten years the argument over the bass policy takes place. The law of Minnesota states that the bass season may be opened when the walleye season opens. It's up to the Conservation Director.

This column has insisted that bass should be fished the year around. It won't do the population a bit of harm. We quote from the book "Outdoor Horizons":

"Bass are prolific-spawners. Too little fishing can be more damaging than heavy fishing pressure. We have the choice of either harvesting the bass crop or contributing to the waste of natural mortality."

In this same book the statement is made that we haven't made a dent in the bass population. A large percentage of bass die of natural mortality.

Minnesota has an excellent bass population. Too many of the bass are stunted in growth because not enough of them are harvested.

If the Viking Sportsmen's Club doesn't believe the Minnesota biologists, we suggest that they contact Richard Stroud of the Sport Fishing Institute on America. Washington, D. C.

Survey Reports Camper Use Is Heavy In BWCA

Heavy camper use of Boundary Waters Canoe Area (BWCA) campsites is causing extensive deterioration of some sites, according to University of Minnesota forest researchers.

In a study of 33 newly-established BWCA campsites from 1968 to 1971, the researchers found the greatest deterioration at sites with aspenbirch, fir-birch and spruce forests. At those sites, more tree roots were exposed and there were more dead or missing trees after three years of camper use.

The study was reported by Professor L. C. Merriam Jr., research assistant Kent Goeckermann, and former research assistants J. A. Bloemendal and T. M. Costello.

Because of environmental damage to campsites and use pressure, the U.S. forest service had to limit campers to one-night stops for the first time at 10 heavily used lakes in the BWCA last summer.

If population pressures keep increasing in the BWCA, officials have said that within 10 years visitors may have to make a reservation in order to camp in the million-acre area.

The university researchers also found that soil campaction more than doubled on most campsites. There was very little increase in the per cent of bare soil.

The BWCA in the Superior National forest had over one million visitor-days use in 1970. It is one of the most heavily used wilderness areas in the United States.

Pilots Warned About Flying Over Refuges

Federal bureau of sport fisheries and wildlife, which operates the national wildlife refuges, is anxious to acquaint all area pilots that flying below 1,000 feet over refuges is prohibited.

The bureau calls attention to Title 50, Code of Federal Regulations, 26.32 which prohibits; ". . . .unauthorized operations of aircraft at low altitudes over, or the unauthorized landing of aircraft on a wildlife refuge area, except in the event of emergency."

Pilots are urged to maintain an altitude of not less than 1,000 feet over any national wildlife refuge.

The refuge located in this area is the Agassiz national wildlife refuge located approximately 23 miles northeast of Thief River Falls. Refuge Manager Joe Kotok advises that pilots who violate this regulation will be prosecuted.

Medication May Have Affect On Driving Ability

Drivers, who are under medication should consult frequently with their doctors and should also keep close watch on themselves for possible effects on driving efficiency, Minnesota public safety officials warned today.

"Authoritative estimates tell us that 12 per cent of the adult male population and 222 per cent of the adult female population are frequent users of prescription drugs. Most of these are sedatives (barbiturates), stimulants (amphetamines) and tranquilizers. While investigators concede that properly controlled dosages can improve a driver's efficiency, they have found that continued use and large dosages can have deleterious effects both on the motor functions of the body and on the mind.

"Many of the legally used drugs actually produce hallucinations, and have withdrawal symptoms similar to those of narocotics. Other adverse results include extreme drowsiness and deep sleep, irritability, inability to concentrate, headaches and nausea.

In addition to the legal use of prescribed drugs, there has been in recent years a great increase in the illegal use and abuse of the same drugs. Many of these drugs, 'bennies', 'dexies', 'downers', 'uppers', 'speed' and so on have found their way into the black market. Some drivers use the amphetamines to combat fatigue. Young people use them for kicks. Many of the peparations produce dependence on them in the user. And more importantly, anybody using such drugs should absolutely avoid the use of alcohol in any amounts, when driving.

"Our knowledge of the part played by drugs in traffic crashes is still qaite limited, but many studies have established that they do affect driving performance. Scores of recent studies and others now in process tend to confirm widespread belief that drugs do play an important and increasing part in traffic accidents."

SEED WHEATS:
BOUNTY 208
Common ---- $2.95 pr. Bu. Bagged
Certified ---- $3.50 pr. Bu. Bagged
Registered ---- $6.95 pr. 50-lb. Bagged
We feel that this is possibly the safest wheat that you can seed, because of the early maturity, very high yielding, stiff straw, bearded heads, good milling, good protein. We had quite a large acreage in our area last year, so we feel we could make good comparisons with other varieties. Ask the farmer that grew some. All of our production grown from Registered Seed.
1809 WHEAT
Common ---- $2.55 pr. Bu. Bagged
Certified ---- $2.85 pr. Bu. Bagged
A very fine wheat developed by World Seeds, high yielding, good protein in all of our tests.

SALVAGE VESSEL USS Deliver (ARS 23), commissioned in July, 1944, is the oldest ship of its type in the U.S. Pacific fleet service forces. Petty officer Larry E. Hagman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emil E. Hagman of Thief River Falls is presently serving on board (Official U.S. Navy photo)

PETTY OFFICER Larry E. Hagman of Thief River Falls is presently serving aboard the USS Deliver as a quartermaster second class.

Larry Hagman Is On Salvage Ship

Petty officer Larry E. Hagman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emil E. Hagman of route 3, Thief River Falls, is presently serving in the U. S. Navy aboard the salvage ship Deliver.

Hagman is assigned to the operations department as a quartermaster second class. He is responsible for duties concerned with the navigation and steering of the ship; taking radar bearings and water depth soundings and plotting information of the ship's various nautical charts. He also performs as the damage control petty officer.

Petty officer Hagman, a 1967 graduate of Lincoln high school, completed three years of active duty naval service in January.

During his tour in the Navy he has travelled to Hawaii, Japan, the Philippines, Taiwan, Singapore, Korea, Vietnam and Hong Kong.

The USS Deliver, "Queen of the Salvage Navy," is the oldest ship of its type in the Pacific fleet service forces. Her primary mission is off-shore salvage and rescue. This includes refloating grounded vessels and recovering various craft and material from the depths of the sea. Her unique versatility also enables her to perform a variety of other tasks. These include repair work, towing and surveillance.

To accomplish its mission, the Deliver is complemented with more than 80 skilled technicians, divers, welders, engineers and other specialists, as well as a vast assortment of equipment.

Since her commissioning in July 1944, the salvage "Queen" has performed continuously throughout the far-flung territories of the Pacific. During World War II, Deliver earned a battle star and played a major role in the development and perfection of the atomic bomb. Later, during the Korean war, she earned three additional battle stars, three service medals and a Korean presidential unit citation.

Jehovah Witness Group Continues Convention Plans

How does the public react to the question "Would you like to live forever?" Surprisingly many remark "Under this system of things?" No thanks." This is understandable because of existing world conditions.

"Jehovah's Witnesses believe they have the solution for mankind's many problems. We want to share this good news and are making arrangements to do just that," said Royal Lund of Crookston. Lund will oversee the house to house ministerial arrangements for the coming convention of Jehovah's Witnesses to be held at the Lincoln high school auditorium April 14-16.

The highlight of the event will be when G. L. Hewitt, district supervisor from New York world headquarters, will speak on "Are You Marked for Survival?" The public is invited to attend this free public talk on Sunday, April 16, at 2 p.m.

Drug Emergency Training Program At Crookston

A conference and training program on drug emergency treatment will be held here in Crookston Tuesday and Wednesday. Jim Rothenberger and Otte Boersma from the drug information center, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis, will conduct the sessions, which are for medical personnel only.

Tuesday's meetings will begin at 8:30 a.m. in the mental health center, with Mrs. Lilja Snyder, Polk county nurse, presiding. The talks and demonstrations are designed for school and public health nurses and will train them in overdose situations.

From three to six p.m. Rothenberger and Boersma will meet with the Hotline L.U.H.Y. group at Mount St. Benedict. The Red River Valley medical society doctors and area nurses will have the opportunity to hear the two at a dinner at the Elks country club at 6:30.

Wednesday at 8:30 a.m. they will appear before students of the Agassiz Valley school of practical nursing in the St. Francis building, with Sister Pentronilla, O.S.B. in charge. A meeting with the Riverview hospital nurses and staff is slated for two, with Betty Heldstab making the arrangements.

A rap session at 8:30 p.m. in the Trojan Inn on the campus of the U of M technical college will conclude their day. The discussion will concentrate on the use and misuse of alcohol and how it can be used sensibly.

"We won't just be talking about the problems," said Dale Knotek of the UMC faculty, who, with Virginia Stainbrook, college nurse, is coordinating the program. "Role playing will be used to portray realistic situations to give viewers an idea of the symptoms of drug overdose and its treatment."

Blind Student Tells Of Past Experiences

smeared; some would throw food around, making the place look more like a place for animals than for humans.

"This was my life until I was almost 13 years old. At that time an aide came to explain to me that I would be going to some school where I would be taught braille. This gave me new hope for the future.

I have been told that some men from the state department of education and the state department of health came to check on the members of this institution, spotted me and felt that I was able to learn if someone would try to teach me. My handicap was legal blidness for my vision was 20-200 or less in both eyes. I should have been taught braille, but there weren't any facilities nor teacher to help me.

"Shortly after this, the coordinator of the program for the visually handicapped at Thief River Falls was contacted, a foster home was found and I started school at Washington school in Thief River Falls where a resource teacher taught me braille and where I was enrolled in a regular classroom.

"How would you like to be about 13 years old and start in the first grade at that age because you hadn't been given a fair chance? I was so much taller than the first graders that I had to have a much larger desk, but the children had been very well prepared to my coming and I began to feel at home and be happy in my new situation.

"I was very anxious to learn, and when I was introduced to the braille writer I was intrigued by it and was able to figure out myself how to handle parts of it. Soon I began to read braille, write braille and to take part in some of the work in the regular classroom. Since I didn't start school until February, I naturally had not been able to catch up with the other first graders so I was in the first grade again next year.

"The other children marvelled at the fact that I could read lines of brailled dots and also use the braille machine, so they made me feel that I was accomplishing many things that they could not do.

"In the third grade I was introduced to the slate and stylus for writing braille. This was more difficult to learn to operate than the braille machine.

"In fourth grade I was introduced to the typewriter, so my means of communication was being broadened all the time.

"With the help of the resource teacher I began to progress at a faster pace and sometimes I made two grades in one year. I expect to graduate this spring. This means that I will have made kindergarten through grade 12 in a little over eight years.

"I plan to go to Anoka for training in some special trade and then to get a job where I can make my own living and be a useful citizen. Most of us who are blind want 'Work not alms.'

"We, you and I, future citizens of this country, are we going to sit by and know that there are many cases much like mine that are still in existence? What can you and I do to correct these conditions?"

The use of farmer-elected committees follows the farmer's tradition of retaining, as his sovereign right, a citizen's voice and responsibility in public affairs. This tradition has survived the technological revolution in agriculture and the political, social and economic changes in the nation to date and we sincerely hope it continues on that responsible path.

THIEF RIVER FALLS TIMES 10¢

Volume 61 Thief River Falls, Pennington County, Minnesota Wednesday, March 29, 1972 Number 26

TEST OF TIME has been withstood by this painting made about 50 years ago by Mrs. C. C. Ward, now a resident of the senior citizen housing project in Thief River Falls. Now 84, Mrs. Ward painted pictures for three church altars a number of years ago as well as a number of other scenes, both religious and scenic. Mrs. Ward lived at Valley home here for three years and now has been at the senior citizen housing project for more than two years. She has two sons, Lyle of Fargo and Chandler of Grand Forks. Lyle will have the above painting for his home.

Officials Reveal Findings About Thompson Death

Results of the investigation of the March 3 death of 13 - year -old Ellard W. Thompson were released by authorities at a news briefing Monday. Ellard, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Waldo Thompson of Thief River Falls, was found dead on the Red Lake river in Thief River Falls shortly before 10 a.m., March 4. The discovery was made by James Enge, who found the body lying face down in the snow and notified local police.

Ellard's tracks were visible and showed that he had walked onto the river from Mussey street and traveled northwest, leaving a winding trail. The winding pattern, coupled with the fact that some of the fastenings of Ellard's outer garments were open, was interpreted by investigators as indicating that the boy was confused and probably intoxicated.

The only marks on the body were minor scratches on the right wrist. They were apparently from contact with a snow fence near the river. No other tracks were found near the body and there were no signs of violence.

With the evidence at the scene and information received from people who had been with Ellard during the previous evening, investigating officers quickly eliminated the possibility of foul play as they continued the investigation.

Many rumors have been circulating about Ellard's death and law enforcement personnel have checked all that have come to their attention. With the completion of the autopsy and toxicology reports, the basic facts have been established and confirmed.

According to Dr. Ernest Thorsgard, county coroner, Ellard's death was caused by a combination of factors, resulting in death by exposure.

The autopsy revealed that Ellard had an existing lung condition characterized by hardening, thickening and narrowing of the arteries from his heart to his lungs. Medical people do not know what causes the condition which is only rarely found in autopsies and can not be diagnosed before death.

Blood-alcohol tests showed that the amount of alcohol in Ellard's blood was greater than the amount established as the legal definition of intoxication.

The third and final factor was the weather. The official overnight low was recorded at 16 degrees below zero. There was also a noticeable wind driving more than one-half inch of new snow.

Investigating officers considered the possibility that drugs

The board granted tenure to Lowell Dyrud, Elaine Linder, Charles Neuenschwander and Glen Peters.

Extracurricular positions for the coming year were established but no appointments were made nor compensation set for any of the positions. Due to realignment of responsibilities, VyAnn Feragen's salary was adjusted from $400 to $420 per month.

The board tabled a resolution to issue a supplementary contract to David Durgin as school purchasing agent. He had been hired under the Emergency Employment act at a basic rate of $6,000 and it was proposed that a supplementary contract of $1,200 be issued for time and responsibility adjustments. The $6,000 is fully reimbursed and the $1,200 would be at school district expense.

IN CONVERSATION at the Pennington County Republican convention Tuesday evening were Jon Haaven, center, candidate for GOP endorsement for U.S. Congress; Mrs. Roger (Linda) Worth, county GOP chairwoman; and Dr. David Brown, county chairman and permanent chairman for the convention.

County conventions of the Democratic - Farmer - Labor and Republican parties were held in Thief River Falls this week with delegates elected to district and state conventions and a number of resolutions adopted. Officers of both parties reported the highest attendance and most interest in county conventions in recent years. There were 99 delegates in attendance at the DFL convention Sunday while the GOP had 64 people in attendance and 29 official delegates participating Tuesday evening. Reports on the two conventions are as follows:

— DFL —

In the words of a television commercial for chili, the Pennington county DFL convention Sunday was "not exactly tame". The approximately six-hour session produced a new county chairman and chairwoman, delegates to state and district conventions and 32 resolutions to be forwarded to the Seventh District resolutions committee.

J. Anderson And D. Ruud Vows Exchanged at Gatzke

Lighted candelabra and bouquets of red roses and pink carnations graced the altar at the United Lutheran church in Gatzke for the recent evening ceremony that united Miss Jackie Anderson and Donovan Ruud in marriage. Variegated pink velvet ribbon markers, made by Elinor Anderson, were on the pews.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Anderson of Middle River. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Mylan Ruud of Gatzke.

Rev. David Putz officiated at the double ring ceremony. Mrs. Eldon Sparby, a friend of the couple, presided at the organ. She played the traditional wedding marches and also accompanied Steven Larson as he sang, "The Lord's Prayer" and The Carpenters' "For All We Know."

Escorted to the altar by her father and given in marriage by her parents, the bride was attired in a floor length gown of lace over taffeta. The gown was styled with a fitted bodice, long tapered lace sleeves a bouffant skirt featuring four lace tiers over taffeta. Creating back interest was a train of taffeta, edged with lace similar to the lace headband that held her floorlength veil of bridal illusion. She carried a bouquet of red roses and pink carnations in cascade design.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Bruce Lunsetter, sister of the groom. She was attired in a pink floor-length gown fashioned with a fitted bodice and long, full sleeves, gathered at the wrists. Her full skirt was in shades of pink. At the neckline, she wore a cameo necklace, a gift from the bride. Her bouquet was similar to the bride's.

Miss Denise Ruud was the bride's personal attendant.

Best man was Mike Anderson, brother of the bride. The ushers were Dwight and Delray Ruud, brothers of the groom. The groom, his best man, and the ushers wore boutonnieres of red, pink and white roses, respectively.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Anderson chose a beige dress. The mother of the groom wore a navy blue and white dress topped by a navy vest. Both had identical corsages composed of red roses and pink carnations.

Honor guests at the ceremony and reception were Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Olson, Mrs. Louis Anderson, grandparents of the bride, and Mrs. Constance Ruud, grandmother of the groom.

A reception in the church parlors followed with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Leach, Jr., as host and hostess. Centering the serving table was a four-tiered wedding cake baked and decorated by Mrs. Edwin Lund and Mrs. George Severts. The cake as cut and served by Mrs. Lund and Miss Elinor Olson. Miss Gerry Olson and Mrs. George Severts poured.

Darrel Severts and Jean Scramstad served the punch as Miss Doreen Ruud registered the guests. Assisting in the kitchen were Mrs. Mylan Abrahamson, Mrs. Juel Aune, Mrs. Bill Bernstein and Mrs. Alton Sparby. The gifts were opened by the bride and groom upon their return from their wedding trip.

Relatives and friends attending the ceremony were from Long Prairie, Foley, Warroad, Stephen, Thief River Falls and the areas around Middle River and Gatzke.

The bride and groom are graduates of the Middle River high school. The bride attended the Thief River Falls area vocational technical school and is employed at Barb's beauty shop in Warren. The groom is employed by Mugaas Gulf station in Gatzke.

Myster also listed properties that are included in an estate, such as insurance, checking and savings accounts, certificates of deposit, real estate and antiques. Army Announces More Openings On Prior Enlistment

Department of the army has announced that men with military experience may be able to re-enlist under the army's prior service enlistment option.

For the past few months only a small percentage of prior service personnel have been allowed to rejoin. These included personnel trained in highly critical occupational duties and personnel who have received the nation's highest awards for valor.

Now, however, the department of the army has cracked the door a little wider. This means that many ex-servicemen who were unable to re-enter a few months ago will now find that they can re-enlist under the new prior service option.

According to Sgt. Trim and Sgt. Long, U. S. army recruiters located at 209 East Third street, Thief River Falls. "Many men with military experience are going to find that not only can they get back in, but possibly even at their old job and definitely a higher salary."

For more information about the prior service enlistment option, visit Sgt. Trim and Sgt. Long at the office or call 681-1154 collect.

Drug Detector Being Developed To Test Drivers

There is bad news in the making for those who smoke "pot" and drive cars, Minnesota commissioner of public safety W. R. Hoaglund said today.

The bad news is a new, fast and dependable method for detecting the presence of marijuana in a user. "Up to now, marijuana has been one of a few drugs for which there has not been a simple and reliable test. The new method, now under development by the midwest research institute, has been able to detect two marijuana components in urine samples of the smokers.

"Better detection methods are expected to reveal marijuana intoxication as a traffic hazard of considerable importance. Most of what we know about this has come out of the laboratory rather than from experience in the field. We know that marijuana is comparable to alcohol in impairing drivers. It substantially slows reaction time for braking and affects vision, particularly recovery from glare. Its effects last for many hours."

Hoaglund said that arrests for marijuana intoxication have been on the increase for the past few years. "There arrests occur when the officer's attention is drawn to a driver because of his erratic behavior on the road. Usually the cause of the intoxication is established by the presence of the drug in the car or on the driver's person. A dependable urine test will greatly aid enforcement, and may provide an answer to those who contend that this type of intoxication is of no significance in highway safety.

"The new method of detection is still in the development stage and requires specialized equipment.

Bergland Bill Sets Minimum On Social Security

Seventh District Congressman Bob Bergland Monday introduced legislation increasing the minimum monthly social security payment to $100 and shifting one-third of social security financing to the federal government.

Introducing the legislation, Bergland said: "It is becoming obvious that percentage increases in benefits—even the 20 per cent now being considered by the House—are inadequate unless a dollar base is established. I consider $100 per month the absolute minimum that can be accepted," he said.

Bergland said he included provisions to shift part of the financing burden to the federal government because "the payroll tax is fast becoming an intolerable burden for lower and middle income wage earners. Under the present program, a worker paying $405 in payroll taxes this year would have to pay in $483 by 1975," Bergland expained.

Under Bergland's plan the amount would be reduced to $351 by 1975. "Modest wage increases mean little," he added, "when they are eaten away by increased payroll deductions.

Bergland suggested that the additional funds necessary to finance the federal share of the program" could be easily obtained through tax reforms." A comprehensive tax reform measure was presented to Congress by Bergland and several of his colleagues last week.

"The skin of my teeth" was first used in the bible (Job 19:20).

Otter Tail Wins National Award

For the third time in five years Otter Tail Power company has won a national sales award. The company's "customized industrial service program" won the national Edison Electric institute award in the selective marketing category. The industrial service consisted primarily of contacting industrial customers to assist them in making the best possible use of electricity.

Company president A. V. Hartl selected industrial sales representative Don Vraspir to accept the award in behalf of Otter Tail at a luncheon in Denver on March 21.

Icy Bridges Are Peril To Drivers

Coming off a dry pavement onto an icy bridge can spell disaster for the unwary motorist, a spokesman for the state highway department warned today. At this time of year, as well as late autumn, high humidity, low temperatures and a flow of cool air beneath a bridge often combine to form a slick, icy surface on it.

Under these conditions the bridge often appears to be wet or frosty. As research has shown that skidding, or hydroplaning, can begin at speeds as low as 35 miles an hour, drivers are urged to be on the alert for those telltale signs, and to slow down immediately without using their brakes. Hydroplaning is the phenomena in which a vehicle's wheels ride up on a thin surface of water and lose contact with the pavement, resulting in loss of control.

While efforts to insulate the underside of bridges to prevent this hazard have proved unsuccessful, experiments with a liquid organic antifreeze compound on Indiana highways seem promising. Sprayed on bridge surfaces by tank truck, one application is said to last from three to eight days, and to be effective down to 50 degrees below zero. Originally used as an airport runway deicer, the antifreeze is described as non-corrosive to steel, auto finishes, concrete and asphalt. It is currently being tested in the Rochester area.

Bergland Objects To Second Class Postal Increase

Congressman Bob Bergland has intervened in behalf of the 92 weekly and daily newspapers in his district in an attempt to ward off an increase of 142 per cent over the next five years in second class postage rates.

In a letter to William E. Crowley, chairman of the postal rate commission of the U.S. Postal service, Bergland notes that "The 92 weekly and daily newspapers of Minnesota's Seventh district are in serious trouble. If they are to maintain their strong tradition of providing a diversity of opinion and defending freedom of the press, they need your help.

"The increase, 142 per cent over the next five years, in second class postage rates is, in my opinion, excessive and would present an intolerable financial burden on the newspapers of this nation.

"I urge you to stand firm to preserve our newspapers and reverse the recommendations of the chief examiner calling for prohibitive increases in second class postage rates," he said.

Cargill To Give Certificate For Sunflower Seed

Extra money in the form of a marketing certificate for its contract sunflower growers signed up by the end of March was announced by Cargill, Inc., today. A company spokesman described the move as a reflection of the improved outlook in the world vegetable oil market.

"In the last 60 days since we announced our 1972 contract, the market for oil and meal has turned more favorable," said Ken Johnson, Cargill sunflower project manager. "In line with our previously stated policy of sharing good fortune in the market with our growers, we are offering those contracted to us by March 31 a marketing certificate redeemable at 25 cents per hundredweight on 500 pounds per harvested acre."

Johnson said payment in cash will be made when a grower has delivered his entire hearvest. He said further certificates are possible depending on Cargill's ability to market the oil and meal from the new sunflower crop at more favorable levels in 1973.

Johnson cautioned that the market changes continuously, but said at the moment factors contributing to the optimistic outlook for oil prices are (1) Russia's announcement that last year's sunflower crop produced 400,000 tons less seed than anticipated; (2) soybean acreage in the U.S. will apparently not be greatly increased and (3) Australia's sunflower crop appears to have fallen 100,000 to 150,000 tons of seed short of earlier expectations.

High Enrollment Noted In Feed Grain Sign-ups

With only minor changes expected in the final enrollment progress report for the 1972 feed grain program, Minnesota farmers signed 102,957 farms in the program. According to the Minnesota Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation service office, 78 per cent of the state's total eligible farms enrolled in the set-aside acreage program.

Set-aside acreage in the program totals 2,741,249 acres. Of this total 1,981,053 acres represents the minimum 25 per cent set-aside that farmers could offer to enroll in the program. Above this minimum, farmers could offer under two separate options an additional set-aside acreage up to 10 per cent of their corn sorghum base and up to 20 per cent for barley. These offerings account for 576,619 acres.

For the final option farmers could offer an additional 5 or 10 per cent subject to acceptance by the Secretary of Agriculture. They offered 183,577 acres in this category. The acreage was accepted by the Secretary on March 22.

Total feed grain base on signed farms is 7,935,554 acres or 92 per cent of the base on eligible farms. A breakdown of the base shows 6,878,968 acres are corn base, 3,818 acres represent the grain sorghum base, and 1,052,768 acres are barley base.

Enrollment for the 1972 feed grain program was February 3 through March 10.

Farms enrolled in Minnesota in the 1972 wheat set-aside program have 325,613 acres in allotments. That represents 95 per cent of the state's share of the eligible national domestic allotment of 341,711 acres.

Signed farms number 41,077 which is 86 per cent of the total eligible wheat farms in Minnesota.

Wheat acreage set-aside on enrolled farms totals 399,793 acres. This includes the required 83 per cent set-aside of 270,178 acres and 129,615 acres of voluntary additional set-aside.

Mrs. Armstrong To Address Dist. GOP Convention

Seventh district Republican convention, to be held in Fergus Falls Friday and Saturday, April 14 and 15, will be the only Midwest Republican convention to hear Republican national cochairman Mrs. Anne Armstrong.

Mrs. Armstrong, wife of a Texas rancher, will fly to Fergus Falls April 14 to address the Seventh district Republican banquet at the Holiday Inn.

Mrs. Armstrong is an ardent supporter of "Women in Politics". She has been a delegate twice to Republican national conventions, and has been active in the campaign to elect Richard Nixon as President in 1968.

Main item of business at the convention April 15 will be the endorsement of the Republican nominee for Congress from the Seventh district. Candidates for the endorsement are Alexandria newsman, Jon Haaven, 38; Concordia student Richard Hahnen, 25; and Clay county farmer Merlyn Valen, Comstock, 45.

National, state and district Republican dignitaries will be present for the convention.

Auto Expense Deduction Aired

If you keep a careful record of the number of miles the car was used for business purposes, you may deduct 12 cents a mile for the first 15,000 miles and nine cents for each mile over 15,000, according to the district director of internal revenue.

This deduction may be claimed instead of the actual expenses for gasoline, oil, insurance, repairs and depreciation.

Any parking fees and tolls paid in business driving could be added to the standard mileage rates.

Safety Is YOUR Business

Gov. Proclaims Safety Week For School Buses

Governor Wendell R. Anderson today called on Minnesota communities to set aside the week of April 17 through 23 to commemorate and call attention to school bus safety week.

His proclamation noted, in part:

"Whereas: Safe student transportation in school buses is extremely vital in today's high-volume traffic throughout the state of Minnesota, and

"Whereas: School bus safety week underscores the vigilance, caution, and courtesy that must be exercised by every citizen in order for there to be any significant reduction in vehicle accidents, and

"Whereas: This program has been intiated for a three-fold purpose; to make safer drivers of the school bus driver, to emphasize the state law regarding when and when not to pass a school bus, and to help inform the general public of the importance that a school bus plays in the education program, and

"Whereas: The excellent safety record achieved by school buses in our state is worthy of recognition and commendation,

"Now, therefore, I proclaim the week of April 17 through April 23 as school bus safety week in Minnesota, and urge activities designed to increase public understanding and awareness of the significance of the pupil transportation program on a national basis to the pupil, parents, community, state and nation."

Delays Noted In Processing Theft Loss On Returns

George O. Lethert, district director for Internal Revenue for Minnesota, said today that many taxpayers claiming casualty or theft losses are experiencing delays in the processing of their federal income tax returns. This is because they are either failing to deduct the $100 limitation or not showing this computation on their return.

Under a new program this year, the service centers are identifying and correcting taxpayer errors in order that taxpayers will not be subject to later interest charges.

Lethert explained that a personal casualty or theft loss is allowed only to the person who owns the property and must be reduced by any payment received through insurance. The amount that may be deducted must further be reduced by $100.

As an example, a taxpayer suffers a casualty or theft loss of $1,000 of which $500 is recovered by insurance. The taxpayer can claim that portion not covered by insurance minus $100 or a total of $400.

When claiming a casualty or theft loss, the taxpayer should file a Form 4684 with his 1040 return, showing the loss on both the From 4684 and on lines 26 and 31 on Schedule A & B of the 1040.

Additional information on properly claiming casualty and theft losses can be obtained from the nearest internal revenue service office.

Roland E. Woller, Chief
Thief River Falls Police Dep't.

The bicycle season is upon us again. You wouldn't think so to look out your window today with all our new snow, but with the nice weather of the past week bikes were out in large numbers. It was immediately recognized that more instruction is needed in bike operation.

Again I remind you that bicyclists must obey all pertinent rules of the traffic laws. Just like car drivers, the drider of a bike must stop for all stop signs and semaphores. There is no provision for bikes to go against red lights or to fail to yield to other traffic. They must be ridden on the right side of the road, not facing traffic.

Bike riders should signal their intentions, just as car drivers are obligated to do. Pedestrians who are walking in crosswalks or properly on sidewalks have the right of way over all bikes. In this same regard there is a law that says that bikes should not be ridden on sidewalks. Another place in the law there is provision for certain actions of bikes on sidewalks. For this reason we do not take action on bikes being ridden on sidewalks.

I would suggest that all bikes be parked in the racks provided and not left laying in a manner that blocks the walks. This is a problem for persons using the sidewalks properly. You would hate to see a blind person fall on any bike laying on a sidewalk. No bike should have more than one person on it unless it is equipped for such other riders.

We will be using a new system of enforcement on bicyclists this year. When the bike rider is a young person and perhaps not as knowledgeable as older persons, he will be issued a bicycle violation notice. This will record the name and address of the violator plus the name of his parent or guardian with their address and phone number. The hard copy of this notice will be given to the violator. The second copy will be sent by mail to the parent or guardian so that they will be made aware that their child has been given the notice. The third copy will be filed in our office.

If a child gets several notices, the parent and child will be requested to come in to the station for a conference. If the violations continue the child will be formally charged in juvenile court. It is hoped that the cooperation of the parents will encourage the child to ride his bike properly and possibly save his life or at least prevent an accident.

Another important facet of the bike program in the city is the licensing. As I have stated before, this is not a money-making proposition, but a registering in case of loss or theft. A bike that has a license and is lost, stolen or abandoned can be returned to the owner swiftly if we know who the owner is.

Each bike is required to receive a new license each year. This relicensing is quite a problem. To help, we schedule a safety check and relicensing day each year. This year we are planning this for Saturday, May 6. It will be held in the old ice arena. We encourage all bike owners to come to the old arena that day to have their bike checked and to buy a new license at the same time. The cost will be 35 cents. We will have some reflectorized tapes to put on the bike for night driving also.

If you have a bike stolen, please call us immediately by telephone or stop by our station to make a report. At the same time you may see the bike already in our bike rack out front. We are constantly getting calls about abandoned bikes here and there. We bring these bikes to the station to try to locate the owners.

If you have a bike that has never been licensed, we encourage you to record the make, size, type (girl or boy), color, together with the serial number. Bring this description to our station and we will issue a license to you. I have two bikes and I have both already relicensed for 1972 even though neither has been out of my basement yet. Please help us and yourself by doing the same.

Ken Froschheiser, our juvenile officer, will be conducting bicycle safety sessions in the school together with Patrolman Cliff Mattson of the Minnesota highway patrol.

Soybean Growers To Have Choice Of New Varieties

Minnesota soybean growers will have an opportunity this year to grow three new soybean varieties released to registered and certified seed growers in 1971.

Dunn, Amsoy 71 and Morsoy soybeans range from early to late maturity and all showed up well in their yielding ability in comparitive trials conducted by the U of Minnesota experimental station.

Morsoy is an early maturing, large seeded soybean variety developed in Canada. It outyielded Portage in three locations in northern Minnesota in 1971. Morsoy is about the same maturity and about five inches taller than Altona. Morsoy has better chlorsis tolerance than Altona, but it is susceptible to phytophthora root rot.

Dunn soybeans has good seed quality and has medium maturity similar to Anoka. Dunn averages 1½ bushels higher in yield than Chippewa 64 and is similar in height. It is susceptible to Phytophthora root rot.

Amsoy 71 soybeans, in the late maturing group, is similar to Amsoy except it is resistant to Phytophthora root rot. Amsoy outyielded Chippewa 64, and Rampage at the Lamberton, Fairmont and Waseca stations. Amsoy 71 averaged at least two bushels per acre more than these varieties during the tests from 1969 to 71. It is very late, however, and should be reserved to southern Minnesota.

It is recommended by the Minnesota crop improvement association that farmers have their carry-over soybean seed tested preferably under "stress conditions", to determine its viability. The association suggests that it usually pays to buy new seed of a higher yielding variety with high quality germination standards.

Sources for registered and certified seed varieties are listed in the Minnesota certified seed directory for 1972. The directory is available at Minnesota approved seed processing plants and from county agents.

School Activities

Neil Johnson was a member of the band at Franklin junior high school in Thief River Falls which presented a pop concert for the public at the school recently.

Last Friday morning the senior girls who are members of the FHA chapter at Marshall County Central high school went on a two day trip by school bus to Grand Forks and Fargo-Moorhead. Laura Kron was a member of the group of 18 girls. They were accompanied by their advisors, Mrs. Milstein and Mrs. Brandt and their chapter mothers, Mrs. Orvus Benitt of Holt, Mrs. Orlin Magner of Newfolden and Mrs. Bert Kron. The group toured jewelry stores, furniture stores, and drove through the campus of the University at Fargo besides enjoying shopping at shopping centers as well as in down town stores. They were overnight guests at the Holiday Inn at Moorhead, where the girls appreciated the enclosed swimming pool.

New Solum 4-H Club

The New Solum 4-H club started its 25th year in February since its organization in 1947. Plans are being made where special pictures, newspaper clippings, souveniors, bulletin boards and programs will show the activities of the club during these 25 years. The secretaries' books, records at the County Extension Office and special guests will provide interesting information on the growth of the club and the impact it has had on the lives of the youth and people of the community. The observance of the past will be concluded in August when the annual 4-H club picnic will be held. At that time all former 4-H members and their families, as well as their parents, will be invited to be guests for a day of happy reunion. It is with great interest and excitement we spend these few months looking at our history and we hope others in the area will enjoy it also. Under the guidance of the president, Debra Reierson; vice-president, Lorille Bulger; secretary, Ramona Aaseby; treasurer, Randy Lambert; and reporter, Barbara Bauer, the February 4-H club monthly meeting was held at the Rosebank clubhouse. A demonstration was given by Wesley Soiney on "Small Engines", a project report on "Safety Rules with Small Engines" by Leonard Kron, a project report by Paul Lambert on "Electricity", a reading by Cindy Anderson, and jokes by Wesley Soiney. Guest speaker was Melvin Saugen, the first 4-H leader of the newly organized club 25 years ago. In recalling the organizing of the New Solum 4-H club, Mr. Saugen said that Rev. Silas Erickson, pastor of the Rindal Lutheran church at that time, saw a great need of a youth organization for all the young people in the community. He greatly admired the way the 4-H club program met the needs of purposeful work and recreation for boys and girls of all faiths and of a great age range. With the help of Mr. Frank Hobbs, the Pennington County Agent, Miss Judith Wold, the teacher at the Rosebank school and Mr. Saugen who had much experience in the 4-H club program with the Steiner 4-H club, an informational meeting was held in February at the Rosebank school with a number of parents and their children present. Interest was great and a club was organized that evening with the name chosen because of the name of the township whose children it would serve. The officers listed in the first secretary's book in 1947 were as follows: President, Avis Bergum; vice president, Loren Voldness; secretary, Marlene Anderson and treasurer, Dorothy Soiney. The adult leader was Melvin Saugen with Mrs. Bert Kron assisting him in September when she came to teach school at Rosebank. As now, the New Solum 4-H club met the 3rd Wednesday of each month. The interesting meeting was concluded with picture taking and recreation lead by Laura Kron and Cindy Anderson. Lunch was served by the William Bulger family and Mrs. Roy Copeland.

The Center really buzzed on Thursday, March 23rd, when the Senior Citizens met for their weekly meeting. Forty people were in attendance. It was fun day, and some tried knitting some dish cloths, while others made balls of the skeins of yarn. Then games were played until lunch time. Next meeting will be April 6th. It is hoped that with spring and summer coming, all will be willing to take a turn at serving the lunch starting in April. Thursday's lunch was furnished and served by Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Carlson and Mrs. Leona Carlson in honor of Grandpa Ed Carlson, whose birthday is on Sunday. A delicious lunch of hot dish, salad, pickles, buns, bars, ice cream, cake and coffee, was served featuring two birthday cakes. One was baked and delivered by Vera Peterson by order of Fern Froemke and Yvonne Twede, Ed's daughters of Seattle, Wash. The happy birthday song was sung for Ed and also for Andrew, Annie and Ella, who also had March birthdays. Visitors were Mr. and Mrs. Casper Anderson, Clara Nelson, and Vera Peterson of Karlstad, Mr. and Mrs. Gunnar Sundberg of Newfolden, Mr. and Mrs. Arlon Erickson and Benjamin of Thief River Falls, Mr. and Mrs. Gust Gustafson of Greenbush, Mrs. John Henrickson, Mark, Todd, and Dawn Carlson and host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Carlson of Warren and Leona Carlson of Kennedy. Ruth Storeby, Ruth Anderson and Mrs. E. R. Anderson were also back. Recently a $2.00 gift was given by Gordon Lefrooth. The Center furnished the yarn and Mrs. Gustafson knitted a scarf. Three door prizes were given away. Andrew and Polly Stallock were both lucky. Andrew received Easter twin bunny candies furnished by the Center and Polly received a tea strainer, given by Inga Johnson. Ella received a skein of wool yarn, given by Mabel Borsvold.

Criminal Justice System Reviewed

by Claude Chmiel
University News Service Writer

Stan Kano called it a "walk through," a chance to proceed slowly through the criminal justice system from arrest to trial to confinement to release.

It took the group three days to "walk through" the system, and at that it was much shorter than the process usually takes.

The program was called a "criminal justice system matrix," put on by HIRE, Inc., a social service organization helping industry recruit ex-offenders.

The pilot program, hosted by Project Newgate on the University of Minnesota's Minneapolis campus, had about 20 community, business and organizational people taking part.

The idea, according to Kano, director of HIRE, Inc., was for people to get some feeling of what a criminal offender goes through and the problems he faces when he re-enters the outside world.

Three days may seem like a long time (the program ran Thursday noon through Sunday noon) but there was barely time to gather a few impressions at each stop.

65 Per Cent Are Repeaters

At the Model Cities police precinct, a juvenile officer says, "We do our best to keep young people out of our criminal justice system, so they don't find out what a joke it is." He goes on to point out that there is 65 per cent recidivism among people arrested in that precinct—that is, 65 per cent of the people they arrest are being brought in for the second or third time or more.

At municipal court Friday morning, two girls are charged with shoplifting. The judge looks at their records and one is allowed to "serve time" within Operation DeNovo, another social service organization which provides an alternative to confinement.

problem, breaks down and starts to cry, saying "But I have too kicked it!"

The judge looks at her arrest and drug record and sees that she was carrying injection equipment when arrested. "She's not being honest with us," he comments.

Later, DeNovo director William Henschel says that the program doesn't like to deal with drug-dependency cases.

"About 75 per cent of the people who come into our program and work with us for six months have their cases dismissed when they return to court. Our counselors carry a small caseload so they are able to get to know and guide our participants, and we really don't have the time or resources to deal with drug cases."

Dinner Is Novel

Hennepin county court services probation officers have a much higher caseload, around 80 cases per counselor. The spokesmen say they have a relatively low recidivism rate, "But there are some people we just cannot reach. Part of this may be our image; after all, we are a captor-captive agency."

Dinner at the Minneapolis workhouse is a novel experience, if one only eats one meal there. "Just think," remarks one program participant, "how much would these hot dogs cost at a Twins game?"

Everything clangs at the workhouse, nothing soft is present to absorb sound. Sam speaks for several inmates, saying, "I'd probably prefer being at Stillwater or St. Cloud. There are better facilities there. Here, we don't even have a gym for exercise, nothing at all in the way of educational programs." Sam is doing 45 days for driving after revocation of his license, and will probably lose his parole from St. Cloud because of it.

Back at Newgate House, the program members have a chance to talk with some ex-offenders. Steve, a neatly dressed young man, is out for the second time, and determined to stay out.

"You Fall Into The Rut"

"But it's hard," he says quietly. "For the past few years my life has been highly structured. People told me when to get up, when to eat, when to work and when to go to bed. You learn to hate the routine, but it's hard not to fall into the rut, to let somebody else do your thinking for you.

"Then all of a sudden you're back in that unorganized world outside, and you have no idea what it's like."

At the Wilder Foundation group counseling project in St. Paul, they do have some idea what it's like. Some of the staff members are ex-offenders, and they team-counsel persons released from Ramsey county workhouse. "In effect," says Miriam Pew, the director, "we're in competition with criminal system probation programs, and our success with group and individual counseling is making them re-examine their own programs."

The Wilder foundation people have several humorous and dramatic stories to tell of their operation, but Dennis Chapman, a Newgate member assisting the walk-through, doesn't feel they have the only answer:

Which Comes First?

"At Wilder," says Dennis, "they feel that 'You change the attitude and the behavior will change.' At Newgate, it's 'Change the behavior and the attitude will change.' Speaking for myself, I feel Newgate is the better way." Newgate is a halfway house where an ex-offender can stay for six months after release. The university aids the educational process of the program with tuition grants.

Saturday morning's sunshine contrasts strongly with the dull stone colors of Stillwater state prison. There's a tour, but it doesn't tell one very much except, "You don't want to do anything to wind up in here, do you?"

Project retreat is an alternative, a community-based residential facility in St. Paul model cities where a person can learn something that will help him get along with society. But what about those people who don't want to get along with anyone?

The HIRE staff, mainly ex-offenders themselves, feel that a worthwhile job is the best therapy there is. "People—ordinary, everyday people—don't realize the different kinds of walls they build," says Stan Kano. "Everybody has his own hang-ups, and these wall an individual in to keep other people from finding out what those hang-ups are.

"Imagine then, the walls built by an ex-offender in his own mind, and the walls society has built against him. They may only exist in the mind, but they are very real. We're here to help break down those walls."

notes from the governor

I am concerned, as many Minnesotans are, with the continuing pattern of rail track abandonments in our state. For years such petitions have been routinely approved by the Interstate Commerce commission. Ten Minnesota track abandonment petitions are currently pending before that agency.

To deal with this problem, I have designated five key state government officials to serve as the governor's railroad abandonment study committee.

The chairman of this committee is Roger Baker, state economic development commissioner.

Other members are Michael Roberts, executive director of the public service department; Ray Lappegaard, commissioner of the department of highways; Jon Wefald, commissioner of the department of agriculture; and Gerald Christenson, director of the state planning agency.

This committee is empowered to investigate, evaluate and determine criteria for measuring the impact of railroad abandonments on the economic activity within the state.

The final objective of this undertaking will be to establish a state policy toward railroad abandonment that is practical, reasonable and equitable for all concerned.

At my request, the committee already has petitioned the ICC to intervene and protest new regulations which make it easier for railroads to abandon their lines.

On April 24, there will be hearings in Redwood Falls on the proposed abandonment of rail service between Sanborn and Wanda. I have asked Jon Wefald to personally represent me.

These hearings represent an important test in the fight against the disruption of service to communities which rely heavily on railroads to supply their farms and factories.

A reversal of this trend, which has resulted in the abandonment of more than 20,000 miles of railway since 1920, would, do much to bolster the economy of rural Minnesota.

minnesota discovery series

Department of Economic Development

There are many ways to enjoy the lovely Zumbro River, which threads a twisted path through southeast Minnesota. One can fish, canoe, enjoy historic sites, go birdwatching, or just loaf.

You can begin your driving tour of the river area at Zumbrota, where you can see the only covered bridge still existing in Minnesota. An entire park has been developed around this venerable structure, including camping and picnic areas and a pioneer village.

From there you can take Highway 60 to Mazeppa, Zumbro Falls and Millville. The population of these three communities combined is less than 1,000, but all are charming, well-kept villages that radiate an aura of sleepy, sunny afternoons, cane fishing poles and dandelion wine.

When you leave Zumbo Falls, take the gravelled township road that follows the river in a southeasterly direction. This four or five mile drive is rarely discovered by the traveller, yet provides some of the finest scenic beauty in that part of the state. Wild flowers and birds of all kinds, not to mention the picturesque river itself, will make you want to stop frequently.

This route joins County Road 11, near Jarrett. When you enter this hamlet, be careful to notice a group of erie sculptures huddled beneath a stand of planted spruce. This is the unfinished work of a departed citizen who wanted to construct a chapel of rock. What you see are fonts, arches and aisles, interspersed with flowers and greenery maintained by the people of Jarrett.

Less than two miles southwest of Jarrett is the little community of Hammond (pop 179). Here you can fill up with gas, get a haircut, eat a light lunch and buy groceries all in the same store.

At various points along County 11, which follows the river throughout, you will see cozy picnic areas dotting the banks. And if you have your fishing license, you can drop a line in the water while you have lunch.

There are many other attractions in the area that space does not allow for, such as the church at West Albany which contains some rather unique paintings; or the bustling little tavern at Dumfries which will make you wonder where all the people come from; or the creamery at Pine Island where you can pick up some fine cheese.

But these are things you can find yourself. Take a day or two and discover this part of the Zumbro River Valley.

Economic Stabilization

Questions and Answers

Internal Revenue Service

Q—Is there any specific size requirement for the sign that must be posted in a doctor's office announcing the availability and location of base price schedules?

A—No. Unlike institutional providers of health services, such as hospitals, which must post a sign at least 22" by 28", noninstitutional providers, such as doctors have no specific size requirement for the sign that announces the availability and location of base price schedules. However, the sign should be easily visible and easily read.

Q—Are sales by military commissaries exempt under economic stabilization regulations?

A—Yes. Sales by military commissaries which operate with appropriated funds are sales by the United States and are therefore exempt from the Economic Stabilization Program.

Q—May an employer continue to pay its employees wage increases in excess of the 5.5 per cent pay board standard, which were contracted for prior to Nov. 14, 1971, but deferred because of the freeze while a challenge to such increases is pending before the pay board?

A—Yes. So long as the wage increases were provided for in a contract that was existing prior to Nov. 14, 1971, the employer may continue to pay the employees at the increased rate during the period the increases are under challenge and until the pay board rules otherwise.

Q— Do landlords need approval from the Internal Revenue Service before increasing rent?

A— Aside from requests for exceptions to the rent regulations, landlords must obtain approval of rent increases in only one case. That is where the rent increase is based on a capital improvement not required by local law or the terms of a mortgage or deed of trust and 1½ per cent of the cost of the improvement allocable to the residence would result in an increase of over 10 per cent in the monthly rent. Approval should be obtained from the landlord's District Director of Internal Revenue.

Q— Will the import surcharge have to be refunded to customers at all levels of distribution?

A— No. The lifting of the import surcharge imposes no requirement that refunds be made. The surcharge paid on inventoried items is an allowable cost and may be considered in pricing.

Q— Are cost increases as a result of the revaluation of the dollar allowable?

A— A company may apply its base period markup to the inventoried cost of imported items plus transportation costs of such items. Since the cost of items added to a company's inventory may vary to reflect the revaluation of the dollar, there may be like items of inventory which differ in price, depending upon whether the company seeks to pass through the costs it paid as a result of the revaluation of the dollar. Tier I firms must prenotify before raising prices to reflect these revaluation costs.

Q— Can an employer take advantage of the Pay Board's exception for cost-of-living increases by giving his employees such increases any time he chooses?

A— No. Such a benefit is available only if the cost of living increase is pursuant to a generally accepted escalator formula. It cannot be subject merely to the whim of the employer. Moreover, such an exception would be subject to prenotification requirements for Category I wage and salary increases or to reporting requirements for Category II wage and salary increases.

Q— Are rental units in a multi-family dwelling in which the landlord resides exempt from rent controls if the landlord owns more than four such units in this building and another building?

A— No. Such units are not exempt if the landlord or members of his family own or have an interest, directly or indirectly, in more than an aggregate of four such units, or if the units are not rented for a term longer than month-to-month.

Q— Is an ambulance service considered a noninstitutional provider of health services under the stabilization regulations?

A— No. While an ambulance service may in fact provide health services, these services are incidental to its primary job—furnishing emergency transportation. Since ambulance services do not provide health services as their primary function, they may not be considered noninstitutional providers of health services under stabilization regulations. However, they would qualify as a service industry and would be governed by regulations applicable to services.

Let's Be Honest

Are the agricultural scientists' attempts to improve crop yield leading to disaster? Not according to Dr. Earl Butz, the new Secretary of Agriculture. Speaking before the Foundation for American Agriculture, Dr. Butz observed: "The plain truth is that the ecology of nature is pretty severe on man, and man is constantly trying to modify it. Let's be honest: God put the worm in the apple; man took it out. God put the potato bug on the potato; man took it off. God put the parasite in the pork; man took it out. How far back to Nature do our ecologists want to go?"

PLAY BY PLAY ON SPORTS

with Mike Lundgren

While St. James was the toast of the recent Minnesota state high school basketball tournament, region eight's entry, Littlefork Big Falls, was evidently the joke of the event.

Being the smallest school in the tournament naturally attracted attention, but the Vikings weren't even given a fighting chance in the state meet when the first headline appearing in the Minneapolis Tribune concerning the tournament read, "Is Littlefork headed for Big Falls?" The article more or less slammed Littlefork for winning the region eight title and denying the fabled Kurt Knoff an opportunity to play in Minneapolis.

After suffering a first round drubbing at the hands of a powerful Melrose team, the Vikings were again given adverse publicity when St. Paul Pioneer Press columnist Patrick Reusse said, "There were some excellent games those first two days, but there is something wrong with a system which allows a team such as Littlefork-Big Falls to get in the state tournament." Reusse continued, "The young men from Littlefork are fine people, I am sure. But it is a fact the team did not belong in the state tournament."

Reusse then advocated re-districting for the state because, as he put it, "A startling fact: Under the old (one class) system, Littlefork might have been in the eight-team field anyway because the only class A team in region eight is Bemidji and Littlefork might have beaten the Lumberjacks."

While we agree that Littlefork-Big Falls may not have been in the same class as St. James, Melrose and Howard Lake, we still take offense at the fact that Mr. Reusse insists on cutting down region eight basketball. There were four teams that could have represented region eight respectively in the state classic, including East Grand Forks, Crookston, Thief River Falls and Mentor.

It just happened that Littlefork-Big Falls capitalized on opportunities at the right time during district and region play and advanced into the tournament for the first time. Region eight may not have been able to boast of a powerhouse during the 1971-72 season, but that's no reason to completely re-align northwestern Minnesota; after all, wasn't it just last year that East Grand Forks placed a solid third in the state classic.

According to the Grand Rapids Herald, Itasca state junior college athletic director Jim Gabrielson declared that, "until some other sanctioned junior college player can show a better record, we are unofficially claiming that Ken Lawson is the national junior college individual scoring champion."

Lawson just may qualify for that honor as the freshman from Greenway led Itasca to the MJCAA and national junior college titles with an amazing 53 goals and 46 assists for a total of 99 points in 22 games. That averages out to an unbelievable 4.5 points per game.

City officials named Garretson, South Dakota's athletic and recreational park "Tandberg Field," honoring Elmer O. Tandberg for his many years of service to the Garretson community.

Tandberg is a 1917 graduate of Lincoln high school where he played football. Tandberg's name was included when LHS football coach George Hays picked an all-star team covering the school's first 15 years of competitive football.

Writing in the November 21, 1929 issue of the Times, coach Hays wrote, "Elmer Tandberg, without a dought, is the the most outstanding candidate for the end position (on the all-star team), playing spectacular football for the season of '16 and '17.

Out of the three most highly sought after high school hockey players in northwestern Minnesota during the 1970-71 season, Warroad's Alan Hangsleben made the biggest splash by far in collegiate hockey as the freshman defenseman was named the WCHA's rookie of the year and was also tabbled as an All-America selection for the University of North Dakota.

The remaining two members of the prize trio, defenseman Tim Schroeder of East Grand Forks and center Rob Harris of Roseau, elected to attend the University of Minnesota. Schroeder appeared in 11 games for the Gophers and collected one goal and three assists. Harris played in 19 games, but didn't collect any points.

Deer Hampered By Conditions In Some Areas

Warm daytime temperatures and freezing nights are forming a heavy crust on snow in the northern part of the state and making it difficult for deer to escape free running dogs, the Department of Natural Resources said today.

Chief enforcement officer Donald Fultz said field men report that dogs are prusuing deer by running over the surface of the crust while the sharp hooves of the deer break through.

The deer are frequently killed or so badly maimed by these attacks that they die a short time later. He said deer are often found dead without a mark on them, having been simply run to death from exhaustion.

He asked dog owners to keep their pets confined until the situation changes and warned that under the law, conservation officers are required to shoot any dog they sight chasing deer.

DNR Names New Game Supervisor

Roger Holmes, a career employee in the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources, had been named supervisor of game, it was announced today by Mike Casey, director of game and fish.

Holmes, a native of Duluth, has worked for the department all of his professional life. He has held various positions during his 14 years of state service, including the post of assistant supervisor of game.

He received a B.A. degree in zoology from the University of Minnesota in 1958 and completed another year of work specializing in wildlife management.

He joined the department in 1958 and was assigned to surveying and evaluating waterfowl type lakes and marshes. From 1962 to 1965 he served as assistant area game manager at Alexandria.

Casey said Holmes "has excelled in game management activities."

Department of Natural Resources reminded trappers today that it is illegal to use a snowmobile or all-terrain vehicle to check beaver and otter traps or to transport carcasses or pelts.

Minnesota's beaver season opened March 17 and the otter season will open April 16. Both seasons close April 30.

Licensed trappers with certain physical disabilities may apply to the commissioner of natural resources for a special permit to use a snowmobile or ATV for trapping purposes.

DNR Concerned Over Carp Breed In United States

White amur or grass carp is the latest fish to be touted by those lovers of exotic wildlife who appear committed to the conviction that anything "over there" is better than anything over here.

The Minnesota Department of Natural Resources isn't buying it.

Perhaps more than any other resource agency, the department has cause to remember the disastrous errors made in the past with un-researched fish stocking. It is saddled with the ubiquitous carp, a fish that has defied all efforts at eradication and now must be endured along with such other natural nuisances as the sea lamprey and white pine blister rust, both also 'imports'.

For those who have not heard, the amur or grass carp is a large plant eating fish native to northern China and Siberia. Its name is derived from the Amur river where it is common and which serves as the border between the two nations in the eastern sector.

Some time ago a few of the southern states in the U.S. began importing the fish and stocking them experimentally with the dual purpose of controlling excessive weed growth in lakes and streams and adding something to sport fishing. Now, many of the fisheries specialists attached to resource agencies in the south have gone into transports of enthusiasm over the fish and are urging other states to join them in stocking programs. They have also let it slip that "a few" of the fish have already escaped and found their way into the Mississippi River.

Given the amur's insatiable appetite for all manner of aquatic vegetation, fish and wildlife managers in the north are looking fearfully at their wild rice beds, stands of sago pondweed and other 'weeds', without which they know waterfowl and many species of fish cannot survive.

These plants provide food for ducks and serve as the habitat for those countless species of wrigglers, bugs and minnows vital to the food chain of the larger game fish.

An aquatic biologist from Minnesota who visited the south recently was given a demonstration of the eating habits of the amur by local fish experts. The amur was in a large tank and hay was pitchforked into the water for it to feed on. The huge carp rose slowly from the bottom of the tank and methodically chewed up great quantities of the material and then descended again to the bottom to digest its meal.

"It looked just like a farmer feeding his cattle," said the awed north country biologist.

Spring Brings Tire Hazards As Well As Robins

Motorists anxious to get out on the road now that warmer weather is here are reminded that while a robin may be the first sign of spring, the roads you have to drive on are usually the last signs of winter.

Snow, ice, salt and sand take a great toll on streets and highways. Potholes are not only numerous and a driving nuisance, but they are also hazardous.

"Drivers should remember they can do a lot of damage to their cars and especially to their tires when hitting chuck holes in the road," says Ross R. Ormsby, chairman of the tire industry safety council.

Obviously, a car striking a pothole, curb or an object in the road can suffer damage not only to the tire and wheel assembly balance, but also to the vehicle's alignment.

Safety specialists say that should a driver notice an extreme wear pattern on the outside edges of his tires, or a veering of the car when the brakes are applied, it is advisable he consult his dealer or garage about possible misalignment.

The damage resulting to a tire from sharply hitting holes in the road, curbs and general highway litter is often not visible. It could be internal and unrepairable. The driver might not know anything was wrong until the time he suffers sudden tire disablement, and that time is always the wrong time.

Heavy rainfall is another highway hazard normally associated with spring driving. It is especially dangerous to those drivers who insist on driving with bald tires. The council defines a tire as bald if its tread depth has worn to one-sixteenth inch or less in any two or more adjacent tread grooves. The risk of skidding, which is five to 10 times more likely with average tread depth on wet roads as on dry roads, is doubled with bald tires.

The best advice for the careful motorist is not only to pay attention to where he is driving, but give equal attention to what he is driving on.

"The tires on your car are the most important factor between you and the road," says Ormsby, "and the most important factor in tire safety and mileage is proper inflation."

An underinflated tire causes excessive wear, excessive heat build-up and excessive sidewall flexing. Underinflation decreases tire safety and increases tire costs.

"The force of impact between tires and stones or potholes increases sharply with speed. Modern tires are built to "take it," but there is a limit to what rubber and fabric will endure. If you want to avoid cuts, bruises and blowouts, slow down on bad roads and give your tires a chance."

RICHARD SAUER added to his height advantage with toe-stepping antics during a jump ball call in yesterday's faculty-student basketball game in the Knox gym. Milo Hemmesch faces the challenge of jumping against his principal while Pat Klemisch of the faculty and Pat Sabol of the student team watch.

WHAT THE student all-stars lacked in height, they made up for in desire as shown here when Peter Lee battled Don Hejlik for a loose ball during yesterday's Knox faculty-student basketball game. Gerald Gilbert of the student all-star squad gives Lee moral support on the play.

Seed Laboratory Receives Over 9,000 Samples

Over 9,000 seed samples have been received for germination and purity testing by the state seed laboratory of the Minnesota department of agriculture through March 17.

Tests completed indicate no serious germination problems for seed stocks Minnesota farmers intend to use for 1972 crop production, according to the laboratory supervisor, Clifford E. Christenson.

Last weekend was the cutoff on the calendar period Minnesota farmers are allowed up to six free tests of seeds for germination or purity or a combination of both. Such tests now through June 30 will require fees of 75 cents each for all germination tests and fees ranging from 75 cents on most field crop seeds to $4 for lawn grasses, to determine the purity of the seed samples.

Christenson estimated about half of the samples received to date were submitted by individual farmers, the other half by commercial seed firms.

Germination tests require a minimum of 200 seeds, grown in replicates of 100 in scientifically controlled heat, humidity and artificial sunlight. The germination period under laboratory conditions takes five to seven days and requires manual counts of each sample to determine the percentage of live plants the farmer can expect from each seed lot. Many of the replicative tests use 400 seeds.

The state seed laboratory is a year-around operation in the agronomy services division. If Minnesota has a normal spring season the laboratory expects to process an additional 1,500 to 2,000 samples volunteered by farmers and the seed industry. A late spring or conditions that require replanting could significantly increase test traffic.

In additon to the volunteered samples, state and county agricultural inspectors in connection with the seed inspection program under Frank Fanberg, supervisor of the seed inspection section of agronomy services annually collect up to 6,000 samples of seed lots in Minnesota commerce for laboratory testing to assure purchasers the seed is the qualtiy of germination and purity specified on the required label.

State Removes 2 Million Feet Of Snow Fence

Certainly a harbinger of spring, two million feet of snow fence put up by the state highway department early last November are now about to come down all over Minnesota, according to Frank Kuhfeld, state maintenance operations engineer. As many of the fences are on private property, the department wants to take them down before the ground thaws, making them inaccessiable by truck in many cases.

Some of them are stored on the same farms where they stood all winter, a neighborly accommodation not uncommon in rural areas. Others are hauled off to highway truck stations or gravel pits, perhaps to permanent retirement.

Since 1965 there has been a reduction of over a quarter of a million feet in the department's snow fence inventory. Scrapped fencing has not been replaced because improved highway design and planting of natural 'snow fence' along highways are gradually rendering the old red slat fences obsolente.

These natural snow fences are trees and shrubs like Russian olive, giant honeysuckle and Colorado spruce, among others. They are actually multipurpose plantings, selected to provide food and shelter for wildlife and to gladden the eye of the passing motorist as well.

It will be in the form of an Easter party and we will also have handicraft. All members are urged to attend.

Mrs. Melvin Sorenson, Mrs. Roy Nordby and Mrs. Norman Newton served birthday lunch at Senior Citizens on Friday, March 17th, in honor of Mrs. Sorenson's 87th birthday. Ray Sorenson, Mrs. Roy Nordby and Mr. and Mrs. Norman Newton, Cathy, Dannie and Lisa were visitors at the Melvin Sorenson home Friday evening for the Sorenson's birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. Dale Newton, Jeff and Kristi and Mrs. Flossie Newton of Thief River Falls brought birthday cake to Mrs. Norman Newton on Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Sorenson also visited there.

Conventions Hold Political Interest

Humphrey, 47 uncommitted and one for Sen. Muskie. The sub caucus method of electing district and state delegates was used to allow proportional representation by the major groups at the county convention.

District and state delegates from the Humphrey group are Sollom, Mrs. Stromberg and Don Sollom with Mrs. Evelyn Berg, Charles Kotaska and Oscar Houske as alternates.

Uncommitted delegates are Merle Kruschke, Peder Foruseth and Harlan Mickelson with alternates including Wanda Mercil, Richard Fugere and Jay Forney.

Chairman Sollom informed the convention that the Humphrey delegates with the majority of votes could have "adopted a winner-take-all attitude and swept the slate." However, election results showed the concept of proportionate representation carried over to the election of county officers.

Elected in addition to Sollom and Mrs. Stromberg were Mrs. Evelyn Berg, secretary, Harlan Mickelson, treasurer, Mark Schug, first vice chairman, Don Hagen, second vice chairman; Dan Sullivan, third vice chairman, Mrs. James Fremstad, first vice chairwoman, Mrs. H. H. Williams, second vice chairwoman, Sylvia Jensen, third vice chairwoman; and Bernard Myers, state central committeeman with Jay Forney as alternate.

The convention determined that 11 members-at-large of the executive committee be elected by sub-caucus instead of appointment as in previous years. Elected by the Liberal Coalition were Calvin Lindberg, Don Toulouse, Kayle Brandt, Bruce Halbasch and Jo Schug. Humphrey supporters named were Henry Panek, Charles Kotaska, Cornelius Appelman, Korydon Chervestad, Joyce Peterson and Dana Stromberg.

Thirty-two resolutions were adopted, according to Mrs. Beverly Grafel who served as convention secretary.

A resolution introduced "that possession, use and sale of marijuana be legalized and its distribution controlled in a similar way to that of alcohol, while continuing the expanding and upgrading of local, state and nation-wide programs aimed at discouraging its use" was read at the convention.

In place of the above resolution, a substitute motion was adopted. It provided that "we go on record as being in favor of the adoption of the recommendations of the recent findings of President Nixon's commission on marijuana."

A resolution on abortion was amended and then adopted. It provides that abortion be considered to be a medical operation requiring only the consent of the female involved, but is to be administered "only after she has received professional counsel which outlines the viable alternatives to abortion and that she is also counseled in the psychological, medical and social consequences of her decision."

Other resolutions provided for:

Amending the social security act to provide monthly benefits based on the best 10 years of earnings and increase personal and beneficiary benefits;

Urging congress to re-write federal income tax laws to eliminate tax loopholes and create greater equity;

Support of better workmen's compensation laws;

Creation of federally-financed health insurance and federal control of medical facilities;

Rights of Americans not to be forced to fight "in an immoral and undeclared war which does not directly threaten national security";

Support of the family farm and separation of the Department of Agriculture from service to both the producer and the consumer;

Support of tuition-free education for grades K-14;

Giving complete control of the Bureau of Indian affairs to tribal and native association leaders;

Abolition of the property and sales taxes in favor of a graduated income tax and excess corporate profits tax;

Sale of all food products in returnable dispensers and establishment of state recycling plants;

Demand that federal court decisions on busing be implemented to achieve school desegregation and improve the quality of education for all students;

Establishment of federal support of free day-care centers;

Taxing of property not used for religious activities by non-profit religious organizations;

Support of total immediate and unconditional withdrawal of all American forces from Southeast Asia and endorsement of assemblages for peace on April 22 in New York City and Los Angeles;

Initiation of massive programs by the DLF to find a cure for cancer and eliminate venereal disease, and initiate research programs to determine the effects of present practices on the environment;

Support the bid of Merle Kruschke to be a delegate to the national convention;

A massive publicly-funded campaign to eliminate venereal diseases within three years;

Equal treatment for full-time college and vocational students in regard to unemployment compensation;

Meeting of the county executive committee on a monthly basis; and chairwoman; Donald Stewart, Robert Bredeson and Rick Contos; alternates are Dr. Donald Goodrich, Kim Murphy, Larry Fonnest and Carl Anderson.

State delegates are Dr. Brown, Mrs. Worth, Ed Turenne, Patrick Klemisch and James Winjum; alternates are Roger Worth, Dr. Arnold Berg, Stanley N. Mortenson, Wallace Tieman and Donald Stewart.

Mrs. Clarice Galliher was elected county vice chairwoman to fill a vacancy in that position.

Dr. David Brown was elected permanent chairman of the convention with Mrs. Donald Stewart serving as convention secretary. Stanley Mortenson chaired the rules committee with Rick Contos in charge of the credentials report and Dale Folger chairing the resolutions committee.

Strong interest was expressed in the plight of the farmer and several resolutions called for action for assistance to rural America. One resolution adopted asked for increase of 25 per cent in the loan rate and cash payment on grain and another asked that the welfare of farmers be considered in consumer legislation.

Education also came in for discussion in several matters. The convention went on record in support of the MEA in establishment of professional standards board and professional practices commission. It also, by majority vote, expressed support for maintaining present teacher tenure laws.

Endorsement was given to the Overgaard-Sabelkoul proposal for complete disclosure of campaign funds, and the 1973 legislature was encouraged to adopt the proposal.

Convention support was also given to a resolution calling for lowering the majority age to 18 for everything currently restricted to age 21.

A resolution opposing abortion on demand was presented and discussed but no resolution was adopted. Convention delegates also affirmed absolute opposition to any further forms of government firearms control.

Rep. Haaven, in his address to the convention, said that the House committee on agriculture is stacked with members from cotton and tobacco-producing states and that Midwest farmers can not expect equal treatment until laws are changed to remove the seniority system now adhered to in the Congress.

In criticism of incumbent Congressman Robert Bergland, Rep. Haaven said the Congressman speaks conservatively when at home in his district and votes quite differently when in Washington. He questioned the mix of farmers and labor in the opposition party and noted that COPE, labor's political action arm, had given Bergland a near perfect rating for his vote record on labor legislation.

Ag Commissioner Is Critical of Program

"While talking the need for fair farm prices the U.S. Secretary of Agriculture is actually playing an economy-robbing 'shell game' with the nation's biggest and most efficient industry," Minnesota agriculture commissioner Jon Wefald charged today.

"And now the President, Butz' boss, has indicated clearly where his administration stands on fair farm income when he told his newly appointed woman economic advisor, 'now get those meat prices down,'" Commissioner Wafald added.

"Recent decisions made by Secretary Butz have cost Minnesota farmers alone upwards of $250 million in lost income and virtually assured that the average farm family income will remain at or below the poverty level, 25 per cent below average urban income.

"Secretary Butz has used almost every tool at his disposal against the farmer instead of for the farmer and for the economic health of the rural community," Commissioner Wefald declared, citing that farm prices are at nearly the lowest level in 40 years, 73 per cent of parity.

Commissioner Wefald said Secretary Butz "added insult to injury when he froze dairy price support at the 1971 level and at the same time increased meat import quotas." He also cited the Secretary for "having shot down the attempt by Congress to raise minimum wheat and feed grain price supports, for denying farmers advance payments to participate in the 1972 wheat and feed grain programs, and for rejecting repeated appeals for an urgently needed potato diversion program in the Minnesota-North Dakota Red River Valley.

Commissioner Wefald said Butz's opposition to increased wheat and feed grain price supports that actually would have only pegged the grain price guarantee at barely over 60 per cent of parity cost Minnesota farmers about $125 million.

"The dairy support price freeze means that our farmers, with higher production cost in the new marketing year beginning April 1 will be guaranteed, according to some economists, only about 72 per cent of parity in the coming months. The $4.93 per hundred-weight, when it was set a year ago, represented 85 per cent of parity. The freeze decision costs Minnesota farmers $31.7 million measured against 85 per cent parity or $53.8 million if Butz blitzes Minnesota Senator Walter Mondale's current bill to raise the dairy price support to 90 per cent of parity.

"The decision by Secretary Butz to follow the lead of his predecessor, Clifford Hardin, in refusing to authorize advance payments on signup to farmers who will participate in the 1972 wheat and feed grain programs denies Minnesota farmers upwards of $45 million in capital they desperately need to implement this year's food production.

"Grain prices are still lower than they have been in 20 to 30 years. Production costs and farm debt are the highest in history. And the farmer is being forced to borrow money at interest rates still among the highest since the Civil War to buy the seed fertilizer, livestock, feed, equipment, fuel and make the physical improvements necessary to produce this year's crops," Commissioner Wefald declared.

"Secretary Butz's increase in the meat import quota," he continued, "represents another $62 million loss for Minnesota livestock producers. That's our nine per cent share of national beef production computed at average 1971 cattle prices that it would take to equal the increased amount of red meat imports for the next year."

He explained that the import quota for red meats, 1.24 billion pounds, represents 2.67 billion pounds of live weight cattle, or roughly 2.67 million 1,000-pound steers. Commissioner Wefald said the import quota for next year is over 40 per cent greater than Minnesota's total beef production in 1971.

"The real irony of the increased meat imports is that while it represents the loss of some $689 million to our nation's livestock industry, federal economists admitted there will be no actual benefits to consumers. Imported beef will be used to cheapen and lower the quality of hamburger and other processed meats, but to the advantage of the food service industry and not in lower prices for the consumer," he added.

Commissioner Wefald insisted that "Secretary Butz should back his pleadings for fair family farm prices and elevation of family farm income from the poverty level with the actions he has at his legal disposal: (1) raise support prices to 90 per cent of parity; (2) authorize advance payment of half the 1972 agricultural programs cooperator fees; (3) actively oppose the entry of conglomerates into agriculture by supporting the family farm act of 1972; and (4) actively support a program of collective bargaining for the nation's farmers.

Grey Snow Mold Can Be Expected Through April

Weather conditions favorable to the continuing development of grey snow mold in Minnesota can be expected until the end of April, says Ward C. Stienstra, University of Minnesota extension plant pathologist.

When the soil temperature is above 64 degrees Fahrenheit, reseed or grow grass in the damaged areas rather than attempt to control the disease. When favorable weather conditions exist, brushing or raking the matted turf infection centers will facilitate faster surface drying and quicker plant recovery, he advises.

Small areas destroyed by the disease can be patched by cutting out the dead, diseased spot and replacing it with new sod. Damaged areas may contain enough living grass so that they will fill in after several weeks, but dead areas, often six to 10 inches in diameter, may require two months to recover.

At slightly above freezing temperatures, fungus can invade turfgrass tissue. Damage under snow cover during the fall can range from only grass blade spoilage to complete destruction of the grass plant.

The parasitic activity of grey snow mold ceases when the ground is frozen. When the snow is melting in the spring and the temperature between the snow and the soil is above freezing, fungus activity resumes and the area of damage will enlarge, the plant pathologist adds.

Further grey snow mold damage can occur when the turf remains moist and the temperature does not exceed 64 degrees Fahrenheit. Drizzly, cloudy and cool spring weather is conducive to enlargement of the infection center.

A characteristic halo of greyish-white growth develops at the advancing edge of the dead area in the turf. The halo, initially a fluffy white mold, soon becomes grey and can form a crust on the injured turf.

Applying nitrogen fertilizers in the northern states in late summer or early fall can promote the development of grey snow mold. The mold may be minimized by not allowing turf to grow at a fast rate going into winter.

Keeping turf cut at the recommended height until snow falls will help prevent a mat of grass from forming under the snow cover. Practices that reduce the accumulation of thatch will help reduce the severity of grey snow mold damage, since the mold begins to develop to the thatch.

Once Local Girl Plays Role In Phoenix Theater

Lois Rogan, formerly of Thief River Falls and daughter of Bruce and Maureen Prichard and granddaughter of W. W. Prichard of Thief River Falls, appeared in William Inge's "The Last Pad", one-half of the opening production of the Southwest Ensemble Theatre (S.E.T.).

S.E.T. is a newly-formed professional resident theatre located in Phoenix, Ariz. The performance ran March 23 through March 26.

Inge, the Pulitzer Prize winning playwright of such plays as "Picnic," "Bus Stop," "Come Back, Little Sheba" and the screenplay for "Splendor in the Grass," is slated to attend S.E.T.'s world premiere performance of his latest play. Also on the bill is Leonard Melfi's "Birdbath." Both productions will be staged by S.E.T.'s artistic director, Lionel Keith.

CHARLES BEDARD, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Bedard, Thief River Falls, will receive his bachelor of arts degree at the end of the winter quarter at Bemidji state college. He majored in sociology with a minor in mass communications. Bedard's degree will be presented at commencement exercises on June 4.

Freeway Crashes Less Severe Than Other Mishaps

Freeway crashes, in addition to being substantially fewer per unit of travel, are somewhat less severe than the general run of traffic accidents, despite the higher speeds prevailing on the interstate system.

This is the conclusion of the Minnesota department of public safety on the basis of a comparative study of all 1970 accidents.

In that year, the fatality rate on the interstates, based on units of travel, was one fourth that on all Minnesota roads; and fatalities occurred in half of one per cent of all interstate crashes. Fatal accidents on all Minnesota roads numbered just under one per cent of the total accidents. Personal injury accidents numbered 23 per cent of all interstate accidents and 25 per cent of accidents on all roads.

"Any comparison of causal factors in accidents on interstate routes and other roadways is distorted by the fact that some accident causes are all but eliminated or sharply reduced by interstate design and regulations. The low incidence of pedestrian, bicycle and motor scooter accidents are examples.

"However, a comparison does show that the higher average speed on the freeways makes this factor decidedly more important on these roads. It is blamed for 15 per cent of all interstate accidents, and for 8.6 per cent of accidents on all roadways. However, it is less important as a factor in fatal accidents on the freeway. The importance of vehicle maintenance when using the interstates is dramatically illustrated by comparative figures. Vehicle failure was blamed in 2.3 per cent of interstate accidents and 1.4 per cent of all accidents."

"What is Easter, Mommy?"

"Is it the time when bunnies get born?" I looked at my little daughter, appalled.

Did she really think of Easter in terms of sugared eggs, fluffy bunnies and pretty candies? Had I given her the impression that for grownups Easter is a time for new clothes, flowered hats and fragrant corsages? Surely, at some time, I must have told her the real story of Easter. Or had I?

I was really flabbergasted at my negligence — it took my little daughter to make me realize it. I dismissed my house chores and sat down right then to tell her the glorious Easter story of the Resurrection. I told her what hope this event brought for all of mankind — with its promise of eternal life.

I might add that the next week I enrolled my daughter in church school. And my husband and I started attending church again. We haven't missed a Sunday since.

"We shall see no abatement in the spiraling crime rate until responsible persons in every community act promptly to support law enforcement. Citizens must be the eyes and ears of the police — and, yes, at times, lend them a hand. . . The terrifying rise of criminality has created a genuine state of national emergency. The danger to everyone's personal safety increases by the month. Avalanches of terrorism cannot be tolerated in a society of free men. We must win the war against crime." — J. Edgar Hoover

Something Relevant

Roger H. Wingate, manager of the loss prevention department of a major insurance company, makes a pertinent point when he says that driver education has simply not kept pace with the kind of driving decisions needed in almost every mile driven daily. His opinion is highly relevant to our modern day.

Wingate's company is promoting a program which will teach students how to handle practically every type of emergency situation by doing it over and over again until they learn to maintain control. While learning control, they will also learn the best means to avoid the situation in the first place.

Speaking at the National Press club, Wingate pointed out that driver education training simply can not do the job as it is now taught.

He noted that the current required six hours of training behind the wheel is not sufficient for the young driver, particularly to develop emergency driving abilities.

Too often, he said, the youthful driver's first experience with an emergency situation is the real thing. Unfortunately, for too many it is also the last as shown by the fact that young drivers (ages 15-25) have the highest percentage of automobile fatalities of any age group.

The answer for driver educators could be the use of multi-phase training programs, Wingate said. His company's program will consist of three distinct driver education aids. These will be a permanent driver training facility at the firm's research center, an expansion of the company's skid control and dicision driving programs and the addition of an emergency driving school.

"You can talk about emergency situations and what to do. You can simulate these situations on film but there is no replacement for the real experience," he said.

How Much Is Half?

According to a release in the Minnesota Federation of Teachers "Action" publication, the American Federation of Teachers will, for the first time in its history, endorse candidates for national office in this year's election.

The teachers' union also plans a fund to be divided between the union and the AFL-CIO committee on political education. There may be some question about the division of funds, for it seems that the AFT has a little problem in mathematics and language.

For instance, one paragraph in the story notes that, "Selden also announced that the AFT plans a $1,000,000 fund, nearly half of which has already been collected."

Later the article mentions a "campaign chest of $1 million to aid pro-education candidates in this year's election. Nearly $350,000 has already been raised or pledged, most of it by rank-and-file teachers who are giving from $4 to a day's pay to the drive."

It would seem to us that "nearly $350,000" would be closer to a third than half a million, and that money pledged has not actually been collected.

But if you want to know if "nearly $350,000" is the same as "nearly half" of a million dollars, try applying the same percentage when figuring time and a half for overtime pay.

Letter To Nader

An Eagle Lake housewife wrote what she called "An Open Letter to Nader" in a recent issue of the Dairyman's Digest. The letter in a long one and we quote parts of it here for it takes a realistic position in regard to the farm situation:

Dear Mr. Nader:

I read with great interest the article telling about a consumer coalition led by you to overturn an increase in the government's support price of milk.

First of all, why single out the dairy farmer? What about all the other interests and organizations, such as labor unions, that lobby with far more pressure and with far greater amounts of money?

All our costs keep rising. Why shouldn't we have a raise? We have to become four per cent more efficient just to break even, to say nothing of having more money to invest in our business or to have something left over to have a better life for our families. You talk about poverty and poor housing in the big cities; there are many farm children who do not have decent food or clothing and who have a cold house to sleep in. Poverty in rural America is a very real thing.

Any raise in the price of milk or a raise on any farm product is much needed or the nation may find itself with a diminishing food supply and then prices will rise because of dire necessity.

A farmer has more than a dinner pail invested.

Also, I believe a farmer is entitled to a higher wage because of all the hard work and long hours that he, his wife, and their children put in. It takes four hours a day for one of us to do the milking, not including feeding, cleaning, bedding or taking any time for problems that might arise, say nothing of field work from dawn to after dark during the field season.

Mr. Nader, if you're helping the consumer, just who do you think the consumer is? The farmer is the biggest consumer of steel in his machinery, cars, trucks and machine repairs. We are great consumers of clothing. My husband, son and I wear out stacks of jeans, gloves, coveralls, boots, rubbers and jackets each year. We buy groceries like we were running a small hotel. If you load 700 bales of hay in an afternoon, you need more than a hotdog for lunch. I fix the men three and four big meals a day.

We buy concentrate, fertilizer, liquid nitrogen, gas, oil and other petroleum products, lumber, paint, shingles and other building supplies, machine repairs, veterinarian supplies, cleaning aids, etc. The list is endless.

So I feel, Mr. Nader, that when you picked on the dairy farmer or any farmer for that matter, you've picked on the wrong guy. You may think the farmer isn't important. He only produces your food(a human's first need) and he also buys your products.

Back To Poetry

Following editorial is from the Murray County Herald at Slayton:

One cannot help but respect the man and admire his personality, but as far as the presidency of the United States is concerned Eugene McCarthy would be using his time more judiciously if he returned to poetry. The former Minnesota senator has no chance for the nomination or election.

He points to the Illinois primary elections on March 21 as a key to his political future. It doesn't take much of a political prognosticator to foresee that whatever key emerges from that particular primary election, it won't open any doors for Gene McCarthy.

Minnesota seems to have a habit of spawning candidates with little or no hopes of election. The Republicans had Harold Stassen for generations. The Democrats now have McCarthy. He hasn't reached the "generation" status yet but at the present rate probably will do so in the foreseeable future.

McCarthy is a most personable fellow, but his political future is behind him. He betrayed the people who elected him to congress four years ago when he completely abandoned his senatorial duties after failing to gain the Democratic presidential nomination. Anyone in high office who would react the way he did is not deserving of the consideration of Americans of either political belief.

The former senator should quit wasting his time and the money of his backers in this losing cause. The only way he could possibly win would be if the congress should decide that the only Americans eligible to vote would be UNDER rather than OVER the age of eighteen.

The Bridge Builder

As often happens when quotations are tossed about, the author of the following poem is unknown. We appreciate the thought expressed in it, however, and present it here for consideration by our readers:

"Old man," said a fellow pilgrim near,
"You're wasting your strength with building here;
Your journey will end with ending day;
You never again must pass this way.
You have crossed the chasm deep and wide,
Why build a bridge at even tide?"
The builder lifted his gray head.
"Good friend, in the path I have come," he said
"There followeth after me today
A youth whose feet must pass this way.
This chasm that has been naught to me
To that fair-haired youth may a pitfall be.
He, too, must cross in the twilight dim.
Good friend, I am building that bridge for him."

THE CRUCIFIXION by Richard Hook from Taylor's [illegible] Story Book

THE CRUCIFIXION

As the crowd led Jesus away to his death, Simon of Cyrene, who was just coming into Jerusalem from the country, was forced to follow, carrying Jesus' cross. Great crowds trailed along behind, and many grief stricken women. Two others, criminals, were led out to be executed with him at a place called "The Skull." There all three were crucified...Jesus on the center cross, and the two criminals on either side. "Father, forgive these people," Jesus said, "for they don't know what they are doing." And the soldiers gambled for his clothing, throwing dice for each piece. The crowd watched. And they laughed and scoffed. "He was so good at helping others," they said, "let's see him save himself if he is really God's Chosen One, the Messiah." The soldiers mocked him, too, by offering him a drink...of sour wine. And they called to him, "If you are the King of the Jews, save yourself!" A signboard was nailed to the cross above him with these words: "This is the King of the Jews." One of the criminals hanging beside him scoffed, "So you're the Messiah, are you? Prove it by saving yourself...and us, too, while you're at it!" But the other criminal protested. "Don't you even fear God when you are dying? We deserve to die for our evil deeds, but this man hasn't done one thing wrong." Then he said, "Jesus, remember me when you come into your Kingdom." And Jesus replied, "Today you will be with me in Paradise. This is a solemn promise." By now it was noon, and darkness fell across the whole land for three hours, until three o'clock. The light from the sun was gone...and suddenly the thick veil hanging in the Temple split apart. Then Jesus shouted, "Father, I commit my spirit to you," and with those words he died. When the captain of the Roman military unit, handling the executions saw what had happened, he was stricken with awe before God and said, "Surely this man was innocent."

Citizens Group Will Meet With National Guard

Members of the Thief River Falls National Guard citizens committee will hold an organizational meeting Sunday to plan future activities. Local committeemen are Orville M. Hanson, A. E. Jacobson, Ellsworth Jorgenson, Edward L. Keifenheim, Edgar A. Naplin, Arnold A. Narverud, David K. Strong and Gerald A. Wigness.

Committee members are invited to eat with the troops at 12 noon at the armory and attend scheduled training. One or two members of Crookston's citizens committee may also attend.

Unit training will begin at 9 a.m. with CBR (chemical, biological, radiological) classes until 11 a.m. From then until noon instruction will be given in first aid. From 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. the troops will work on tactical movement and counter-ambush technqiues.

Function of the citizens committee is to act as liaison between the local National Guard unit and the community. It is hoped that they will suggest community action projects by which the local National Guard unit benefit the area and people in it. Assisting with safety and-or instructional programs or cleaning parks or playgrounds are some of the things that units have done before. Anyone who has a project suggestion may contact the National Guard unit or one of the members of the citizens committee.

Invite Hobbyists To Exhibit At Scout Exposition

Hobbyists wishing to exhibit their hobbies for the public as part of the annual Boy scout exposition, are invited to contact Art Heinze, general chairman of the event. He may be contacted by phone at 681-1624 or letter at 109 Maple av. S. in Thief River Falls.

The annual scout exposition and hobby show will be held Sunday, April 30, at the national guard armory in Thief River Falls. Cub scouts, Boy scouts and Explorer scouts will compete for ribbon honors in showing scout skills, but there will be no competition among hobbyists and all exhibiting will received participation ribbons.

While the scout exposition draws a large crowd each year, the hobby show provides added interest and gives area residents an opportunity to show their skills and meet people with mutual interests, Heinze said.

During the exposition, which will be open from 2 to 6 p.m., the scouts will be demonstrating and exhibiting various scout activities and skills. The public will be able to see a revue of scouting activities at one time under one roof.

Scouting units in the Pen-Ro-Shall district expected to participate are from Thief River Falls, Warroad, Roseau, Greenbush, Grygla, St. Hilaire, Middle River, Newfolden, Karlstad, Bagley and Holt. There will also be approximately 80 boys from Canada having three displays at the exposition.

Family tickets will go on sale by Boy scouts and Cub scouts beginning April 8 and will cost $1 per family ticket. The exposition is sponsored by the Lake Agassiz Boy scout council and Thief River Falls Jaycees.

Archie Wilson Will Head PCA For Coming Year

'71 Police Activity Revealed In Report

by Dennis Johnson
Times Reporter

Juvenile offenses and disorderly conduct increased in 1971 from 1970 levels at a rate which was out of proportion to other categories in the 1971 report of the Thief River Falls police department, released by Chief Roland E. Waller. Juvenile offenses increased by about 56 per cent and disorderly conduct by about 61 per cent.

Caution should be applied to conclusions drawn from the statistics, however, because of changes in the reporting system. In 1971 there were laws to be enforced which hadn't even been passed in 1970, such as the restriction on studded tires. In 1971, one offense was removed from the lists. That was the criminal charge of drunkeness.

There are several categories in which the offenses do not change much. One of them is parking violations. In 1971 there were 7,136 parking tickets issued. That is an increase of about 17 per cent from 6,008 in 1970. In addition, there were 998 tickets written for offenses which were taken into county or juvenile courts. That is an increase from 751 or about 33 per cent.

Traffic offenses showing substantial increases were driving while under the influence, open bottle in a motor vehicle and failing to stop for a stop sign or light. They increased by about 139 per cent, 122 per cent and 86 per cent, respectively. The following list of traffic violations shows the number of violations for which citations were written in 1971 with the 1970 figure in parentheses.

Driving while under the influence, 86 (36); Reckless driving, 13 (9); Careless driving, 68 (60); Speeding, 231 (201); Too fast for conditions, 18 (12); Fail to yield right of way to a vehicle, 68 (64); Fail to yield right of way to a pedestrian, 2 (0); Through a stop sign or light, 123 (66); Improper turns or U-turns, 26 (10); and Fail to stop or give information at an accident, 23 (15);

Also Open bottle in a motor vehicle, 70 (36); No drivers license or expired license, 38 (29); Drive after suspension, revocation or cancellation of drivers license 15 (10); Improper registration, 59 (86); Improper passing, 5 (1); Follow too close, 9 (1); Permit unlawful operation, 6 (6); Littering, 6 (3); Fail to stop for an officer, 8 (7); and Driving over the centerline, 19 (6);

Also illegal use of plates, 7 (4); Drive after midnight (under 17 years of age), 8 (8); No snowmobile registration, 1 (1); Illegal equipment, 13 (4); Vision obstructed, 2 (2); Operate cycle without a helmet, 4 (4); Not displaying a slow moving vehicle sign when required, 1 (1); Driving on the wrong side of the roadway, 1 (4).

In addition to the offenses listed above there were several in 1971 which were not shown in 1970. They are:

Improper load, 1; No lights on a snowmobile, 2; No chauffeurs license, 1; Drive with studded tires when restricted, 2; Unsafe change of course, 2; Drive without headlights at night, 1.

Non-traffic offenses were also taken into court. There are several changes in this group which effect the total. Drunkenness was responsible for 67 cases in 1970 but no longer reported as a crime starting July 1, 1971. By that time 31 people had been charged under the old law. The drug situation also made a change. No cases for possession of marijuana were listed in 1970 but four cases were brought into court in 1971. Valid comparisons can only be made when the same offenses are used from both years. Using that criterion the following list shows an approximate increase of 56 per cent.

Theft, 19 (19); Disorderly conduct, 34 (22); Drinking by a minor, 153 (77); Possession of beer or liquor by a minor, 25 (24); Furnish or sell beer or liquor to a minor, 8 (2); Assault, 13 (8); Allow a dog to run loose, 16 (1); and Warrants issued for parking violations which were not answered, 27 (30).

The offenses from 1971 which were not listed for 1970 are: Possession of marijuana, 4; Auto theft, 4; Escape from custody, 1;

$1,860,000 Paid To Soo Line RR Employees Here

During 1971 the Soo Line railroad paid wages totaling nearly $1,860,00 to employees in Thief River Falls, according to figures released by the company.

The total figure represents wages paid during the year to 165 full or part-time employees at this major terminal in the Soo's seven-state area.

Soo Line, which achieved its best year in 1971 in terms of revenues and profit, paid out more than $58 million in wages. In addition, the company expended approximately $8.5 million for fringe benefits to the more than 5,000 people employed during 1971.

"The Soo's contribution to the overall economy of the Thief River Falls area can be measuredd in terms of more than direct payroll alone," President Leonard H. Murray emphasized. "For example, during the year a capital improvement budget of more than $10 million went for new equipment and facilities to provide better services for the Soo's customers.

"We look forward to 1972 with good expectation that the economy will continue to show improvement and our level of traffic will increase. To this end," Murray said, "We have already committed more than $10 million, including five locomotives and 320 freight cars and for improvements to our track and other railroad facilities. As a part of this program, we expect to increase new rail installations substantially over last year's program.

"Thief River Falls serves as a hub for traffic moving to and from Canada as well as North Dakota The agency became a regional service center during 1971, bringing improved service to customers throughout northwestern Minnesota."

Kaushagen-Paradis Vows Said At Brooks

Marriage vows were exchanged by Miss Mary Jane Kaushagen and Roger Lee Paradis on Saturday, March 11, at 5 p.m. at St. Joseph's Catholic church at Brooks.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Gordon A. Kaushagen of Thief River Falls and Mr. and Mrs. Ronald J. Paradis of Brooks.

Rev. J. Philip Suehr officiated at the double ring ceremony witnessed by 300 relatives and friends. Joe Vallet, great uncle of the bride, presided at the organ. For the processional, he played "O Promise Me" and the recessional, "The Wedding March", the theme from "A Midsummer Nights Dream" by Mendelsohn. Vocalist was Mrs. Dick W. Olson of St. Cloud, sister of the bride. She sang, "We've Only Just Begun" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Arrangements of gladioli, orange mums and greens graced the altar. Apricot orange taffeta ribbons with white bells marked the pews.

The bride was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father. She was attired in a white nylon organza gown with sheer sleeves and floor-length skirt that flowed back into a graceful train. Lace trim edged the Victorian collar, wide cuffs and bordered the skirt. Her bouffant veil of nylon illusion, edged with miniature daisy trim, was held by a pearl-edged Camelot headpiece of sheer nylon enhanced with lace daisies. She carried a bouquet of white roses, interspersed with tangerine roses and centered with a single orchid.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Dick Olson of St. Cloud, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Kristi Kaushagen of Thief River Falls, sister of the bride; Carol Paradis of Brooks, sister of the groom; and Joy Kaushagen of Thief River Falls, sister of the bride. They wore identical, floor-length, empire fashioned gowns in apricot orange with long, full sleeves. Lace trim complemented the bodices. Their headpieces were matching orange hats and each wore a choker with a cameo jewel. They carried over the arm bouquets composed of a large long-stemmed mum surrounded by carnations, tied with large white ribbon bows.

Wearing a similar gown, but in white, was Shannon Olson of St. Cloud, a niece of the bride, who served as flower girl. She carried a basket of flowers, matching the flowers worn in her hair.

Ring bearer was Lonnie Paradis of Brooks, brother of the groom. He was attired like the men of the wedding party, in a black tuxedo with a white ruffled skirt and an orange carnation boutonniere. He carried the rings on a heart shaped pillow.

Attending the groom as best man was Dick Olson of St. Cloud, brother-in-law of the bride. Groomsmen were Greg Toupin of Brooks, friend of the groom; LeRoy Mercil of Grand Forks, N.D., cousin of the groom, and Arnold Paradis of Brooks, brother of the groom. The ushers were Luke Kaushagen of Moorhead, brother of the bride, and Richy Gagner of Brooks, friend of the groom.

The mother of the bride wore a navy blue A-line dress trimmed in white. The mother of the groom wore an aqua A-line dress with gold trim, complemented by gold accessories. Both wore identical corsages of white and tangerine roses.

Honor guests at the wedding were Mrs. Amanda E. Nelson of McMinnville, Ore., grandmother of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Paradis of Red Lake Falls and Mr. and Mrs. Louis Mercil of Brooks, grandparents of the groom. Miss Carol Craigmile of Hallock, a friend of the bride, was the bride's personal attendant.

Following the ceremony, the parents of the groom hosted a turkey supper for approximately 250 guests. For the event, the church parlors were decorated with white wedding bells and interwoven orange and white streamers.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Mercil of Brooks, uncle and aunt of the bride, were reception host and hostess. Miss Jackie Nelson of Thief River Falls, cousin of the bride, presided at the guest book as Mark Kaushagen of Thief River Falls, brother of the bride, and Marilyn Nelson of Goodridge, cousin of the bride, served the punch.

Centering the serving table was a three-tiered wedding cake, iced in white and decorated with orange roses and small white doves. Topping the cake, baked and decorated by Mrs. Mervin Hyde of Brooks, was a minature bride and groom ornament. Mrs. H. S. Williams of Thief River Falls, aunt of the bride, and an aunt of the groom from Milwaukee, Wis., cut and served the cake. Pouring were Mrs. Wes Johnson of Thief River Falls, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Willard Bergeron of Oklee, aunt of the groom.

Waitresses were Ruth Johnson of Thief River Falls, Lynette Mercil of Brooks, cousin of the bride and groom, respectively, together with Barbara Morinville, Mrs. Allen Mercil, both of Brooks, and Carolyn Noyes of Erskine, friends of the couple. Opening and arranging the gifts were Mrs. Luke Kaushagen of Moorhead, sister-in-law of the bride, and Mrs. Parnell Thibert of Coon Rapids, aunt of the groom.

The bride is a graduate of Lincoln high school, Thief River Falls. The groom is a graduate of the Oklee high school and at present is employed with his father.

Doctor Critical Of Commission's Abortion Stand

A Minneapolis obstetrician-gynecologist, executive board member of the national right to life committee, has criticized President Nixon's commission on population growth and the American future for its attack on human life in its earliest stages. He urged the President to ignore the recommendation for federal legislation based on New York's abortion on demand law, with the taxpayer footing the bill.

Dr. Fred Mecklenburg stated that the arguments put forth by John D. Rockefeller III's commission are common pro-abortion propaganda, and completely ignore the evidence that the modern sciences of fetology and perinatology have uncovered on the early stages of human life.

The arguments favoring a woman's rights over her own body disregards the basic scientific facts. The body which is destroyed (by abortion) is not her own at all. It is a separate distinct human being, and at no time following fertilization can it be considered a mere part of its mother, Dr. Mecklenburg said.

"The population commission tacitly agrees that abortion is not necessary for population stabilization, but goes far afield from its charged area of in*vestigation to push abortion* relaxation. It is ironic that the commission recommends abortion as a means of population control when in its own report, the commission confesses a lack of understanding of the full demographic impact of the practice of abortion," the doctor added.

"The greater tragedy of the recommendation, however, is that the keystones of western morality, the respect of every life, at all stages of development is overlooked. The dangerous implication here is that other "unwanted" humans, be they the elderly, the sick or the handicapped, are no less vulnerable to elimination by a society bent on "improving" itself by the elimination of the unwanted."

Dr. Mecklenburg called on President Nixon to reaffirm his personal belief stated within the past year when he said, "I consider abortion an unacceptable form of population control."

"It is regrettable that the other more positive proposals put forward by this presidential commission, dealing with education and family planning programs, should be tied to this radical and unacceptable denial of human rights," Dr. Mecklenburg added.

THE EEL IS A FISH!

Stress Called Greater Villain Than Smoking

Stress—rather than fatty diet, lack of exercise or smoking—is increasingly being tabbed as the chief villain in the appalling toll of Americans killed and disabled each year by heart disease.

Furthermore, according to an April "Reader's Digest" article, most damaging stress occurs. In fact, notes the article, U.S. courts in recent years have begun favoring plaintiffs suing for damage related to heart attacks caused by alleged stress on the job. Evidence would seem to support the courts' view.

Investigators from the University of Michigan's institute for social research, for example, recently found in a nationwide survey that nearly half of those queried complained of such stress-inducing factors as work overload, difficult bosses or subordinates, lack of clarity about their job responsibilities, lack of a feeling of participation in decisions governing their jobs.

Concludes institute psychologist John P. French Jr., "The stresses of today's organizations can pose serious threats to the physical and psychological well-being of organization members. When a man dies or becomes disabled by heart attack, the organization may be as much to blame as are the man and his family."

Another test program, conducted since 1960 by two California cardiologists and their staff at San Francisco's Mount Zion hospital, separated 3,500 middle-aged (39 to 59 years) Americans into two personality types, Type A and Type B. Type A's are driving, ambitious, aggressive, pressure-ridden. Type B's are more easygoing, less clock-oriented, less preoccupied with social achievements, less competitive.

So far, reports author Walter McQuade, 70 per cent of those who have developed coronary heart disease have been Type A's. Strangely enough, even A's who would have been rated "safer" in the usual risk factors—blood pressure, parental history, etc.—were more likely to develop coronary heart disease.

The article (which is condensed from "Fortune") reports that stress studies are now under way around the world, with nearly 6,000 separate reports made last year. In fact, it predicts, public concern about stress will probably soon match or exceed the nation's widespread interest in jogging and polyunsaturated oils.

Breathalyzer Use Certified To Test Drivers

Minnesota public safety commissioner W. R. Hoaglund has certified the breathalyzer machine for use in pre-arrest testing of suspected drunken drivers.

Under the provisions of a new law passed by the 1971 legislature, law enforcement officers are authorized to administer this type of test without putting the subject under arrest. If the test is positive, the suspect will be arrested and brought in for another test which will be used as evidence.

The breathalyzer, a machine that measures the percentage of alcohol in the blood through a breath test, is widely used throughout the state by law enforcement agencies at all levels. It is used primarily in enforcement headquarters and is acceptable as proof of evidence in the state's courts.

It is the first device to be certified for pre-arrest screening, though several other types are being tested by the crime bureau laboratory.

"We do not anticipate heavy use of the breathalyzer for screening, since it is not very portable. However, it is already in use for this purpose in the Hennepin county alcohol safety action project. Under this program, three specially-equipped vans are now in operation in Hennepin county.

Presently there are approximately 75 breathalyzer units in operation in the state. Sixty of these have been purchased under the state's highway safety program with 50 per cent reimbursable federal funds.

Rev. Folden To Be Speaker At Roseau Services

Rev. Ed Folden will be the guest speaker at special services at the Assembly of God church in Roseau. They will begin Sunday and continue each evening through Friday (April 14.)

Rev. Folden is founder and director of Steer, Inc., an interdenominational farm-missionary program. He has pastored churches in Minnesota, North Dakota and Boston, Mass. For several years he was also engaged in evangelism.

In 1957, while serving as a pastor in the farm community of Park River, N. D., Rev. Folden started Steer, Inc. to advance the cause of world missions. Donors contributed $1,400 in unit amounts for the purpose of purchasing cattle. Fourteen calves were bought at an auction and placed on farms where the farmers donated feed and care.

When the steers were marketed, the money was turned over to Steer, Inc. The purchase cost was deducted and the remainder was sent to the missionary societies selected by the donors. The donations were again invested in animals. Through this program hundreds of thousands of dollars have been sent to missions of more than 75 missionary societies.

Services will begin each evening at 8 p.m. and the public is invited to attend.

Farmers Urged To Take Look At Grain Intentions

Farmers are urged to take a second look at their wheat and feed grain intentions before making the final plans for spring planting, according to Marcel Dahl, chairman of the Marshall county agricultural stabilization and conservation committee.

Many farmers signed up to set aside additional wheat acres for 1972 and must not exceed their permitted wheat acres if they intend to earn a wheat payment, Dahl said. Wheat farmers who set aside only the minimum required acres are not limited to the amount of wheat they may plant in 1972. They must, however, have the required set aside and conserving base acres.

Corn farmers also had a choice in the way they signed up and may be limited to the acres of corn that can be planted.

Substitution privileges do not allow producers to exceed either corn permitted acres or wheat permitted acres.

Barley farmers are not limited to the amount of barley they may plant regardless of how they signed up, providing they have the required amount of set aside and conserving base acres.

Because of these different options, Dahl emphasized, any farmers who have questions on their acres should contact the county office.

Vietnam Vets Given Preference In Job Programs

Newly adopted guidelines which give Vietnam veterans "absolute preference" for training slots in most programs funded by the department of labor were cited by John R. Murphy, director of the Veterans administration center at Fort Snelling.

He said that the labor department's administrative changes aim to increase veteran participation in programs authorized by the manpower development and training act (MDTA) and by the economic opportunity act (EOA). Nationally, about 74,000 veterans were recruited into these programs from July 1971 through January of 1972, he said.

To ease the entry of young veterans into the classroom and on-the-job training components of MDTA programs, the labor department has waived some of the normal personal and income requirements for veterans enrollment.

For the EOA programs, however, veterans must meet the low-income family requirements. They then will be the first in line for such programs as the concentrated employment program, "Operation Mainstream," public service careers, and the job corps.

Murphy, who attributed the February drop in the national veterans' unemployment picture to the close cooperation of federal and state governments, local agencies, business groups and the national jobs for veterans committee, said these same groups will be cooperating in carrying out the labor department changes in MDTA and EOA.

He said the VA was told that each regional manpower administrator in the labor department will immediately notify state employment agencies and all sponsors, including state governors, mayors and community action agencies, regarding the changes. State employment agencies will also be advised of existing training slots, and they will be given 48 hours to refer a veteran to vacancies. If veterans are not available to fill the slots, the jobs will be filled with others, he said.

LHS Business Students Attend Seminar At UND

Kenneth Shaw of the Lincoln senior high business department and 35 of his students recently attended the fifth biennial secretarial seminar for high school students at the university center on the campus of UND at Grand Forks.

Correct and incorrect ways to interview for a job were demonstrated by means of a skit. A style show entitled, "Fashions for School and Office" was also presented.

Students heard a panel discussion, "Secretaries and Teachers at Work." Among the members of the panel was Randall Reese, who taught at Lincoln senior high last fall for his student teaching assignment. Other members of the panel were members of the university business department staff.

As a part of the analysis, the study group will interview enforcement officers representing all jurisdictions in the state, traffic engineers, department of public safety personnel, insurance companies and local officials.

Recommendations for coding for the computer and reporting of statistics to local officials will also be included in the study.

The six-month study started on March 9 and will cost $29,000. The contract will be funded with federal money under the highway safety safety act of 1966, administered by the Minnesota department of public safety.

Advisory Council Formed To Aid Area Economy

Advisory council of the Northwest Minnesota economic development program met in Crookston on March 27. Representatives of the poor, public groups and private interests make up the advisory councils. Leander Berberich of Brooks and Roger Thibert of Red Lake Falls represent Clearwater, East Polk, Pennington and Red Lake counties.

Goal of the program is to create jobs and economic opportunities within the 18 counties of northwest Minnesota. The program staff works in two ways. First, they offer professional consulting services to area manufacturers. By helping to solve problems that impede growth, growth is stimulated and employment opportunities occur. Second, they seek to create a marketing system to sell the crafts of homebound workers in the 18-county area.

The advisory council, at its meeting, formed a fund raising committee to be chaired by Rev. Gerald Foley of Red Lake Falls. The program is funded in part by a mobilization of resources grant from the office of economic opportunity. About 20 per cent of the needed matching local funds has been raised.

Quarterly meetings of the advisory council are held in Crookston and are open to the general public.

Letters to the Editor

To the Times Editor:

The letter by H. O. Berve in the Times of March 22 merits the attention of every citizen of Thief River Falls. All who object to the liquor selling motel plan—aptly described by the Times as "Through the Looophole"—should appeal to the city council and the Pennington county board.

These boards cannot know how we the people feel unless we tell them so. In the best interest of the welfare of the people of this community, we object to licensing sale of intoxicating liquor at the proposed new motel or additional place in this area.

Police Activity Revealed In 1971 Summary

Making obscene telephone calls, 1; False report of a crime, 3; Obstruct lawful arrest, 1; and Aggravated property damage, 1.

Total offenses for 1971, according to the police report, numbered 342 which was an increase of about 32 per cent from 1970.

Juvenile offenses, other than traffic violations, which resulted in warnings, appearances in juvenile court or referral to other agencies increased by 56 per cent when comparing the same offenses from 1970 and 1971. The total of all offenses increased by about 51 per cent.

Theft, 24 (37 and 9 attempts); Shoplifting, 25 (30); Liquor laws, 94 (51); Disorderly conduct, 11 (10); Vandalism, 19 (8); Curfew and loitering, 20 (7); Runaway, 37 (9); Traffic warnings, 31 (13); Attempted suicide, 5 (1); Forgery, 1 (4); Auto theft, 2 (2); and Shooting in the city, 1 (1.

Several juvenile cases are listed in 1971 but not in 1970. They included: Drugs (including glue sniffing), 12; Assault, 1; Parole violations, 1; Aggravated property damage, 2; Escape from custody, 1; Incorrigibility, 1; and Trespassing, 1.

There were also some which were reported in 1970 and not in 1971. They were: Burglary, 4; Illegal entry, 3; Receiving stolen property, 1; Smoking, 1; and Possession of a false identification card, 1.

Patrolmen answered 5,426 calls in 1971 which required some action. The report for 1970 shows 5,497 calls which is a decrease of about 1 per cent. This is a figure which quickly attracts attention but is worthless on a comparative basis. There were too many changes in the types of activities which were included. Some of the activities are listed below. They are followed by the number of incidents for 1971 and 1970 respectively. Where there is only one number shown it is for 1971 unless otherwise noted.

Services showed an increase of about 12 per cent from 786 to 882 for the same activities.

Fire calls answered, 66 (72); Drowning calls answered, 2 (2); Funerals escorted, 51 (59); Other escorts, 77 (129); Doors and windows found open, 64 (45); Attempts to locate, 118 (71); Lost and missing persons, 63 (66); Lost property reported, 83 (60); and Property found, 197 (88);

Also copies of accident report furnished, 161 (194); Residence checks, 53, Aid given to the sick, 20; Road and sign repairs reported, 43; Public health activities, 25; Illness and death notices delivered, 9; Assists to other departments, 92;

In 1971 there were 540 accidents handled by the police department. That is an increase of about 10 per cent from 1970 when there were 492. There were 89 accidents resulting in injuries and 451 were limited to property damage.

Thefts decreased about four per cent in 1971. In comparable categories there were 511 reported incidents in 1971 and 532 in 1970. Burglaries investigated, 58 (51); Larcenies investigated, 416 (451); (This includes shoplifting and thefts of bicycles); Auto thefts, 36 (28); Robberies, 1 (2); Fraud, 1; and False alarms answered, 73.

In addition, in 1970 there were 179 bicycles reported as recovered or found.

Disorderly conduct increased from 205 cases to 330 in 1971; That is about 61 per cent.

Vandalism, 181 (155); Family trouble, 57 (11); Prowlers and window peepers, 24 (11); Obscene and anonymous telephone calls, 12 (16); Attempted suicides, 10 (2); and Assaults and fights, 46 (10).

Calls involving animals decreased by about one per cent from 483 to 477 in 1971. There were 181 dogs impounded in 1971 compared with 144 previously and nine dog and animal bites handled over three for 1970.

There were 47 other investigations listed in 1971. For 1970 there were only 10. Even so, no comparison can be made. There were no offenses common to both years. In 1970 there were 4 drug investigations. For 1971 there were 25 narcotic drug investigations recorded. The figure for 1970 may include drugs which are not narcotic and is not comparable as a result. The following list shows the cases for 1971.

Rape and attempted rape, 2; Gambling investigations, 1; Counterfeiting investigations, 1; Accidents other than traffic, 11; Sudden death and bodies found, 3; and Mental cases, 4.

In addition, six cases of damage to property were recorded.

There are other statistics which significantly reflect police activity. As a result of police apprehensions 419 man-days were spent in jail. That is a drop of about 10 per cent from 1970. During the same time the number of man-days in jail from county and state (highway patrol) apprehensions increased by about 14 per cent from 500 in 1970 to 570 in 1971. In 1971 there were 25 people permitted to sleep in cells. That is a drop from 39 in 1970.

Forty-six cars were impounded in 1971. That is also a decrease from the 1970 number of 63. The number of equipment repair tickets issued increased significantly from 35 in 1970 to 91 in 1971. That is about 160 per cent. There were 64 warning tickets issued in 1971. In 1970 there were 47.

The number of dog licenses issued dropped from 160 in 1970 to 146 in 1971. During the same length of time the number of bicycle licenses increased from 973 in 1970 to 1,012. In 1971 drunkenness was added to this category because police must often be called to take care of a person who is drunk even though he is not charged with a crime. There were 30 such cases after July 1, 1971.

In 1970 there were three activities which were listed which are not shown in 1971. They are 68 complaints about snowmobiles, six firecracker complaints and two reports of labor problems.

According to the report, police also handle numerous requests for assistance or information of various types which do not fall within any of the foregoing groups.

Another duty of the police department is to answer calls from Civil Defense headquarters three times each day to insure that the equipment is in working order. During test alerts the police department must notify area county seats.

This professionalized clinic has been presented throughout the United States and can be taken as a college credit course. This year "Horses A to Z" will be presented in Leelanau schools, Glen Arbor, Mich., the state university of New York, and the University of Wisconsin in a 10-day concentrated course. "Horses A to Z" is a special feature article in this month's "Western Horseman" national magazine.

PENNINGTON ASCS ACTIVITIES

— by —
WALLACE SPARBY
Executive Director

The time of the year has rolled around again when we must remind everyone of the final dates for requesting price support loans. Anyone desiring to request a price support loan on oats, barley and wheat must do so before April 30. This would be on the 1971 above-mentioned crops. Rye loans had to be requested prior to March 31.

We have had several questions in regard to the final date for requesting reseal should be made prior to May 31. This is the maturity date for the oats, wheat and barley crops, therefore it is important that you keep that date in mind.

For all 1971 crops which you wish to put under reseal you must sign a form indicating that desire; and for older crops we must have a card signed by you and a written indication that you request reseal of the crop for one more year.

A card will be mailed to you at a later date on which we would like to have you check the appropriate block as to whether or not you want to reseal the grain, deliver it to Commodity Credit corporation, or purchase the grain. Your signature and date on the bottom of the card is important.

Purchase agreement for grain which you have on your farm must be requested prior to May 31 on your 1971 crop. This does not mean that it has to be delivered at that time or by that time, but that the request must be made prior to May 31.

We hear and read a lot about comments from American consumers these days so I would like to relate a few items here which I feel are pertinent to that discussion. American consumers bought food in 1971 for 16 per cent of their after-taxes income, the smallest proportion of income ever achieved here or anywhere else in the world. And the indications are that in 1972 American consumers will be spending only about 15½ per cent of their disposable income for food.

If we were paying the same proportion of our take-home pay for food today as was the case 20 years ago the food bill for American consumers would be about $50 billion more per year than is actually the case.

It appears then that it is more important than ever that there be a general education of the American public about the facts of farming. I think we need to point out that agriculture just like any other industry, needs to balance production with demand; and that agriculture, like any other industry, is entitled to economic rewards for its increased productivity and efficiency. After all this is what farm programs are all about.

City people want a fair wage, and they should get it. Businessmen want a fair return on their investment, and they should get it. And everybody should realize that farmers want a fair return for their work and investment, and they should get it.

The strength of America's agriculture, the most productive and efficient in the world, has its roots deep in farm families. Rural people bring to this nation the strengths and characteristics that America needs, and that this generation and these times need. Life in the countryside is home-centered, community-centered and church-centered.

It places high value on work, production, integrity, dependability, self-reliance and what some call good old-fashioned patriotism. I say it's patriotism pure and simple, neither faddish nor wrapped in an easily-disposable slogan, and I say we need more of it; we need more people whose hearts stir when they see Old Glory passing by.

All these qualities, so well-nurtured in rural America, are vital to maintaining the strength and vigor of our still youthful nation. They are more important today than ever.

Tax Reform

Following editorial is from the Long Prairie Leader:

You're going to hear a lot about "tax reform" from now on. In Washingtonese, tax reform means more money is needed—not tax cuts.

The battle lines will be between the two parties, of course, and neither side will be talking tax efficiencies—just that they have a plan to tax everybody except you. The "other fellow" is the guy they're after.

The Administration favors a value-added tax, although Nixon is a little apprehensive about approaching the subject during an election year. A value-added tax is a national sales tax. It will be wrapped up with enough special provisions and exemptions to make it seem attractive.

It is expected the Administration will accompany its tax plan with an announcement that a value-added tax will raise enough money so that real estate taxes can be drastically reduced. States would take over the financing of schools, getting funds from the new tax at the national level.

But the Democrats control Congress and they reportedly will have nothing to do with a value-added tax. Democratic congressmen up for election this year want no part of a new tax during an election year. It isn't that the Democrats don't want to raise more tax revenue—because they do—but they would rather revise current tax plans rather than devise new ones. You step on fewer toes that way!

The Democratic Congressmen will ask for changes in personal exemption provisions, in charitable contribution exemptions, depreciation and capital gains, and inheritance taxes. All changes are aimed at increasing taxes.

Be prepared for a smoke screen of a few million words on the virtues and evils of the two tax reform plans this summer. It will make the quiet and solitude of your favorite fishing hole all the more enjoyable.

Life After 40

Charles "Harpo" Dexter, editor of the Bemidji Pioneer, wrote the following description of life after 40 in his column "Harpo's Bizarre":

They say life begins at 40. Having passed that magic mark some time ago, I keep waiting and waiting for some evidence of verification to what I now consider to be a rather stupid statement.

About all I can say conclusively, based on my own experience, is that even though life may begin at 40, it takes a lot more to get it started in the morning and a lot less to shut it off in the evening than it used to.

And what it costs just to keep it going in between times is enough to scare you to death. Just to keep up some semblence of the pace you have to prop it up with pharmaceuticals that makes you wonder if it's worth the price.

Just last week my wife was checking the monthly costs of keeping me going when the bills came due. She said it looked like it would be a lot cheaper to get a new model than to try to get any more mileage out of the old one.

And she wasn't kidding. She had it all marked down like the accountant she is. And it was a little frightening.

Forty dollars to change lenses in my glasses to compensate for two year's of aging. Six dollars for arch supports in my shoes just to ease an aching back. Twenty bucks to have my upper plate repaired so I could still eat. And eighteen bucks for a girdle just so my belly wouldn't sag so far over my belt.

Those are just the maintenance costs for the mechanical structure. Which seemed high enough. But when I paid my drugstore bill I got the shock of my life to see what it costs to keep up internally.

Eight dollars for aspirin so I could still use my brain. Six dollars for Dristan so I could still use my nose. Twelve dollars for Rollaids so I could still use my stomach. Six bucks for Carter's so I could still use my kidneys. And four bucks for Ex-lax so I could still use the toilet.

Okay, that took care of the internals. Then there was ten bucks for deodorants so I wouldn't smell up the place. And another ten for anti-perspirants so I wouldn't rot out my arm pits.

There was three bucks for hair spray to give me a dry look. Four bucks for after-shave to make me smell masculine. Four more bucks for skin cream to make me look masculine. And three bucks for toothpaste to make me look sexy.

There was five dollars for liniment to ease lots of pains. Two bucks for corn plasters to keep my feet neat. Two dollars for Murine to cure my "Red eye."

"Holy Hanrahan," I said to the druggist as I paid the bill. "By the time I've bought enough glue to keep my teeth in my mouth, enough aspirin to keep my head clear, enough Dristan to keep my sinuses open, enough Rollaids to keep my stomach going, enough deodorants to control my smell, enough Geritol to build my blood and enough laxative to control my bowels, I've got a bill big enough to give me a pain right here."

"That's too bad," he consoled, "but we have just the thing for that."

He reached up and brought down a package of Preparation H. Which was only $1.49.

And I think the moral of the whole story is that you shouldn't believe everything you hear about life beginning at 40. And that it may just be cheaper to cure a pain in the lower portions of your anatomy than it is to keep up the pretense.

Gun Act Faulty

We were pleased to hear that the Pennington county Republican convention had endorsed a resolution in absolute opposition to federal firearms controls. Federal bungling on prior legislation leaves little hope for improvement on any further attempts to curb crime by restricting private gun ownership and use.

In fact, according to the National Rifle association, the federal courts don't think to highly of the federal law adopted in 1968.

On the strength of one decision of the U.S. supreme court, a federal district court in California quickly threw out charges that a private citizen there had made illegal sales without a firearms license. It develops that at least five other federal courts had already questioned the constitutionality of the act on this or another basis.

An editorial in the NRA publication "The American Rifleman" further states:

Some other provisions of this ill-advised and poorly drawn law are also open to challenge, it appears, and are still unclear after more than three years.

What, for example, constitutes dealing in firearms under the law? The law itself nowhere defines this, although it subjects private citizens to as much as five years and $5,000 if convicted of violating its requirement that firearms dealers be licensed.

Does an individual who sells five guns a year need a Federal firearms dealers' license under the law? Ten guns? Fifteen guns? $100 worth of guns, regardless of the number? $1,000 worth? No guns, but 500 rounds of ammunition? 2,000 rounds of ammunition?

The answer in every instance depends upon what the administrators of the law, namely the Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms Division of Internal Revenue Service, say it is. If you doubt this, just sell a few guns and then—perhaps too late—ask the ATFD if they think you are a firearms dealer. You can get different answers, too, depending on the region of the county in which you live or the person answering your question.

That, so help us, is the Federal Gun Control Act in all its supposed majesty and justice. And that is not nearly all.

Hand grenades have become a sensitive subject, as if every last one had the pin pulled and was about to explode. Another ambiguity of omission in the 1968 act if responsible for that. It fails to make a clear distinction between a dummy or practice grenade and the combat type.

To observe a law—any law—the public must first understand not only the basic reason for the law but what it says.

We do not suggest that the provisions safeguarding the public be abolished. Contrary to the misleading impressions given by critics of the NRA, the NRA has for decades favored laws which would bar convicted criminals, proven drug addicts, adjudged mental cases, alcoholics, and habitual law breakers from owning firearms. That continues to be our position.

Ample Warning

The following sign was reportedly placed on a battery of computers to warn people to keep hands off, according to the Grand Rapids Herald-Review:

"Achtung! Alles Lookenspeepers. Das computenmachine is nicht fur gefingerpoken and mittengraben. Is easy schnappen der springenwerk, blowenfusen, and poppencorken mit spitzensparken. Is night fur geverken by das dummkopfen. Das rubbernecken sightseeren keepen hands in das pockets—relaxen and watchen das blinkenlights."

That should be ample warning.

Dear Sirs:

I have hust returned from my friendly neighborhood tire dealer who was kind enough to exercise his tire warrantee deal on my behalf for three tires which were mysteriously ruined within a period of two months. Asked what the trouble could be with these tires, he explained that the condition was known as nylon cord fatigue, a condition which tire companies sometimes find in new tires after ruinously testing them on the company proving grounds where the tires are subjected to conditions far beyond the normally expected, roughest possible conditions.

There you have it Commissioners. I now retract my request for you to fix Pennington County Highway No 14, The Rosewood Road which stretches northward from Minnesota Highway No. 1 to the Marshall County line. I now see this marvelous four-mile thunderstrip of continuous washboards interupted with chuck holes as a potential money maker for all of us. Just think, you could rent it to one or several big tire companies as a proving grounds for their product. Those of us who live along this county highway could hire out as testers, thus assuring ourselves of a never-ending supply of new tires, which of course would have to be replaced every two or three months anyway.

Oh, In case you plan to inspect this road someday, please drive carefully. That pile of fenders, bolts and wheels along the right-of-way will probably be the hallowed remains of my family car..

On the Red River, about thirty miles north of Moorhead, is a little community of 142 souls named Georgetown. And although the casual reader of the highway map might miss its location entirely, a visitor to Vikingland would do well to put Georgetown on his itinerary.

It is here that Hudson's Bay Fur Company established a post in 1859 which, until its closure in 1875, played an important role in Minnesota's history. The post has recently been reconstructed and offers an insight into a segment of some otherwise little-known state history.

In 1670 a portion of Northwest Minnesota, along with an area covering a third of the North American continent, was chartered by England's King Charles II as "Rupert's Land." The Hudson's Bay post was named Georgetown after Sir George Simpson, who was Governor of Rupert's Land for nearly forty years.

Georgetown's location was influenced by the Treaty of Prairie Du Chien, which established definite boundary lines between the hunting grounds of the various Sioux and Chippewa tribes. Because of Sioux hostility toward white settlers, the post was built on more friendly Chippewa territory. This placed it on the east side of the Red River and North of the Buffalo River.

Were it not for the boundaries established by the Treaty, the post would have been located in what is now North Dakota (there was no government in that territory at the time).

The purpose of the Georgetown post was primarily as a storage place for Red River Valley goods and produce awaiting shipment in two directions—by oxcart to St. Paul and by steamboat to Fort Garry at Winnipeg. As such, the post was engaged in nearly every important event occurring during the settlement and "civilizing" of that part of Minnesota.

This is only a brief background on Georgetown and its fur post. An excellent source for subsequent details is the Clay County Historical Society in Moorhead.

But the best way to relive some of those pioneering days is to visit Georgetown itself. It is among the oldest—yet newest—attractions in Minnesota.

The American Conscience

by Dr. RUDY SKOGERBOE

Often what a man does not say is louder than what he says. This is also true of the national news media. Especially loud and clear was the absence of any special recognition of two landslide victories in the Florida primary elections. The winners were God and Gov. Wallace as Mr. Kilpatrick, a nationally known columnist, recently stated. What does this mean?

Florida can be considered a cross section of America in the sense that many from other states go there to retire or have winter quarters there. What these people said in this primary election is important and should be considered most carefully. The voter is deluged by many liberal Democrat candidates all saying pretty much the same thing. Gov. Wallace comes with the same aggressive platform he has always had. He says it simply and although I am not one of his supporters, he strikes a harmonious sound of honesty amid political platitudes which no one can believe.

What did the press say? They talked on and on about how Muskie lost and Jackson and Humphrey won. Nothing was said about Wallace. His smashing victory should have done better in the press, but it didn't.

I think it meant above all that politics as usual is not popular with voters. They have heard too much and seen too little performance. Our Democrat controlled congress continues to stall and spend with important matters going undecided mostly for political reasons. The middle class worker is paying more and more for a tax structure that is crushing his finances. Mr. Wallace says what everyone knows has to be said and that is to spend less. He also speaks of tax reform to relieve the burden of the working man. The people like what he says.

When the fuzzy thinking from the intellectuals comes out in promoting amnesty for those who have denounced our country, Mr. Wallace makes a wry face and says, "No." The people (and he drew huge crowds) liked what he said.

When Mr. Muskie and all the others like him speak of getting out of Viet Nam and of the rightness about a surrender, Mr. Wallace says "No." The people liked what he said. They also applauded when he said we should fight to win or not fight at all.

When Mr. Wallace talks of busing and how people don't like it, he is saying it like it is. He has mellowed enough to insist on quality education and does not defie the necessity to have integrated schools. Thus he can't be called a racist in this particular sense either and the people like what he says.

When the prayer amendment was passed by a great margin, there was more being said than something about prayers in schools. To me it means a protest by middle class America against the influence of atheistic trends to secularize our society. It is a desire to turn back to some eternal values, that give us real security. Whether one agrees with Wallace or not is not important, but the popularity of what he says should be carefully remembered by both parties.

Healing Scars: An Arctic Challenge

Experiments in revegetation, being conducted on this 600-foot long tract at the University of Alaska, are providing valuable information on hardy new grasses that can be used in reseeding portions of the route of the proposed trans-Alaska oil pipeline.

A miniature prototype of what may be the world's longest garden patch is being cultivated earnestly by scientists at the University of Alaska.

Agriculturists there are experimenting with varieties of plant life that can be used to revegetate the tundra after construction of the proposed 800-mile trans-Alaska pipeline from Prudhoe Bay on Alaska's North Slope to the ice-free port of Valdez. The research is being financed by Alyeska Pipeline Service Company.

Where practical, the 48-inch pipeline carrying warm crude oil at 100-140 degrees F. will be buried. A two-lane highway also is planned to parallel the line's route. However, construction of such a project could cause erosion problems if the areas disturbed by construction are not reseeded and restored.

And while an enormous wealth of knowledge exists on arctic and sub-arctic botany, scientists were not able to predict what plants, if any, might flourish directly above the buried pipe. So a 600-foot-long pipeline was buried in permafrost at the university's campus near Fairbanks, where simulated tests have been conducted for the past three years. All sorts of plantings were established across the filled trenches.

After two typical growing seasons and two severe winters, many of these plants have shown an ability to go dormant and revive. From spring to autumn the ground now becomes lush with vegetation. Even an area purposely left untreated has been overgrown by surrounding native growth to produce a solid cover over the line.

Based on these experiments and many others conducted by soil scientists elsewhere in the state under the sponsorship of Alyeska, builders of the proposed line, valuable information on arctic vegetation has been obtained for healing construction scars when the long-delayed project receives federal government and court permission to proceed.

PLAY BY PLAY ON SPORTS

with Mike Lundgren

We're one of the minority few it would seem, who favor retaining the all-tournament selections following the Minnesota state high school hockey and basketball tournaments.

There seems to be a solid, united effort by many of the prep coaches to do away with the all-tournament selections because, as many of the objectors state, "the all-tournament team doesn't take into consideration a player's value to a team during the entire season, and it hurts the team's unity."

Looking at both of those arguments, it seems easy enough to come up with arguments in favor of the post tournament picks. It would hardly seem possible to be able to hurt a team's close-knit unity by the individual selections since the season has already been completed by the time the choices are announced.

The other, and major argument, that the all-tournament selections do not take into consideration an individual's entire season is correct, but they're not designed to do that. The all-tournament selections are not suppose to cover the player's season or career, but instead single out an outstanding individual performance during the short tournament only.

Many times an all-tournament team will not include the same players that have been picked for all-state honors simply because many of the all-state performers played for teams who were beaten in district or regional competition and the all-state honors are given on the basis of the entire season performance.

An example of the differences between an all-tournament and an all-state team would be the St. James basketball squad. The Saints won the class A and overall state cage titles and placed three players, Jim Chalin, Jeff Nessler and Mike Olson on the all-tournament team based on their performances during their tournament appearances. The WCCO radio's all-state squad did not include a single player from St. James or class AA champion Mounds View because it is an individual award, not a team honor.

All-state selections have been under attack also, but mainly from teams who have felt they've been slighted in the balloting. The all-state choices, either WCCO, Minneapolis Tribune or St. Paul Pioneer Press, are completed with the help of sports writers, broadcasters and coaches from the entire state, and are eagerly looking forward to, at the end of the campaigns.

St. Paul Pioneer Press sports columnist Patrick Reusse followed up his cutting remarks about the Littlefork-Big Falls basketball team with a swipe at region eight athletics in general Sunday when he stated, "Region 8 for years, has been inferior in all sports except hockey. The region should be broken up, with teams from areas around Detroit Lakes and Fergus Falls and Moorhead added to provide a more even distribution."

If Mr. Reusse is so obsessed with the idea of redistricting the state, maybe he would like to realign region 8 with region 4 (St. Paul schools) to provide an even caliber of competition, because its been nine years since a St. Paul school has won a state hockey title and its been 23 years since a region 4 representative has captured a state basketball crown.

If East Grand Forks wasn't the best basketball team in region 8 during the 1971-72 season, the Green Wave must have been the smartest team at least, with five senior members of the squad named to the A honor roll last week. The five included Kurt Knoff, Dave Rohy, Roger Hagen, Bryan Johnson and Dean Avery.

—0—

A committee from the Minnesota state high school league will come to a decision about the state basketball tournament's two-class system at an April 14 meeting in Minneapolis.

At that time an announcement is also expected concerning the proposed prep football play-off, which could possibly be instituted by next fall.

It is unlikely that any raidical changes will be made in the basketball tournament, although a consolation round for first-game losers will probably be employed. One of the main questions concerns the present play-off game between the class A and AA winners.

What Product is Always Available in Returnable Bottles in Minnesota?
BEER!

Beer in returnable bottles can be sold for less because the high cost of packaging can be spread over repeated uses. That's good for the public and the brewers.

Why, then, are there one-way cans and bottles? Not for extra profit; one-way units usually return less profit. The reason is basic — to serve the great many people who prefer and demand convenience packaging in so many things. Many breweries which did not meet that public demand have not survived.

Even though less than 1% of one-way beer containers ever become litter, Brewers WANT to do everything they can to solve the overall problems of litter and solid waste. But putting all beer in returnable bottles will not solve it; tens-of-thousands of other products will still remain in one-way containers.

In the public interest and their own, brewers strongly support sound programs for materials recycling, recovery, conservation. Remember — the brewing industry has always offered a CHOICE of returnable containers . . . one of the few industries that does so!

UND Spring Grid Drills To Begin Tuesday, April 4

Approximately 65 candidates are scheduled to begin spring football drills April 4, weather permitting, according to University of North Dakota head football coach Jerry Olson.

Olson said 20 allowable spring practice sessions will be concluded May 6 with an intra-squad scrimmage—if the drills begin April 4.

"Weather is a big factor this spring due to the heavy snowfall recently. Our practice fields outdoors due to the snow might be too wet and could delay our opening. We would rather work outdoors than in the fieldhouse and might delay our start," Olson said.

Among the 65 candidates will be 26 of 28 returning lettermen. Junior all conference defensive tackle Doug Schindler of Richfield, Minn., and freshman punter Jamie Gronowski of Mandan, N.D., are participating in track and baseball.

UND is defending North Central Conference champion and was ranked ninth nationally at the end of the season. The Fighting Sioux posted a 6-3-1 record in 1971 and were given consideration for a post-season bowl game.

What does Olson hope to accomplish in spring ball?

"The first two weeks, and we hope to practice every day at 3:30, will be devoted to the fundamentals of basic offense and basic defense. The object of devoting two weeks to this type of work is to make each player a better fundamental performer.

"The last half of the spring practice we'll add more intricate offense and defensive alignments and techniques.

"Spring football gives the coaching staff an opportunity to look at every player in positions where he might be playing next fall. It's an evaluation period for the coaches and a depressurized performance time for the players. It's very valuable for all concerned," Olson said.

The coaching staff will be looking for replacements for two All America and three other all conference performances.

Gone will be little All Americans Jim LeClair (to the national guard until late May and then to the Cincinnati Bengals of the AFC) at linebacker and defensive back Dan Martinsen. Also missing will be all conference offensive tackle Terry Kremeier, offensive guard John Gist and defensive end Jerry Skogmo. The Sioux will be without 11 seniors from 1971.

UND is scheduled to open the season Sept. 9 at home against Montana state University. A complete 1972 UND schedule will be announced soon.

Two new UND coahces will assist Olson this spring. They are offensive line coach Larry Manfull, who comes to UND from the head coaching position at Mayville (N.D.) state college and Tom Tatham, who will handle the defensive line. Tatham was on the Adams (Col) state staff until March 1.

Gene Murphy, offensive backfield coach and coordinator, and Hank Biesiot, junior varsity coach last fall, also return. Murphy is the senior member of the staff, having been here since 1966. He is a former standout UND quarterback. Biesiot was former head coach at Langdon (N.D.) high school. Also assisting will be graduate student Al Ereditario of Jeannette, Pa.

Five UND seniors will assist the coaching staff. They are Kremeier, Martinsen, Skogmo, Dennis Hoffer and Vince Repesh.

Spring Break Up Brings Warnings

Fast break up of ice on Minnesota's lakes and streams has prompted a warning from the Department of Natural Resources against the dangers of "white water" canoeing.

The practice of riding spring flood waters down swollen streams in canoes, kayaks, rubber rafts and other craft may be an exhilarating experience—or a tragic one, said William Severson, outdoor safety specialist.

"Almost every year," said Severson, "lives are lost in Minnesota and elsewhere in the spring when poorly prepared and inexperienced boaters try their luck in a white water situation."

The Kettle River in Pine county is one of the most popular, and notorious, streams in the state for this sport. Several lives have been lost on this river in the spring, particularly in a fast stretch of rapids in Banning state park.

Severson said no one should attempt this sport without considerable experience in negotiating lesser streams where fast water is present but poses little risk to the boater.

Under the new state law, every boater and canoer is required to have a coast guard approved life saving device aboard. Severson said common sense dictates that the life jacket should be worn, "not just thrown in the bottom of the boat".

Those shooting really dangerous water where large boulders or rock ledges are a hazard should wear some type of crash helmet to avoid being knocked out or killed if the craft capsizes and passengers are thrown into the water, he said.

'U' M Specialist Advises No More Wilderness Area

No more forest areas should be designated as wilderness areas—such lands should be used for recreation and timber production, according to a University of Minnesota wood products specialist.

"If lands continue to be removed from production, then timber shortages are almost insured relatively soon," Jim Bowyer said.

Presently, the annual timber growth in the country exceeds the annual cut and should continue to do so for several years to come.

Referring to timber clearcutting—the practice of cutting all trees within a given area—Bowyer said that a ban on clearcutting would reduce the volume of wood produced in many of our forests as well as increase logging and lumber costs.

"Growth of many species, such as Douglas-fir, would be sharply curtailed. These trees and others like them simply do not survive if shaded by other vegetation left when an area is not clearcut," Boyer said.

Boyer explained timber clearcutting this way: If 50 years are required to grow a tree to merchantiable size, the area cut in any one year constitutes about two per cent of the entire forest area. These areas again grow trees of useable size in 50 years and the yield of the entire forest area can be sustained forever.

Tips On Bicycle Buying Given By Safety Dep't.

If it's time for your child to own his first bicycle or move up to a larger one, the Minnesota department of public safety has some buying tips for you.

First, there are three basic types of bicycles: middleweight, lightweight and high-rise. A child who is just learning to ride a bicycle should have a middleweight; it is the most stable, is the easiest to balance, has a sturdy frame and has wide tires to absorb the bumps. In other words, it is a good bicycle to learn on.

For the experienced bicyclist, there is also the lightweight or the highrise, depending again on his needs. If he intends to ride long distances, likes speed and power for hills, then the lightweight bicycle, usually with gears, is for him.

A beginning bicyclist cannot be expected to have the coordination necessary to operate a lightweight bicycle, the control of gear shifts and hand brakes takes concentration and requires that pedaling and blance be established skills.

The high-rise bicycle is for play. The coordinated child can perform all sorts of stunts on a high-rise since it is extremely maneuverable—it turns quickly and enables the rider to change balance easily. It is not made for long-distance riding, and its high handlebars become uncomfortable after any length of time.

After you have selected the style of bicycle right for your child, the next step is to make sure that bicycle fits him. A good test is to have the child sit on the seat and put his feet on the ground. The balls of his feet should reach comfortably to the ground, so that he can stay seated on the bicycle when it is stopped. His arms should reach the handlebars easily without stretching.

Equipment on the bicycle is important. Every bicycle should have tightfitting handlebar grips, a horn or bell, a headlight if the bicycle is to be driven in the dark, a red reflector on the rear, efficient brakes and a carrier if the rider carries books or packages with him. If buying a used bike, make sure the tires, wheels, spokes, seat, chain, pedals, frame, nuts and bolts, and handlebars are in good condition; if they're not, replace them before the bicycle is driven.

After the style has been chosen, the bicycle fitted to the child, and the equipment checked, there's one more step: Make sure the child knows the laws and rules of bicycle riding in Minnesota. He should know how to signal, that he must yield to pedestrians, that he must obey all traffic signals, that he must drive on the right side of the roadway or sidewalk, that stunt riding must be done on playgrounds, never in traffic, that he should keep both hands on the handlebars except when signalling, and that he must keep off sidewalks in business areas.

The Minnesota department of public safety has a pamphlet on bicycle riding for elementary school age children. It lists and explains the laws and rules for safe bike-riding, and is availabele free of charge. Write for a copy of "Bicycling Can Be Fun and Safe, Too" to the Department of Public Safety, Information Section, 210A State Highway Building, St. Paul 55155.

Parades Require Permits If Using State Highways

Minnesoa communities planning on holding various types of celebrations during the coming summer were cautioned today by state highway commissioner Ray Lappegaard concerning long-standing regulations involving the use of trunk highways.

"I strongly suggest," he said, "that early application be made for permits for the temporary closing of a street carrying a trunk highway at the appropriate highway department district office. That will enable our people to counsel with local people handing up these celebrations as to the legal and safety requirements concerning such closings."

Although a municipal street or streets may be closed for a parade or procession, the local municipality must provide a suitable detour and arrange for adequate police and traffic service. the state highway patrol will coordinate and assist with these safety measures.

"No stands, booths or any other commercial activities may occupy trunk highway right of way," Lappegaard said. "Inasmuch as the entire roadway must be re-opened to normal traffic immediately after the conclusion of the parade or procession.

"The cooperation of the municipalities," he concluded, "will enable their people and visitors to have an enjoyable celebration without unduly interfering with the use and operation of the trunk highways."

Boats Should Be Licensed Soon, Department Says

Department of Natural Resources today said owners of new watercraft should license them as soon as possible if they want to be able to launch them legally as the ice leaves Minnesota lakes and rivers.

Registrations on boats already licensed do not have to be renewed this year, but the department said many persons have bought new boats or have other watercraft that have never been licensed before.

Doubtless, some boat owners have been operating their watercraft without a license hoping they will never be stopped by an enforcement officer.

"When the license fee is only $5 for a three year period for most boats," said chief conservation officer Don Fultz, "it seems foolish to risk a possible $300 fine."

Canoes, kayaks and sailboats must be licensed for the first time this year although watercraft used exclusively for duck hunting during the duck season and rice boats used only during the wild rice season are exempt.

DNR Leads Arbor Day Observance

Minnesota foresters in the Department of Natural Resources will be working with local schools and communities during the next two weeks in preparing for the celebration of Arbor Day on April 28.

William Aultfather, director of lands and forestry, has asked field personnel to contact local officials and urge them to establish school forests and demonstration woodlots in addition to observing the traditional tree planting ceremonies.

To date, 48 school forests have been established under the program, the most recent one created in the Mounds View school district north of the Twin Cities.

"Such tracts are used for the study of the natural sciences," said Aultfather, "and for the demonstration of ecological principals and environmental needs.

"In addition, Christmas trees and other forest products can be harvested from the sites to provide revenue for school purposes.

"Arbor Day should be the time to reflect on the importance of trees in our lives. They have provided the logs and lumber to build our homes and factories, provided habitat for wildlife, offer recreation and solitude, and serve the vital function of helping cleanse the air we breathe and the water we drink."

Florida State Coach Headlines Concordia Clinic

Hugh Durham, coach of the Florida State Seminoles, will headline the basketball sessions of the nineteenth annual Concordia college coaching clinic to be held in Moorhead, Aug. 2-4.

Durham is described as one of the most dynamic young basketball coaches in America. The Seminoles, Durham's team, surprised the basketball world this past season by gaining in the finals of the NCAA basketball play-offs though they finally lost to UCLA, 81-76.

Durham's teams are noted for their lightning-fast breaks and fullcourt pressing defenses, and Durham is known for his keen, analytical basketball mind.

The Seminoles' coach's unique ability to mold winning teams has given him three consecutive 20-plus winning seasons to this year.

Durham's team won the Far West classic this year and plowed through the Mid-East regional of the NCAA by bowling over Big ten champion Minnesota and powerful Kentucky. In the first round of the NCAA finals the Seminoles handled Atlantic Coast champion North Carolina and then lost to the Bruins in a touch final game.

Red Auerbach, general manager of the Boston Celtics, has said that any college player is most fortunate to play basketball for Hugh Durham. Sonny Gulsvig, associate professor of physical education and basketball coach at Concordia, says that Concordia clinic officials feel very fortunate, too, to present Durham in the Coaching Clinic.

Scientist Reviews A Mission To Mars

by Bill Hafling
University of Minnesota
Science Writer

Except for a noticeable shortage of breathable air, a Minnesotan visiting the planet Mars might feel right at home. A "warm" day on Mars is much like a typically cold winter day in Minnesota.

"Of all the planets in our solar system, Mars is the most like Earth," said Alfred O. C. Nier, regents' professor of physics at the University of Minnesota. "Our evidence about Mars, so far, shows that the temperature on a warm day there will be about 10 degrees below zero.

"Despite the minor similarities, however, Mars is quite different from Earth. The temperature at night drops to 80 degrees below zero Centigrade (about -170 degrees F.) —the temperature of frozen carbon dioxide ('dry ice'). Of course, the polar caps of Mars are also much colder than those on Earth."

Nier laughed when asked about the possibilities for Mars as a "colony for Earthlings" in the future.

"Mars isn't much more habitable than Earth's Moon," he explained. "Oxgen is in very short supply on Mars and so is water. I suppose if some sort of colonization were tried a man might evolve who could actually survive there—in about a billion years."

Head of the National Aeronautics and Space administration's entry science team for the upcoming Viking flight to Mars, Nier said the main reason for the mission was to search for conditions favorable to the existence of life. "This means we will be looking for organic chemical materials, not 'life' as most people on Earth think of it," he explained.

At this time, the Viking flight is scheduled to leave Earth in 1975, arriving on Mars in July of 1976. A second Viking launch will leave within a month of the first one. At most, the scientists hope to find some sign of microscopic life or at least the chemical elements capable of combining to form life forms as we know them.

In addition to the "life ingredients" of water, oxygen, carbon and hydrogen which have already been detected on Mars, the chemical element nitrogen is an essential component of Earth-type life forms. So far no evidence of nitrogen has been found on Mars.

Nier, who recently became a member of Viking's molecular analysis team as well, said that optimism for finding life in space comes from the observation of the universality of life on Earth. Several scientists have pointed out that living organisms may be found in Antarctica, in deep-sea trenches, and even in boiling hot springs, acids and various solvent chemicals.

One scientist, Nier remarked, had responded to criticism of the search for life in space as "Earth chauvinism," adding that those who cannot imagine the possibility of life without water are guilty of "liquid-water chauvinism." Such scientists do not rule out the possibility of life forms entirely different from any seen on Earth—perhaps beyond the conception of Earth-bound thinkers.

Given these considerations, and the fact that the instrument payload on the mission is severely limited, makes choosing the biology experiments to perform on Mars very difficult, Nier said.

"Some of man's age-old questions are now starting to be answered," Nier said. "Is there life elsewhere? Are we really unique? What processes lead to the formation of life? How did our solar system evolve?"

Because no men will be going to Mars, the story will be told entirely by instruments, including those developed by Nier in almost 40 years of research.

Two instruments, a mass spectrometer, and a retarding potential analyzer will be used to analyze the atmosphere of Mars from the time the Lander unit leaves the Orbiter vehicle until it reachers the lower atmosphere. (Nier's first mass spectrometer 30 years ago weighed more than two tons; the one designed for the Viking mission weighs about nine pounds.)

Purely by coincidence, the other analyzing instrument used in the upper atmosphere was developed under the direction of William Hanson, a University of Minnesota graduate originally from northern Minnesota, who is now a professor at the University of Texas.

Combined with a gas separator, a different mass spectrometer—closely related in function to the early instruments developed by Nier—will also be used to analyze samples of Mars soil picked up on the surface.

"We will be searching for nitrogen and other rare constituents of the atmosphere, including an analysis of the ions present," Nier said.

A member of Nier's entry team, Michael McElroy of Harvard, indicated in Science magazine (January 28, 1972) that measures of nitrogen in the atmosphere may provide a critical test of how and when the planet gave up this gas in its history.

"Finding just what mechanisms are effective in making the Mars atmosphere what it is can help us understand Earth's atmosphere much better. In this way we are able to separate out all the complicating things which are part of atmospheric processes taking place on Earth. We will also add to our understanding of the evolutionary development of Earth itself," he said.

Many of the scientists on the Viking flight project consider this mission their "last chance" to find some answers to life-long questions, perhaps confirming or denying long-held theories.

"At present there are no plans for other missions to Mars," Nier said. "This may be our only mission. Certainly nothing is planned by the United States for 1977 or 1979." (1977 and 1979 would be times in which the configuration in space would be favorable to a launch to Mars.)

As a result, there is pressure to add other experiments to an already overweight payload. Several experiments, originally planned, will accordingly have to be cut back in scope.

"There is some thought of analyzing the dust which swirls across the surface of Mars in such large quantities," Nier said. "Most certainly we will do the most important experiments, those involved in searching for organic materials. The Orbiter will also conduct several experiments on Mars' atmosphere similar to those now being conducted by Mariner 2.

"Right now, it is important to get there reliably and get some kind of measurements. If we can find the basic ingredients of life, or even more complicated compounds such as amino acids, perhaps then there will be an impetus to explore the planet further."

Nier added that the once-proposed "grand tour of the planets" in space, with various instrumental analysis packages, has now been indefinitely postponed. (A NASA spokesman said recently that the "grand tour of planets" research had been completely deleted from the budget due to insufficient backing from Congress.)

"Opportunities to do such experiments are very rare," Nier said, thinking back over his own hopes in a lifetime of research. "Only once in every 175 years or so are conditions in space most favorable for such work."

Taxpayer Group Says Education Struck It Rich

Minnesota's public elementary and secondary schools "struck it rich", in the 1971 legislative session.

Appropriations for all forms of state aid to education during the current biennium soared to $1,135,157,800, with foundation aid—the very heart of the school aid structure—amounting to nearly $883,000,000, up 94.6 per cent from the level of the preceding biennium.

Appropriations to the University of Minnesota were increased more than $32,000,000, or 18.6 per cent.

Those are among the facts noted in "Where the Money Comes From, and Where It Goes," an 80-page research bulletin issued biennially by the Minnesota Taxpayers association to report the effect of new legislation on the State's fiscal and administrative affairs, mailed this week to MTA members, legislators and other state officials, news media and others.

Among hundreds of other points noted in the research data are these:

Had no new taxes or tax rate increases been enacted in 1971, the impact of normal economic growth would have increased the state's revenues by $341 million. The governor asked for an additional $762 million in new taxes and higher tax rates. The legislature trimmed the higher tax program to $581,750,000.

Total public welfare costs financed by state, county and federal funds have climbed 191 per cent in the last 10 years and are headed for the billion-dollars-a-biennium mark.

Slightly over 58 per cent of total state spending, or $2,236,948,000, exclusive of federal funds, will be expended during the current biennium as tax relief, shared taxes or as other aids to counties, cities, villages and school districts.

Satate departments, agencies and institutions wanted 5,074 more employees; the governor trimmed the requests to 1,755; the legislature allowed 86.

In addition to analyzing on a functional basis the almost $4.7 billion total of authorized state spending, the MTA publication shows the source of all revenues, compares current spending with that of the preceding biennium, digests each of the 108 newly-enacted tax laws or amendments, reports the rates of and anticipated revenue from principal state-levied taxes, and lists the current salaries of all elective and appointive administrative officials.

American Host Program Seeks American Hosts

Thief River Falls area families are needed to entertain English-speaking European teachers in their homes for one or two weeks this summer, it was announced by the American Host program today.

According to Stuart Perkins, board chairman of the host program, American Host is one of the few non-governmental programs designed to show the American way of life to foreign teachers by arranging hospitality with American families for them.

Now in its tenth year of operation, American Host has hosted more than 3,500 European teachers who have passed on their new view of America to their students.

Perkins said that being a "host family" is open to anyone who has the desire to increase understanding and friendship between Americans and Europeans. All American Host asks for its hospitality—a private room for a guest and free time for one or for two weeks to introduce the guest to friends and neighbors and perhaps to fellow teachers.

American Host arranges all transportation. Host families are asked to meet their guest upon arrival in their community. Teachers and host families have an opportunity to correspond for at least a month before meeting. Arrangements for participating as a host family can be made through:

Mr. Tom Murphy, Director, The American Host Program, Hotel Commodore, Suite 2100, Park Avenue at 42nd Street, New York, New York 10017. Deadline for information is April 6.

Deubeners Give Land To Create Courage North

"Deep in the Pines", a 95½-acre parcel of land covered with virgin timber and with some 1,400 feet of shoreline (including a fine beach) on Lake George, is situated some 10 miles east of Itasca state park in northern Minnesota.

The entire site was recently given to the Minnesota Society for Crippled Children and Adults, Inc. (MISCCA), by Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Deubener of St. Paul, "to be used in perpetuity for the benefit of the handicapped of Minnesota". This gift of property, which includes the Deubener's rustic home and guest cottates, has been renamed "Courage North." It is intended that it will, in its own way, operate in a manner similar to MISCCA's famed Camp Courate, located at Maple Lake near the Twin Cities.

For more than 32 years the Deubeners entertained extensively at their home "Deep in the Pines" and many friends, townspeople and tourists have enjoyed their hospitality and the peaceful, beautiful surroundings of this summer estate.

A long-range plan for this new project is being developed by the society, with the view of making maximum usage of the entire property for the handicapped. Several pilot projects will be conducted there this season, according to W. B. Schoenbohm, executive director of the society, including a wilderness camp for deaf teenagers.

Though participation and helping plan various aspects of this program, these campers will have an opportunity to accept responsibility and develop leadership. The camp will also serve as a new base for travel camping, a new feature of camp life; thus freeing facilities at Camp Courage for more residential campers.

Mr. and Mrs. Deubener, who are long-time residents of St. Paul, were married in 1909. In their early married life they ran a small "Cash and Carry" grocery store, located on the balcony of a ten-cent store in St. Paul. Deubener, noting that customers' purchases were often limited to what they could carry in their arms, first tried wrapping diverse articles in heavy paper and tying them with a strong string. Later he experimented with market baskets, which proved too bulky.

Mulling the problem over in his mind one night, the solution came to him. Next morning he and Mrs. Deubener could hardly wait to get to the store. Taking the first paper bag he could get his hands on, he punched two holes near the top and two near the bottom on both sides. Then he passed a loop of common white wrapping cord through the holes and around under the bottom and extended it upward to form handles at the top.

They stuffed 50 pounds of canned goods into the bag and were able to carry it easily around the store. The paper didn't tear because the weight was supported by the two portions of string under the bottom, and thus was born the first shopping bag.

This unique invention bore fruit instantly, and before long the Deubeners were engaged in full-time shopping bag production.

In gratitude for a long and useful life, the Deubeners have generously shared both their material and spiritual blessings. An indication of their interest in the handicapped took place when they presented their much loved summer estate to MISCCA for the future enjoyment of the crippled children and adults of Minnesota.

Trailblazers Meet Wednesday

Questions and Answers

Internal Revenue Service

Q—Are restaurants with annual sales of less than $100,000 exempt from price controls just like the small retailers?

A— Yes. Restaurants, as well as retailers with annual sales of less than $100,000, are exempt from price controls.

Q— Are rates for mobile home parks subject to the rent regulations?

A— Mobile home parks are governed by the general provisions of the rent regulations to the extent that they provice mobile home spaces for use in connection with the principal place of abode of nontransient occupants for a fee. If the park provides a space for a nonresidential use, the park is to that extent governed by the regulations applicable to service organizations.

Q— Will the IRS give me an immediate ruling on a policy decision of the price commission that has not yet been published in the "Federal Register"?

A—No. Because policy decisions of the three stabilization policy boards do not become effective and legally binding until they are published in the "Federal Register", you should wait until the regulation based on the policy decision is published before requesting a ruling.

In addition, the IRS suggests that individuals and businesses should not call with a question based on such policy decisions or news stories on policy decisions until the decision is clarified and implemented by being published in regulation form in the "Federal Register".

Q— My doctor has increased his fees for physical examinations by five per cent, but he said the increase is allowable because physicals account for only 10 per cent of his gross receipts. Doesn't the increase violate the 2.5 per cent standard set for health service providers?

A—If your doctor's allowable costs for physicals have increased five per cent and his profit margin has not increased, he may increase his fees for physicals to five per cent, because the effect of the price adjustment did not increase the doctor's revenues more than 2.5 per cent over what they would have been had he charged his base prices for all services throughout the year. In this instance, the five per cent increase for a service which constitutes only 10 per cent of the doctor's business would be equivalent to a 0.5 per cent increase for all services throughout the year - well below the 2.5 per cent standard. However, the five per cent increase for physicals must be counted in determining if subsequent price increases for other services exceed the 2.5 per cent overall limitation.

Q— Is it true that you must wait 90 days before filing a suit to recover for overcharges that are not "willful" violations of stabilization regulations?

A— Yes. Where the overcharge is not a willful one, before filing a suit, you must first make a bona fide claim for refund of the overcharge to the seller or renter and must not have received repayment of the overcharge within 90 days of the date you filed your refund claim.

Q— What does an employer have to prove to the pay board to obtain wage increases in excess of 5.5 per cent that are necessary to attract or retain essential employees?

A— To obtain this seven per cent exception to pay board standards, an employer must demonstrate to the board.

(1) That the wage or salary increase is necessary to attract or retain employees essential to the efficient operation of his business;

(2) That he has experienced a significant proportion of vacancies in an appropriate employee unit, despite intensive recruiting activity over a period of at least three months;

(3) That there has been no significant deterioration or reduction in other conditions of employment; and

(4) That there is reasonable expectation that higher wages will be effective in recruiting or maintaining a supply of qualified employees.

Mrs. Betty Rantanen of Middle River has been named Minnesota's outstanding farmer-sportsman for 1972. She will be awarded the honor by Lt. Gov. Rudy Perpich on Sunday, April 9, at the Northwest Sports and Travel show in the Minneapolis auditorium.

Mrs. Rantanen, [illegible] vehicle accident [illegible] is the first woman to win the [illegible] 24 year history.

Not [illegible] a man's work [illegible] registered Brown Swiss [illegible] managing the 80 acre farm after her husband's [illegible] she has raised five children [illegible] active conservation leader.

Leadership in community and youth activities include American Legion auxiliary, junior auxiliary advisor, girl's state chairman, FHA chapter advisor, county conservation leader, DFL women's co-chairman and 27 years as a 4-H leader. During this 27 years she has guided over 7[illegible] children in special conservation projects and has been awarded the Emerald Clover and state alumni award.

Mrs. Rantanen and her five children have a combined total of 97 years of conservation work. She cooperates in the soil and water conservation district program and manages her entire farm in a way that propagates wildlife. Five ponds provide water and cover for wildlife. In the last three years she has planted 2,500 trees and has 700 acres in grasses and clover.

Her wildlife conservation practices include provision of feeding stations and protection areas for wildlife and game, delay of mowing past nesting season and opening the land for hunting. Last year she left 25 acres of flax for upland game bird cover and for deer, moose and elk food.

As a farmer she raises registered Brown Swiss. The accumulated ribbons and trophies number over 1,000.

Among honors her four daughters and one son have chalked up are Northwest Dairy day grand champion purebred winner, Betty Crocker award winner, state junior Brown Swiss president, Minnesota girl's stater, top 4-H dairy judge at the Minnesota state fair, FFA forestry award, 1971 Frank Blair award, outstanding state junior Brown Swiss breeder.

Selection of county farmer-sportsman winners is made by local committees. The Minnesota farmer-sportsman committee selects the regional and state winners. All winners are named for their community leadership, conservation activities and farming record, according to Dr. Harold B. Swanson, chairman of the statewide farmer-sportsman committee.

Regional winners for 1972 are: Matt Miller, LeCenter, southeast district; Harvey Schlauderaff, Detroit Lakes, northwest district; Vernon Enger, St. James, southwest district; and Lawrence Mans, Hinckley, northeast district.

The class of about 20 students worked with silver and other precious metals to make jewelry during the winter quarter at Bemidji state college. Instructor Keith Malmquist points out that students in BSC jewelry classes have become adept at the use of metals and have gone beyond his expectations in design and fabrication of jewelry pieces and techniques.

CERTIFICATE of recognition was presented by Ford A. Marsh, left, president of Duraclean International, to Walter Cymbaluk (center) and his serviceman Lowell Lerud at a week-long training program in Chicago. They attended sessions on absorption cleaning and spot removing, carpet construction, personal and telephone selling, national and local advertising, special services to retailers and decorators, contract cleaning services and business management. Classes were conducted by the company's headquarters staff of Deerfield, Ill.

Law Enforcement Task Force Has County Members

Sheriff Charles Richards of Pennington county is a member of the board of directors of the Northwestern Minnesota law enforcement task force which was formed about a year ago. The unit is composed of approximately 80 law enforcement officers from 16 counties.

Purpose of the force is to provide experienced law enforcement officers to cope with both natural disasters and civil disorders. The force is available to the 16 counties in full strength or in smallerunits. If the unit is called to assist a law enforcement agency in a county or municipality the sheriff or chief of police would take command. To obtain the services of the unit, a member of the board must be notified. He decides how many squads will be sent.

The command center for the task force is a bus which was purchased with part of the $11,500 received from the governor's crime commission. The vehicle is garaged in Crookston but would be sent to support any squads that are called into action.

Each man has been issued a uniform, helmet and riot baton and is responsible for being available with his equipment, on short notice. To ensure that their minds are as ready as their equipment, they receive regular training from Max Graham of Minnesota's bureau of criminal apprehension.

Counties participating in the task force are Pennington, Marshall, Roseau, Kittson, Polk, Red Lake, Lake of the Woods, Clearwater, Beltrami, Cass, Hubbard, Clay, Norman, Wadena, Mahnomen and Becker. The Red Lake indian reservation is also in the task force.

Physicians Apply Cancer Research To New Treatment

A spin-off product of a cancer research program at the University of Minnesota has led to a new method of treating hemophilia — the bleeder's disease. The treatment made it possible for a university hospitals patient to undergo major lifesaving brain surgery.

The patient, a 20-year-old St. Paul man, developed evidence of bleeding on the surface of his brain. To correct the damage it became necessary to surgically remove the blood clot. Such surgery has a high risk for untreated hemophiliacs.

Hemophilia is a hereditary disease characterized by a lifelong tendency to prolonged hemmorrage in males. When hemophiliacs have bleeding (usually an internal hemorrhage) they are treated by transfusing a concentrated preparation of the normal clotting factor (Factor VIII) from normal human plasma. The patient's blood then clots normally.

This patient also had an additional complication. His immune system recognized normal Factor VIII as "foreign" and—just as the body develops antibodies against viruses and bacteria—the transfused material (Factor VIII) was rapidly destroyed, so the bleeding continued.

Before surgery could be attempted the bleeding tendency had to be temporarily, but quickly, corrected. University physicians theorized this could be done by removing the patient's plasma which carried the antibody and substituting normal Factor VIII concentrate.

University hospitals had been using a continuous flow blood cell seperator to treat patients with acute leukemia. The separator or Celltrifuge can selectively remove red or white blood cells or plasma (the clear liquid portion) from the blood. Under the direction of Dr. B. J. Kennedy, professor of medicine, leukemic patients had their excess white blood cells removed and received transfusions of normal white blood cells to protect them from infection.

The $27,000 machine was purchased last summer with a private contribution. Operating costs are taken care of by the university's leukemia research fund.

To rapidly reduce the amount of antibody in the plasma the hemophilia patient was put on the machine. The plasma with the Factor VIII antibody was separated out and replaced with fresh normal plasma. More than 80 per cent of the antibody was removed in about two hours.

Then the patient was taken to the operating room wher Dr. Shelly Chou, professor of neurosurgery, removed the clot. After six weeks the patient went home in good health. Dr. Chou said the patient did quite well but added the doctors still had a few weeks of worry because of the bleeding tendency.

Dr. Roger Edson, director of the coagulation laboratory and assistant professor of laboratory medicine, emphasized that without the Celltrifuge the physicians would have had to resort to whole blood exchange transfusions that would have taken between 12 and 14 hours.

"The time difference was the difference between life and death," he said.

Dr. Kennedy stressed that this spin-off product of cancer research illustrates that cancer research involves many aspects of medicine and that cancer research benefits are applicable to many diseases.

"There were many essential factors in the treatment of this patient, of which the cell separator is only one.

"The availability," he continued, "of large amounts of Factor VIII concentrates would have been impossible two years ago; a new chemical method of suppressing new antibody formation and the team efforts of a considerable number of university physicians, nurses and laboratory personnel were essential to this patient's survival."

Farmers Adjust Planting Pattern Since January

Minnesota farmers have made some significant adjustments in 1972 planting intentions since January and will cut more than 974,000 acres or six per cent on the total acreage in the seven major field crops, Agriculture Commissioner Jon Wefald reported today.

He said continued depression of corn prices and failure of Congress to overcome administration opposition to increased federal price supports apparently influenced an additional five per cent cutback in corn acreage to 5,800,000, or 12 per cent less than was grown last year.

The added 312,000-acre cut in corn acreage since January probably influenced the changes in acreage farmers intend to plant this year to soybeans, wheat, barley and flax. Only oats acreage remained unchanged from the January intentions—2,883,000 acres—but seven per cent less than was raised in 1971.

Soybean acreage is the only gainer in the March intentions compiled by the state-federal crop and livestock reporting service of the Minnesota department of agriculture. The new report indicates a 29,000-acre increase since January to a state total of 3,120,000 acres, or nine per cent more than were raised in 1971.

Minnesota wheat growers intend to cut durum acreage to 28,000, or 32 per cent less than last year, and other spring wheat to 1,345,000 acres—down 59,000 from January—or eight per cent less than in 1971.

Barley is another big loser, cut 51,000 acres or six per cent from the 857,000 acres raised last year and the same amount they had intended to raise according to the January forecast. A factor in this reduction may be the serious loose barley smut problem in available seed stocks, about which Minnesota growers have been twice warned by Commissioner Wefald.

Flax growers slashed another 10,000 acres from January intentions and the March forecast of 181,000 acres represents only 74 per cent of 1971 acreage.

Commissioner Wefald noted that spring weather conditions, as well as the grain markets can still influence further acreage shifts or cutbacks when the crops are actually planted.

Fair Farm Prices Said To Stimulate National Economy

"Fair farm prices would provide the greatest source of economic stimulation for rural development this nation has seen in decades," Minnesota Agriculture Commissioner Jon Wefald declared today.

He said that if farmers only received the same net income as the average urban worker it would represent in Minnesota alone a minimum of $200 million annually for rural development. . .which would be comparable to 200 new industries coming to Minnesota all with a payroll of $1 million each, every year!

"If farmers, moreover, were paid full parity prices for their increased production or at a comparable wage rate with their urban counterparts, the funds for rural economic growth could be four times as much, or the equivalent of over 800 new $1 million payroll industries annually. That would be at least one new million dollar industry for every small town in Minnesota every year," Commissioner Weflad maintained.

"Fair farm prices can stem the rural out-migration and be an effective, positive center-force against nationally increasing unemployment and welfare costs," he insists.

Commissioner Wefald urged public support for swift Congressional approval of a bill (S.3195) authored by Minnesota Senators Walter Mondale and Hubert Humphrey to require the U.S. secretary of agriculture to exercise the option he now has by law to maintain farm prices at 90 per cent of parity.

"Our farmers haven't received 90 per cent of parity since 1954. Current prices are about 73 per cent of parity, the lowest they have ever been in ratio to parity since the depression year of 1933," he stated.

"The Mondale-Humphrey bill is a major proposal to reduce, not completely solve, the economic discrimination against the farming industry by an arbitrary national cheap food policy that both political parties are guilty of maintaining for nearly two decades," Commissioner Wefald declared.

He said the proposal also is one that shouuld be acceptable to consumers because increasing farm prices to 90 per cent of parity would actually increase the farmer's share of retail food costs by less than four per cent.

"The farmer's share of retail food costs now is only about 38 cents per consumer dollar, one of the lowest rates in history. The proposed increase would only boost the farmer's share to 41.83 cents per retail food dollar, or barely above the 1969 level and under the 43 per cent farm share average of 1952-56 retail food costs," explained Commissioner Wefald.

He added, "I doubt that many consumers would seriously oppose this modest hike in food prices if they knew the true facts about the disparity of farm income and honestly measured what four cents more per food dollar can do to revitalize the entire rural economy.

"The fact is, documented by the Secretary of Agriculture personally, that the nation's farmers are continuing to receive less than three fourths the average urban income. This is notwithstanding the fact the average farmer works twice as many hours per week on the farm, that he augments inadequate farm income with jobs off the farm and receives a modest federal government subsidy."

Official statistics for Minnesota reveal the gap between average farm and non-farm income is widening and hit an all-time high of $1,916 more for urban workers in 1970, the last year for which figures are available. In 1968 the average Minnesota farmer received $878 less net income than his urban counterpart.

Commissioner Wefald said that during the 15 years 1956-70 Minnesota farm income fell $3,017,223,000 below the urban average. He pointed out that represents an equivalent loss of 3,017 new $1 million payroll industries, merely on a comparison of farm and urban average incomes and not related to any parity ratio.

He also pointed out that in the last 15 years Minnesota has experienced the loss of 43,000 family farming units, due to low farm prices.

"But low prices didn't just force the 181,000 people who left Minnesota farms to compete for jobs in the towns, villages and cities. According to the Secretary of Agriculture over 48 per cent of the total net income of farm families in the nation last year was derived from off the farm jobs.

"That means the majority of our present farmers have been forced to compete for city jobs to earn an income that is still below the federal poverty level on the average," Commissioner Wefald concluded.

State Requires Safety Course For Motorcycles

With the deadline near, several Minnesota driver education schools and instructors are ready to offer motorcycle training to prospective applicants who want two-wheeled vehicle endorsements on their driver licenses.

Effective April 15, every applicant for a motorcycle endorsement who is under the age of 18 must furnish a certificate to verify that he has completed an approved motorcycle safety course. Both commercial and public schools are preparing to offer the training as soon as weather permits.

Not all of the commercial schools or the high school driver education departments will be offering it, but it is expected that the training will be available in all areas of the state. Some 600 instructors are qualified to give the training.

Preparations have included special college-level courses for the instructors, development of curriculum, and obtaining of vehicles. In some cases simulators will be used for part of the on-vehicle instruction.

Students will receive eight to 12 hours of classroom work and six to 10 hours of driving instruction. The driving instruction will be on motorcycles with not less than 17-inch wheels and not less than 90cc motors.

ARCTIC INN, the proposed motel and convention center complex planned for Thief River Falls by Robert Kinsman, is shown in this architect's drawing. The complex is pictured as it would look from the southwest with entrance from highway 32 in the lower left foreground. Kinsman, who has sold his Border Drug business to devote all of his efforts to the motel complex, said that he hopes to start construction in about six weeks. Completion would be expected in 10 months to a year after construction begins. Kinsman said the Arctic Inn would have 96 motel units, three meeting rooms capable of handling 150 people each or opened up to handle 450 people, plus dining area for 150 people in the main dining room and 35 to 40 additional people in each of two private dining areas. He said the complex would cover three acres of land and that surfacing and landscaping would be done at the same time as the building construction if possible. Lack of assurance of the availability of a liquor license is one of the problems he currently faces, and Kinsman says the necessity of a liquor license for successful operation is "an economic fact of life"

Mayor, Council Comment On New Motel Proposal

Letter to the Editor

To the Editor:

In your March 15 issue of the Times a letter was published expressing a great deal of moral outrage at the action taken by the City Council in advising one of our local citizens that the Council would cooperate with him in detaching certain land from the City so that he could get an on-sale liquor license for his proposed motel and would furnish him with City sewer and water if he would re-annex to the City. Some rather high-powered language was used which, unfortunately, seems always to be the case whenever an issue arises involving liquor so we feel compelled to make some response in our defense, hopefully in a less hysterical tone. This letter does not concern itself so much with the factual errors of the original letter as with the integrity of the Council and the reasons for the action taken.

Whether we like it or not, it seems to be economic fact of life that a large motel-convention complex such as proposed cannot be operated sucessfully without the availability of a license for the sale of intoxicating liquors. Such a license can be obtained only with respect to a place of business located outside the City limits. The preferred site for this complex is within the City limits so the property must be detached until such time as a liquor license is obtained.

However, the proposed builder, Mr. Kinsman, would like to have City sewer and water service as well and the City has a long-standing policy of not furnishing these utilities to properties outside the City limits so it required Mr. Kinsman to agree to re-annex to the City as a condition of getting these utilities.

There are some alternatives, all of them unworkable or undesirable:

1. The property could be permitted to remain outside the City. The Council would then have to decide whether to permit connection with City sewer and water; we think that the demands of public health and the environment certainly compel us to permit these connections, but we are firmly behind the long-standing Council policy that if properties are to receive City benefits they should be within the City limits, SUBMITTING TO CITY POLICE CONTROL AND PAYING CITY TAXES.

2. Mr. Kinsman could be told to find another site outside the City limits. This has all the defects of the previous alternative with the additional objection that it would almost certainly cost substantially more money to provide the new site with utilities.

3. The City could go entirely out of the liquor business and issue a license. We think this is unnecessary and not in the public interest.

4. A new vote could be taken and the split-liquor issue resubmitted. The fatal defect of this alternative is that it takes a substantial period of the time to get geared up for a special election, permit the issue to be adequately and fairly discussed by the proponents and opponents, prepare and print ballots, publish notices, etc. and Mr. Kinsman informed the Council that he hoped to commence construction by May 1 of this year so he needed to have an answer immediately. A lesser consideration is the rather substantial expense connected with the holding of an election.

5. The Council could decline to do anything and simply walk away from the problem. This wouldnhave been the easy way out. Our opinion is that we have an obligation to cooperate with people who are proposing to

Dr. Philip Raup of the agricultural economics department of the University of Minnesota's insitutue of agriculture in St. Paul will be the guest speaker on the topic "You and World Agriculture". Musical entertainment will also be provided.

Instructors in the program in addition to Sisler are Verne Spengler, Donald Johnsen and Harry Oen.

Kinsman Sells Border Drug To Somody Supply

Border Drug, Inc., originated by Robert Kinsman in Thief River Falls 16 years ago, has been sold effective April 1 to Somody Supply, Inc., of Willmar.

Kinsman said he will now be devoting his full energies to business concerning his Arctic Inn motel and convention center complex proposed along highway 32 on the south edge of Thief River Falls. For the present he will maintain his office in the Border Drug facility.

From a small beginning 16 years ago, Border Drug grew to cover an area south to Wadena, east to the Iron Range, north to the Canadian border and west to central North Dakota. The firm sold non-prescription drug items and sundries through its own display counters in grocery stores and other retail outlets in the area served.

It is expected that the new owners will use warehouse facilities here and continue Thief River Falls as a distribution center for the area but will carry its inventory control and accounting operation in Willmar. Drivers and salesmen from the Border Drug operation will be retained by the new owners.

HOSPITALIZED veterans in Thief River Falls and Fargo will have more television sets to use following presentations made by Pup Tent 42 of the Military Order of Cooties in Thief River Falls. To Raise Funds To Aid Retarded

Governor Wendell Anderson has proclaimed Sunday as Minnesota's third annual Honey Sunday to aid the retarded. The goal of Honey Sunday, sponsored by the Minnesota Jaycees and locally by the Thief River Falls Jaycees, is to raise funds for various programs to benefit the mentally retarded.

Volunteers throughout the state will be asking for a $1 donation for each 12-oz. plastic squeeze bottle of Minnesota honey specially labeled for Honey Sunday.

This year's Honey Sunday will bring the realization of a goal set by the Jaycees three years ago to raise funds to replace a main lodge building at Camp Friendship, located on Clearwater lake near Annandale.

Parents Without Partners Group Is Being Formed

People interested in forming a local chapter of Parents Without Partners (PWP) held an organizational meeting recently at Redeemer Lutheran church in Thief River Falls.

Rev. Phil Lathrop explained the function of the organization which has its national headquarters in Washington, D.C. Members come from all walks of life and may be divorced, widowed, widowers, unwed mothers, wives of military men, etc.

Associating the talking with others who are faced with the every-day difficulties arising from raising a family without a partner could be helpful. A few of the topics which may be discussed include child discipline through the years, companionship, religion, education, and where to find assistance.

Norman Midthun of the day-night unit at Northwestern hospital offered his advice and assistance to help form the local club.

The next meeting will be held April 11 (Tuesday) at 8 p.m. at Redeemer Lutheran church. Anyone with suggestions or expressing an interest in the organization is welcome. People who have questions or need a baby sitter or a ride so that they can attend the meeting may call Rev. Lathrop at 681-3390 or Dianne Hicks at 681-3439.

March Averages Little Colder Than Normal

March averaged about two degrees colder than the five-year average. The mean temperature was 18.3 degrees and the average mean for the last five years was 19.8 degrees.

One unusual fact about the weather in March is that the daily mean temperature for the third week of the month was more than 40 degrees higher than the mean for the first week. The mean for the first week was -5.2 degrees and the mean for the third week was 35.4 degrees.

Although it is normal for the temperature to be rising in March, it doesn't often jump so much in one week and stay so consistently high. The last week of the month was back down to 25.1 degrees and starting the drop which left the area with the present low temperatures.

The average daily high was 28 degrees compared with 30.7 for the five-year average. Average low was 8.6 degrees with a five-year average of 8.9 degrees.

Highest temperature for the month was 51 degrees on March 21. The day with the lowest high temperature was March 4 when the temperature only reached six degrees below zero.

Lowest temperature for the month was recorded on March 2 when the temperature dropped to -27 degrees. On March 16 the low temperature for the day was 30 degrees; that was the highest low temperature for the month.

IT's smart to sew... millions do it... and sewing can be an extraordinary outlet for self-expression and imagination, says Sarah Cox, assistant professor in clothing at the University of Minnesota. She notes that the first step is figure analysis, to determine figure type to select a commerical pattern.

Standardized charts in all pattern catalogs simplify the process. The most widely used measurements are bust, waist and hips. Probably the most widely used figure type in the catalogs is misses. The figure includes a B cup bust measurement and hip area fullest nine inches below the waist.

For those who are Misses figure type, but are short-waisted and a little fuller through the waist (than indicated on the Misses chart)... try Miss Petite. Women's patterns, on the other hand, are designed for the full, mature figure... C or D cup bust, long back waist length and full hips.

Half size patterns are for those with short, thick figures with a full, low bust. Waist and hip measurements are larger in proportion to bust in these patterns.

The Junior pattern is suited for the woman or young lady with a well proportioned figure and a short waist length. It follows the A cup, high bust.

A tall person, says Miss Cox, should select the figure type pattern that most nearly fits her figure... regardless of the height indicated by the pattern company. It is easier to lengthen pattern pieces than make other alterations.

Choose the figure type which most closely resembles the individual figure, disregarding any age connotations. Then buy the appropriate size from within that pattern type.

Bergland Boosts Investigation On Prices Of Meat

U. S. Representative Bob Bergland has announced that a full scale investigation "to determine the true villain" behind high retail meat prices will be held in Washington on April 10, 11 and 13. The agriculture subcommittee on livestock and feed grains, on which Bergland serves, will conduct the hearings.

Official investigation was obtained through the efforts of the Democratic study group's task force on agriculture of which Bergland is vice chairman and which had planned to hold an ad hoc investigation into meat pricing practices if official hearings were not scheduled by the House committee on agriculture.

In calling for the hearings Bergland said: "Certain political interests have been playing a game in placing the blame for high consumer meat prices. Without concrete facts and without any positive recommendations," Bergland continued, "they have in turn blamed farmers, the working man, truckers and railroads for the difficulty. In the meantime housewives continue to suffer from high meat prices and farmers continue to suffer from dipping prices."

"It is beyond me how people watching the continual rise in retail prices and the continual drop in farm prices can possibly blame the American farmer for the difficulty. These hearings will place the blame where it belongs," he said.

Management Of Water In Home Can Save Money

"Better water management" is a term you'll be hearing a lot this year. It refers to the need for water conservation and pollution control. Even if your area doesn't suffer from water shortages, there is much you can do to conserve water in your home, and save money in the process.

These water-saving tips come from J. B. Haverly, a regional director of the national association of plumbing-heating-cooling contractors. He represents the states of Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota and Wisconsin for the 8,500-member association, which is dedicated to upgrading plumbing standards and promoting public health.

(1) Have leaky faucets fixed or replaced. A one-sixteenth-inch leak wastes 3,000 gallons a month. At average rates, this costs about $30 a year. If the leak is from a hot water faucet, add about $20 for the cost of heating the water.

(2) Equip your faucets with aerators. They introduce millions of air bubbles into the water. You use less water because it suds up faster.

(3) Replace old-fashioned shower heads. New ones use less water and increase enjoyment of the shower since you can regulate the spray.

(4) Add a thermostatic temperature control to your shower. A family of four averages about 1,200 shower baths a year. Manual control showers waste about 2.5 gallons of water while it's being adjusted to the desired temperature. A thermostatic control can save you at least $10 a year in water and fuel.

(5) Some authorities say that 50 per cent of the water coming into the home is wasted. Work at saving water until it becomes a habit. If you wash dishes by hand, stopper you sink or use a dishpan. Rinse them at one time with a hose spray instead of individually. Don't leave the water running while shaving.nA running faucet while shaving uses about 20 gallons.

Mayor, Council Comment About Motel Proposal

make multi-million dollar investments in our community even if a "liquor" issue is involved, and we think we would really have some explanations to make if we lack the courage of our convictions and any vacillation or indecision on our part discourages the construction of this improvement.

The processes of annexation and detachment are nothing more nor less than legal tools which have no attributes of morality or immorality in themselves. In this situation they can be used to achieve the best possible solution for all concerned. The proposed builder is eligible for a liquor license from the County so as a practical matter, whether within or immediately outside the City limits, we will have split liquor. The Council would also like to emphasize that there has been no secrecy involved. From the very beginning, the people have been informed as to what steps would have to be taken in order for the complex to be located at the proposed site, and still receive an on-sale private liquor license.

The only real question is whether or not the property should be permitted to remain outside the City limits. We don't think so.

Respectfully,
Mayor and City Council

He will work in cooperation with the curriculum coordinator, the coordinator of student services, and the director of admissions and financial aid.

The newly appointed coordinator is a Minnesota native and a member of the Chippewa Indian tribe. He was born on the Red Lake reservation and attended school there and in Bemidji.

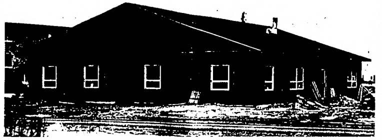
Oliver is a professional musician and has played lead guitar with a country Western band, traveling in a five-state area.

"I have lived in both Indian and white man's land," Oliver said, "and know how an Indian feels away from home and how white people treat us. Many treat us well and as equals; many hate us and treat us like dirt. I have learned to live with each kind. I would like to help other Indians learn this. If they get knocked down, I want to help them get up and not retreat back to their homes.

"I have always been interested in the welfare of my people. I want to see them treated fair and given the opportunities they deserve," he declared.

"Annie Oliver is a fine addition to our staff," said Dr. David Larrabee, curriculum coordinator at the college in commenting on his employment. Through his efforts we hope to offer more opportunities to students from minority groups, especially our Minnesota Indian population."

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver and their four-year-old daughter, Margo Lee, are living at 306 Jackson St.



DUE TO BE COMPLETED July 1 is the new department of agriculture building which will house the Farmers Home administration, Soil Conservation service and Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation service. The structure is being built one block west of highway 59 near the new municipal off-sale liquor store.

NSP Pays Total Of $36 Million In Minn. Taxes

Northern States power company added up its 1971 Minnesota personal propery and real estate tax bills this week at a total figure close to $36 million, qualifying again as the state's largest property taxpayer.

In Red Lake county, NSP taxes for 1971 are about $475, compared with $495 the previous year, according to D. E. Healy, manager of the firm's Grand Forks division. In Polk county the total is $36,200.

Minnesota property taxes make up a large proportion of NSP's over-all tax bill. In addition, NSP's Minnesota corporate income taxes for 1971 were about $2 million, and Wisconsin and the Dakotas will collect about $6 million in property taxes and $640,000 in state income taxes. Federal income taxes for the company total about $13,500,000.

All federal, state and local taxes—including deferred income taxes and others not enumerated above—come to about $73,900,000—the company's largest single operating expense, accounting for about 19 cents on every dollar of NSP revenue,nor about $66 per customer.

"It's part of the cost of doing business, of course," Healy commented, "and a firm the size of NSP must expect to be a big tax contributor. We hope our customers understand what a major cost it is." He noted that dividends on NSP common stock in 1971 were $1.70 per share, while the company's total tax payments amounted to $3.89 per share.

Legislators In Moorhead Area Endorse Valan

Three state legislators from western Minnesota have issued a joint public statement endorsing Merlyn Valan to become this year's GOP Congressional candidate and urging delegates to the 7th District GOP convention April 15 in Fergus Falls to join them.

A small grain and sugar beet farmer in Clay county all his adult life, Valan's extensive work in various farm organizations as well as in his own fields are stressed in the statement issued by Sen. William Dosland of Moorhead, Rep. Douglas Sillers of rural Moorhead and Rep. Arlan Stangeland of rural Barnesville.

A member of the three-man Minnesota Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation committee (ACS), Valan, 45, has been a member of both the Minnesota and Clay county crop improvement associations, is former president of the Clay County Sugar Beet Growers association, former member of the executive committee of the Red River Valley Sugar Beet Growers association, a former public school board member, former agriculture chairman for the Minnesota Jaycees and a former 4-H club adult leader.

Valan has taken an active part in promoting good government and sound agricultural policies for this area through work in a variety of Republican party posts at the local and state level, prior to his ASC appointment. In addition, he served as a special clerk in the Minnesota Senate for five consecutive legislative sessions. In the 1971 session, he was named chief of clerks in the senate.

Because of his ASC post, Valan is unable to actively campaign himself for the endorsement. Volunteers can and are working to try and secure the party endorsement to offer him at the district convention.

Valan informed his volunteer committee leaders early last month that he will leave his part-time ASC job and accept the party endorsement if it is tendered him at the district convention.

The American Conscience

by Dr. RUDY SKOGERBOE

For a believer in the resurrection of Christ on Easter morning, the weeks following Easter has a special meaning. It reminds them of the establishment of the New Testament Church on Earth. This church has survived centuries of opposition, change, persecution and internal mistakes. The flame of the true Christian Church has never died. It has often been confused by modern interpretations as a highly competitive conglomeration of differenct church organizations. What is seen, of course, is a great number of sects, synods, national church groups, world wide organizations, and all manner of splinter groups claiming special reasons for declaring themselves as the true church. What is often forgotten is that the true or Universal Christian Church is made up of believers who basically think alike and are found everywhere. These true believers are found both in and out of these physical churches. Although it should include the membership of all churches, it doesn't necessarily do so.

There is a great movement in the world to make a workable union of all these churches. At first glance, this idea sounds great. It is called the ecumenical movement. In a world dominated by forces antagonistic toward Christianity, the necessity for Christians to work together for a better world is imperative. Some are trying to bring all churches together in a world organization. This may or may not be good depending on who directs it. At the present time we have the World Council of Churches which is not trusted by many true believers because of its political activities which seems to cooperate too much with official representatives from communist countries. In a world where one third of the people are slaves to totalitarian governments, we see these Christians persecuted for their faith as never before. This same world has another third still practicing freedom and here Christianity can grow and prosper as it pleases. In the other third, approximately, there is a great struggle going on. Here the powers represented by anti Christian totalitarian governments are trying to gain control. Chairman Mao, for example has written his plans carefully for all to read if they wish.

The problem is not these great military forces under their dictators as terrible as they might be and are. The greatest problem is the lack of unity of spirit in the free countries to know what we have and what we want to preserve. The freedom to worship as we please; the freedom to raise money for charity, the freedom to raise our children without government interference or thought control and many other freedoms is the name of the game. If we forget this, we might see changes in our own society that we don't want. The Christian is always thankful our country is at least nominally a God fearing nation. Our money says "In God we trust." Our pledge of allegience says "Under God." This is precious to those who still believe in the miracle of the resurrection. It should be our dedication to see that our children can always have this great freedom.

MPCA Director Pleased By Water Quality Bill

Grant J. Merritt, executive director of the Minnesota pollution control agency, said today he was "very pleased" over passage by the U.S. House of Representatives of an amendment to the federal water quality bill allowing states to prohibit all discharges from watercraft.

The measure, sponsored by Rep. Donald Fraser of Minnesota, passed the House as an amendment to the House version of a comprehensive water pollution control bill. The House later passed the entire bill.

The senate, which passed a similar measure several months ago, did not include the question of effluent discharges from boats. The bill will now go to a House-Senate conference committee, and Meritt said he hopes the Fraser amendment would remain intact.

The overall House legislation, as reported out of the House public works committee, would have allowed treated effluent discharges from vessels and would not have permitted states to set more stringent discharge standards.

The 1971 Minnesota legislature enacted a no discharge standard to apply to all watercraft in Minnesota by Dec. 31, 1975. The measure also prohibits discharges from newly licensed boats by Jan. 1, 1973. Already in effect is another portion of the state law prohibiting discharges from newly licensed boats into the Mississippi and St. Croix rivers where they form the Minnesota-Wisconsin boundary. That measure took effect last January 1.

"This is a significant measure and I am very grateful to Representative Fraser and his staff for working so hard for its passage," Merritt said. "Without it, Minnesota's no discharge legislation would have been overruled by weaker federal standards. I hope it remains in the final version of the bill and becomes federal law," he added.

The MPCA is now conducting a statewide survey to determine possible areas where the 1975 no discharge deadline might be accelerated to meet any critical need.

PENNINGTON ASCS ACTIVITIES

— by —
WALLACE SPARBY
Executive Director

No additional payments will be made under the 1971 feed grain program. The feed grain regulations stated that the 1971 payments for corn and grain sorghum, when added to the national average market price received by farmers during the first five months of the marketing year beginning October 1, 1971, should not be less than $1.35 per bushel for corn and $1.24 per bushel for grain sorghum.

The national average market price received by farmers during the five month period Oct. 1, 1971 through Feb. 29, 1972, was $1.05 per bushel for corn and $1.03 per bushel for grain sorghum.

Payments of 32 cents per bushel for corn and 29 cents per bushel for grain sorghum constitute final payments since the average market price plus the payments received exceed $1.35 for corn and $1.25 for grain sorghum. Those are the bases for not paying any additional payment in the 1971 feed grain program.

The preliminary payment on the wheat program for 1971 was paid in July of 1971, along with the final payment being paid out in December of 1971.

We do not know for sure if there will be a final payment again in 1972; however, we do know that the prelininary payment will be paid in July if possible. The final wheat payment is the difference between the final face value of the domestic certificates determined to be 63 cents per bushel and the prelininary payment.

The final face value of the certificates is the difference between 100 per cent of the parity price of $2.93 on July 1 and the national average wheat price of $1.30 per bushel received by farmers for the five-month period July through November, 1971.

Final payments are computed on the basis of 43 cents per bushel. The preliminary payments of $1.20 per bushel made on July 1 were based on 75 per cent of the $1.60 estimated face value of the domestic wheat certificate on July 1.

The agricultural act of 1970 provides for preliminary payments under the wheat, feed grain and cotton programs. Only in the wheat program is the preliminary payment specified as a percentage of the final payment. In the feed grain program the preliminary payment may be the total payment due unless market conditions warrant a final payment. This payment will then be made for feed grains after March 1, 1973.

Next week I will write about the wool program and the wool incentive payments as they pertain to the wool marketing year 1971-72.

NW Educational Ass'n. Selects New Officers

New officers for the reorganized board of the Northwest educational improvement association were chosen recently. Elected president of the group was Marie Nelson, Crookston. Other officers are C. J. Hastad, Halstad, vice president; Mrs. Russell Sebenaler, Mentor, secretary; and Boyd Holcomb, Crookston, treasurer.

The group has also chosen a new board of directors for one, two and three-year terms. Ed Odland, Warren Woolery and Armin Ross, all of Crookston, Bernard Nelson, Greenbush, and Allen Swan, Hallock, will serve for one year.

Two-year term members are Peter Carlson, Argyle; Holcomb; Mrs. Sebenaler; Albin Erickson, Roseau; and Jerry Wendorff, Warren. Those on the board for three years include Herman Natwick, Ada; Mrs. Glenn Gumlia and Miss Nelson, Crookston, Hastad; and Mrs. Martin Healy, Red Lake Falls.

Woolery, Natwick, Holcomb and Erickson have had previous association with NWEIA.

Tom Hagen, retiring president, presided at the meeting, which was held on the campus of the University of Minnesota technical college. Commenting on the early efforts of the board in bringing an institution of higher learning to the area, Hagen extended his thanks to the founders and contributors throughout the Red River Valley.

Provost S. D. Sahlstrom, host for the meeting, called upon the newly elected officers and board "to be aware of the needs of education in their areas and to assist higher education by working to meet these needs."

Several minors were charged with consuming an alcoholic beverage. Mark Lindahl paid a fine of $50 when he pleaded guilty. Thomas Puppe of Thief River Falls forfeited $50 bond. Chris Nelson of Goodridge forfeited $50 bond.

Carol R. Elg of New Brighton pleaded guilty to having an open container in a motor vehicle and was ordered to pay a fine of $50 or spend 15 days in jail. James S. Erickson of Goodridge paid $50 fine for the same offense when he pleaded guilty.

Wade A. Harbott of Thief River Falls pleaded guilty to leaving the scene of an accident and was fined $300 with $100 suspended.

Craig W. Lindahl of Thief River Falls admitted that he was guilty of reckless driving but his bond has not yet been paid.

Judy R. Anderson of Kennedy paid a fine of $20 when she pleaded guilty to failing to stop for a stop sign.

Economist Sheds Little Light On Trading Stamps

If you're getting trading stamps at the supermarket are you paying more for groceries than if you shopped where the gummed tokens are not offered?

University of Minnesota agricultural economisty Mary Ryan says the effect trading stamps have on retail prices, if any, is difficult to determine. Some studies indicate that there was little difference between the prices on an over-all basis in stores that give and don't give trading stamps.

The price differences of items in cities where a U.S. department of agriculture survey was conducted do not substantiate the notion that stamp stores charge higher prices for foods not regularly purchased by housewives. Prices for all items in stamp-giving stores in five cities surveyed averaged 2.2 per cent higher than in stores not giving trading stamps, according to the USDA study.

The study indicated the average prices paid by consumers in stamp stores were six-tenths of a per cent more than in stores that didn't give stamps. The difference was equal to about 30 per cent of the average merchandise value of the stamps.

"It would appear that, on the average in the 21 cities studied, consumers who save and redeem stamps can more than recoup the relative price difference between stamp and non-stamp stores," USDA researchers concluded.

Miss Ryan suggests that consumers evaluate grocery store prices and the merits of merchandise obtained for stamps the same as they would in any other buying situation.

Some supermarkets, in their advertising, give the impression that they have dropped trading stamps so they can reduce prices. It's not uncommon, particularly in metropolitan markets, for supermarket chains to experiment with marketing technqiues by dropping stamp distribution in area outlets. Meanwhile, the local outlets of another chain, where stamps were not offered, may begin to distribute stamps. It's part of a cycle in grocery marketing—stamps are in or out, depending on the retailer's marketing strategy.

But the Trading Stamp institute of America, Inc., has countered advertising claims that dropping stamps results in lower food prices.

"Don't count on lower prices when your trading stamp bonus is gone. Food store history proves it doesn't work that way. In cities where leading food stores have dropped stamps, therir prices may have seemed a tiny bit lower at first. But then they jumped right back up again," the stamp organization has stated.

Yet some stores that have dropped the stamps, which in most cases can be redeemed for "gifts", have reported that there is little adverse consumer reaction to stamp discontinuance and that stamps are one exepnse that can be cut with no real problem.

How's Your Health

(Prepared in the public interest by the Minnesota Medical Association.)

If your child swallowed a poisonous substance, would you know what to do? Speedy action, but not panic, is essential. Be prepared in case precautions you have taken against accidental poisonings fail.

Call your physician immediately, says the Minnesota state medical association. If possible, begin first aid while another person calls a physician.

The nature of the poison determines the first aid you give and what treatment the physician administers. Save the labeled poison container and its remaining contents to show the physician.

In addition, note the following facts about first aid measures or accidental poisonings:

Do not induce vomiting if the patient (1) is unconscious or in convulsions, (2) has swallowed a petroleum product such as kerosene, gasoline or lighter fluid, or (3) has swallowed a corrosive poison that causes severe pain and burning in the mouth and throat.

If a corrosive poison is swallowed, give milk or water; one to two cups for small children, as much as a quart for those over five. Corrosive poisons are found in toilet bowl cleaners, rust-removers, drain cleaners and household bleaches.

If a non-corrosive poison is swallowed, an overdose of medicine, for example, give milk or warm water and induce vomiting by depressing the back of the patient's tongue.

A card detailing what to do in case of accidental poisoning is available from the American Medical Association, 535 North Dearborn St., Chicago, Illinois, 60610. Single copies are 10 cents.

Holiday eating should do more than satisfy hunger or provide pleasure, says the Minnesota State Medical association. It should contribute to the health and well-being of the eater. Let's explore the nutritional value of some of the foods you may prepare during the holidays.

Take turkey for instance. Turkey provides substantial amounts of protein, iron, phosphorus and the B complex vitamins. There is little difference in the nutritive value of light and dark meat although dark meat contains more fat than white meat and less niacin, a member of the vitamin B complex. Turkey meat is very digestible, with little difference in digestibility between dark and light meat.

If you plan to have potatoes, either white potatoes or sweet potatoes, you will be adding a rich source of vitamins. White potatoes provide vitamin C and protein. Unfortunately, they have a reputation for being a "fattening" food. You may be surprised to learn, however, that a medium potato supplies only 90 calories. Sweet potatoes are an extremely rich source of vitamin A. They also supply a substantial amount of vitamin C and significant amounts of the vitamin B complex.

Try to include fruits and vegetables in your holiday meals. They will provide your family with vitamin A, and those containing carotene, with vitamin C. In addition, they contain riboflavin, thiamine, calcium, iron and folic acid.

If you decide to serve breads, watch for whole grain, enriched or restored cereal products. They contain important amounts of protein, thiamine, riboflavin, niacin and iron.

Nuts are popular holiday snacks. Peanuts, in particular, are a relatively inexpensive source of protein. Two tablespoons of peanuts contain about 12 per cent of the daily allowance recommended for an adult man.

What about desserts? You can plan them around nutritional value, too. Pumpkin pie, for example, will provide your family with vitamin A, some protein, calcium, niacin, riboflavin, thiamine, and iron. Eggs and milk, of course, add to its nutritional value.

There is usually a lot of preparation for holiday festivities. In the excitement, do not overlook nutritious holiday meals.

"Inguinal hernia is the most commonly encountered condition requiring abdominal surgery in a pediatric hospital," says St. Paul surgeon Dr. Bernard G. Lannin in an article in the February issue of Minnesota Medicine, Journal of the Minnesota State Medical Association. It is exceeded in frequency only by tonsillectomies, he states.

What are inguinal hernias? Are they dangerous? How are they treated?

Hernias are due to an opening or weakness in the abdominal wall, says the Minnesota State Medical Association. The intestines beneath push through such areas and cause a bulging or ballooning. An inguinal hernia is located in the lower abdomen where it joins the thigh. It and the umbilical hernia which occurs in the navel region, are the two types of hernias most commonly found in infants and children.

Hernias are more common among boy children than girl children. In boys, 80 per cent occur in the groin, the inguinal area, because as the testes descend to the outside of the body a month or two before birth, the inguinal canal may not be sealed properly by tissue. A poor seal leaves a weakness or opening in the abdominal wall which may give way to pressure.

As long as protruding organs move freely in and out of the abdominal cavity, hernia presents no immediate danger. But, if they should become caught outside the abdominal sac, they may become strangulated. Blood is cut off and gangrene may set in.

Inguinal hernias may be temporarily treated by trusses. A very few seem to heal spontaneously, but most physicians prefer surgery as a precaution and so a growing child's normal activities are not restricted.

Chickenpox is one of the childhood diseases nobody seems to take seriously any longer. It is true that by itself, chickenpox is a mild disease. But complications can be serious, warns the Minnesota state medical association.

Chickenpox is caused by a virus. As with most virus diseases, chickenpox can weaken a person's resistance and may leave its victims vulnerable to secondary infections by bacteria. Some complications include scarlet fever, kidney infections, skin infections, infections of mucous membranes and in some severe cases, pneumonia or encephalitis.

In adults, chickenpox tends to be more severe.

Chickenpox is contagious and most children "catch" it before they are 15 years old. The pink rash usually breaks out two or three weeks after exposure to the virus. A slight fever, headache, and loss of appetite may precede the rash by a day or two.

The rash, which usually covers the entire surface of the body, begins as small pink spots which develop into pinhead-size pimples. Then a tiny blister forms on top of the pimple which turns into a scab in about four days. The itching will subside by the fourth day although contagion lasts until the sixth or seventh day.

Chickenpox is "going around" again this winter. The number of cases has increased about 45 per cent over this same time last year. The disease should not be taken lightly. If your child contracts chickenpox, put him to bed and call your physician. He will make sure your child does not have a much more serious disease and he will advise you on how to guard against complications.

Few things are more painful than an earache. Its one blessing is that it serves as an unmistakable warnihg sign that something is wrong, says the Minnesota state medical association.

Earache may be the symptom of an external ear infection, known as otitis externa, or a middle ear infection, known as otitis media. Let's concentrate on otitis media because at this time of year throat and nose infections are common and often bring with them middle ear infections.

Chances are otitis media is caused by pus being produced behind the ear drum and the pressure on the drum is producing pain. Sometimes the ear drum will rupture and the fluid will drain relieving pain. In this case, the drum usually will mend itself when the infection has cleared. However, a physician's care should be sought to avoid complications.

Consult a physician as quickly as possible for an earache. He probably will treat the infection with medication. In most cases, otitis media will respond to a combination of antibiotics in four to five days. The fluid may remain in the ear up to 21 days, however. The physician may also drain the ear. This is a simple operation called a myringotomy or tympanotomy.

While waiting to see your physician, some relief can be attained by home measures. An electric heating pad or hot water bottle wrapped in a towel held against the ear may relieve pain. Aspirin, too, might help.

Earache is not a symptom that should be treated for a long time by home measures. They may ease the pain but annot correct the cause.

Taxpayer Group Approves Policy On U.S. Spending

Taxpayer group executives from 21 states have approved a policy statement calling for an end to fiscal chaos in the national government.

This was the message brought back to Minnesota by Charles P. Stone, executive director, and Harold T. Miller, research director of the Minnesota Taxpayers association, from a recent national taxpayers conference in Washington, D. C.

"The policy statement notes the almost unbroken string of federal budget deficits of the last 20 years, and holds that 'Federal spending programs and policies are the primary cause of inflation and our severe fiscal problems'," Stone said. He cited these excerpts from the statement:

". . . Federal programs designed to assist state-local governemnts too often prove inefficient and ineffective, and too often force those governments into unnecessary and unwise actions, with the state-local taxpayers the losers. Much of this difficulty results from the inability of the federal government to adequately fund good programs because it insists upon continuing old ineffective programs or adding new low-priority programs.

"The federal government simply must become much more selective in establishing new programs or expanding existing ones. It is essential that some effective yardstick be applied for measuring program objectives achieved against objectives sought. When the desired objectives are reasonably achieved, those programs should be phased out. Ineffective and unsuccessful programs should be promptly terminated.

"These steps, and others, are needed not only to bring order out of the chaos of federal financing, but also to assure that high priority programs involving federal-state-local partnership can be fully funded, with state and local governments no longer being subjected to the vagaries of national politics or the need for incurring debt or raising taxes to fund programs because the federal partner has not kept its commitment."

Numerous applications have been received for the head hockey coaching position at Lincoln high school recently, with the deadline for application being Friday, April 7, at 5 p.m.

John Schmitz filled the position during the 1971-72 campaign after it was learned that Bob Tuff would not be able to stay in Thief River Falls due to mix-up in obtaining a Canadian-American work visa. Schmitz took over the Prowler coaching reigns late in the year and asked for a one-year contract only. However, it was learned that Schmitz is among the candidates who have applied for the position.

Lincoln principal Robert Ostazeski and athletic director Russ Smith will screen three individuals from the initial list of candidates and present the three names to superintendent Dr. W. S. Corliss to be reviewed.

An advisory committee, which will include a teacher and a senior member of the team as well as Ostazeski and Smith, will interview the candidates and Ostazeski will then present the committee's recommendation to Dr. Corliss.

Superintendent Corliss will present the recommendation to the board of education who will then take action on the matter.

Northland state junior college basketball team members picked an all-opponent squad following the completion of the 1971-72 season and the squad included three unanimous selections: Larry Potter of Vermilion, Jerry Schwantz of Fergus Falls and Pablo Ronderos of Crookston Tech. The other two players were Jack Olwell of Itasca and Jim Bowan of Lake Region.

During the season Schwantz posted a 29.4 scoring average, Olwell 25.4, Ronderos 23.6, Bowan 22.0 and Potter 16.1. Against Northland Potter scored 18 and 17 points, Schwantz scored 24 and 33, Ronderos 28 and 30, Olwell 23 and 27 and Bowan in one appearance scored 27 points. Bowan and Potter were the only freshmen on the team.

Dave Super, Mentor high school senior, not only led Mentor's athletic fortunes for the past four years, but his 96.5 four-year academic average is the highest in his class.

Super has also earned superior ratings on both vocal and instrumental musical solos, and has been a member of superior-rated vocal and instrumental ensembles.

He gained the most recognition in the field of sports however, where he was the starting quarterback on the football team for four years and a varsity basketball performer since the eighth grade.

Lincoln Thinclads Open Season At Shanley Invitational Saturday

Jim Sims' Prowler track team will open up Lincoln high school's 1972 spring sports schedule Saturday at Fargo with an appearance in the prestigious Shanley Invitational meet in the North Dakota State University fieldhouse.

The competition will be exceptionally tough for the defending region eight champion Prowlers, with over 20 schools expected to be entered in the annual event. Teams from Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota and Wisconsin will take part in the all-day affair. Thief River Falls and Crookston are the only district 31 schools entered in the meet which will probably be paced by host school Fargo Shanley and powerful Moorhead.

"This is a chance for us to run against some top-flight competition," said Sims, "we'll be the only team entered in the meet that doesn't have some type of indoor facility, so it's going to be tough. It'll be the first time we've had a chance to run this year; we'll give it our best shot and just hope for the best. I look for a good performance on our part and I think we'll show fairly well against the competition, although we won't be a full strength because of the school operetta. It's going to be rough and anything we get we'll feel is an extra plus for us."

Sims said his squad for the Shanley races will probably find three lettermen throwing the shot put; seniors Rande Smith and Dave Lee, as well as junior Russ Larson. Junior lettermen Mark Kaushagen and Gary Halvorson will compete in the pole vault while juniors Kent Smith and Jeff Rhoden, along with senior Dave Lee, take part in the high jump event. To round out the field events, juniors Scott Olson and Gerald Trickle will compete in the long jump.

The running events, the Prowlers' strong points, will find a trio of returning lettermen in the 60-yard dash with seniors Rob Swenson and Steve Beich, along with junior Markoe Hanson.

Swenson and Hanson will also run in the 220, along with junior letterman Jon Markstrom.

School record holder and team captain Mike Fitzgerald will lead the Prowler 440 runners with junior letterman Mark Hamerlinck and Scott Olson also competing in the event.

Another school record breaker, senior Paul Battleson, along with Kevin Hanson and Dave Vigness will run in the 880.

Running in the distance events will be senior letterman Greg Bulger and sophomore Steve Drury in the mile and seniors Bruce Johnson, Don Reierson, along with sophomore Lonnie Olson in the two-mile.

A senior-junior-sophomore combination will compete in the 60-yard high and low hurdlers for the Prowlers with senior Doug Aaseby, junior John Wangberg and sophomore Joe Sorvig entered in the events.

The Prowler 880 relay team will be Beich, Markstrom, Wangberg and Markoe Hanson while the mile relay squad includes Fitzgerald, Markstrom, Kent Smith and Battleson.

Meet records for the events include a 50-3½ tosss in the shot, 12-3 in the pole vault, 21-6½ in the long jump, 6-0½ in the high jump, 7.5 for the 60-yard high hurdles, 7.2 in the 60-yard lows, 4:31.1 in the mile, 1:34.2 in the 880, 6.6 in the 60-yard dash, 53.1 in the 440, 2:00.7 in the 880, 23.4 in the 220 and a 9:56.5 in the two-mile run.

Preliminary field events begin at 1:30 Saturday while the running events are scheduled to start at 2 o'colck. The field event finals will start at 6:15 and the running event finals start at 7 p.m.

The complete Lincoln 1972 track schedule is as follows:

Some Disabled Lose Benefits By Applying Late

About one person in 10 of those qualifying for disability benefits in this area lose some benefits because they don't apply early enough, according to Clifford Kittelson, district manager for social security.

Many disabled people expect to improve. This is the reason that the largest number give for not applying on time.

Those who become disabled gradually often delay applying, thinking that they are not disabled enough to qualify.

Any seriously disabled person who has woked under social security in recent years should apply for disability benefits when his disability prevents him from doing any substantial work. While there is a six-month waiting period before benefits can start, he should apply as soon as it appears that he will be unable to work during a period of 12 months or more because of his disability.

As far as coverage is concerned, a person over 31 has to have worked under social security at least half of the last 10 years before he became disabled. Those under 31 need from a year-and-a-half to five years, depending on age.

Indian Quartet To Perform At GF Sports Show

The Chieftones, an all-Indian quartet from Canada, will entertain at the Grand Forks sports, boat, camping and vacation show at the Grand Forks arena April 6-9. The show is sponsored by the Grand Forks Kiwanis.

Chosen at random eight years ago from a group of 120 students at the federal school for Indians in Canada's northwest, the boys never previously played any musical instruments. Their instrumentation now includes lead guitar, rhythm, bass, drums and organ. At times they also use the sax, clarinet, uke, accordian, banjo and harmonica to perform their large repertoire of songs ranging from old ballads to current hits. In addition, they sing folk, western, country rock and religious music.

From their obscure beginnings at the Edmonton Indian residence, Chieftones members Jack Cecil, Richard Douse and Vincent and Barry Clifford was requested in 1969 to give a command performance for President Nixon. In addition, the group has been billed with stars such as the King Family, George Kirby, Pat Boone and Charley Pride.

Besides their love of music, the Chieftones strive to foster better Indian-non-Indian relations by showing the world the modern North American Indian in a more realistic light. Coming from the Canadian Northwest, the Chieftones select hobbies of hunting, fishing, riding

New UND Arena Is Progressing

"It's beginning to look more like a fine hockey arena each day."

That's a common comment these days by University of North Dakota athletic director L. R. Marti and head hockey coach Rube Bjorkman as they enthusiastically watch construction progress of the $1.8 million dollar, 5700-seat UND winter sports center at the site east of Memorial stadium.

"We hope to be using the new arena October 1, barring work stoppages and material shortages," Marti reports.

The arena is being financed entirely without state funds. Funding includes $800,000 student bonds, $400,000 in a local fund drive, $500,000 from the Edmond Hughes estate and $100,000 from UND alumni. John O'Keefe, local fund drive chairman, said recently an effort is being made to raise an additional $178,750 to finish, furnish and equip the arena completely by asking those who pledged earlier to extend their pledges. Marti reported early response was good.

The vastness of the arena may not be apparent to those who drive past it on Second avenue north. The structure is 308 feet long, 202 feet wide and will have a regulation 85-200 feet ice surface.

There will be 20 rows of seats in the huge bowl and all will have excellent sight lines. There will be four dressing rooms, an equipment room and a training room plus the necessary mechanical equipment rooms. Four concession areas are planned. Temperature in the new arena will be maintained at about 60 degrees.

Marti said donors contributing $120.00 or more will have their names embossed on a wall of pucks in the concourse area of the building.

MEA Secretary Says MSBA Is Sabotaging Legislative Intent

"Minnesota school boards association (MSBA) is taking orderly bargaining by teachers back to the Dark Ages by sabotaging the 1971 legislature."

That charge was leveled recently by executive secretary A. L. Gallop, chief lobbyist for the Minnesota Education association (MEA).

Gallop said he was incensed by the "callous disregard" for Minnesota's education program evidenced by the MSBA in circulating statewide a set of guidelines for teacher-school board bargaining.

"The 1971 Legislature," Gallop maintained, "enacted a public employee bargaining law that provides for good faith negotiations between teachers and employing school boards.

"Now—faced with such a legislative mandate, to negotiate in good faith with teachers—the MSBA tries to lead its members in Pied Piper fashion into a never-never land the public is happy to have left.

"The public doesn't want to go back to the days of individual bargaining and employee unrest that leads to a slave-master relationship, with handouts to those teachers who knuckle under without a whimper.

"As noted educator Dr. Harold Benjamin said a generation ago, 'Free men cannot be taught properly by slaves. Courageous citizens cannot be well educated by scared hired men'."

Among the points in the MSBA guidelines that particularly rankle Gallop:

—"The local school board established an entry level salary for newly employed teachers in the district at a maximum level salary of $700 per month for the 1972-73 school year."

Gallop: Not only does this mean that the MSBA wants schools to hire new teachers at almost $1,000 a year less than the starting salary Minnesota already has, but an experienced teacher moving into a district would be even more severely penalized.

—"The local school board grant a total salary increase of no more than $25 per month for the school year 1972-73 to those teachers presently employed, providing the finances of the district will allow the increase." The increase would include fringe benefits; and

—"The local school board grant a total salary increase of no more than $20 per month for the school year 1973-74 to those teachers presently employed, providing the finances of the district will allow the increase."

Gallop: A teacher at the average salary of some $10,000 would receive an increase of slightly more than two per cent the first year and less than two per cent the second year. Together, the two years total less than the federal government's guidelines for increases, which call for an allowable standard of 5.5 per cent—one and one-half per cent less. And the government guidelines don't even include some fringe benefits, while the MSBA does.

—"The local school board freeze the maximum salaries in the district at the present level."

Gallop: In most districts this means that teachers with 12 or more years of dedicated experience in the classroom would receive no increase. In fact, with increased state income taxes, those teachers would suffer a cut in take-home pay.

"And those four points are just a sample of the kind of shallow and short-sighted thinking that went into the creation of the MSBA document," Gallop said.

Besides money matters and bargaining concerns, the MSBA guidelines also invade the learning climate that surrounds students in the classroom, he added.

At one point, the guideline suggests that students be tested and that their teachers be judged on the basis of the students' performance.

"Educators," Gallop observed, "thought that one was buried long ago. We used to have such programs. But they failed to accommodate students' special learning problems or those with disrupted homes or personal emotional problems.

"What the MSBA is saying now, it seems to me, is that teachers should be paid on the basis of popularity. Or that they'll be paid more if they're unethical enough to teach - to - the - test.

"The MSBA proposes that we take a giant step into the past—and not for the benefit of our children's future."

Design A Gadget In Your Spare Time

The dictionary defines a gadget as an ingenious article; a mechanical device or contrivance. What a lot people do not seem to know is that some of the simplest gadgets have made rich people out of little old ladies, teenagers, housewives, young married couples and even retirees on Social Security. And not a single one of these people was a professional inventor.

Hundreds of simple gadgets like the bobby pin, the Hula Hoop, the floating potato peeler and the Kernel Kutter are finding their way to the nation's sales counters and are making their designers rich. Perhaps you, too, have a good idea that can hit the jackpot.

Almost everybody has at least one idea for a good gadget locked up in their minds. You simply cannot work around your kitchen, your hobby room, your garage or office without sooner or later thinking of a simple tool or device that will do a particular job better than the one now being used. It might even be as simple as a better paper clip or a new kind of fish hook.

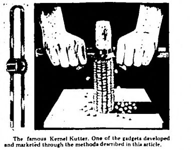
What keeps these people from cashing in on all their wonderful new gadget ideas? They don't know what to do, or where to turn to get the help and guidance they need.

That is why Invention Counselors was formed recently by two widely experienced pros; one a designer and inventor of gadgets for over 20 years, the other a veteran marketing man who has the knack of finding the best way to get those gadgets produced and sold by the thousands without your spending or borrowing a lot of money to do so.

These two men have put together a special direct-by-mail instruction program designed specially for people who need help in converting their gadget ideas into useful new products that America needs and wants. Almost anybody can follow these easy-to-read instructions. Every step is covered; even to showing you how to think of more good gadget ideas.

You find out how to make sure your gadget idea is an original one, and not already on the market. How to determine whether it has a good sales potential before you spend time and money on it. They show what to do to protect your idea with a good patent if your idea is patentable. How to decide whether to sell your gadget to a manufacturer for cash or on a royalty basis or whether you might do better by manufacturing and selling it yourself. And you are told exactly what to do, step by step, whichever course you prefer to travel. The details are all worked out for you — as easy to follow as a road map.

To find out all about this unique service for amateur inventors, its modest cost and how you can use it right at home and be sure it is what you need before you risk a single penny, send a postcard or letter with your name and address to Invention Counselors, Inc., Dept. DN, One S. E. 4th Ave., Delray Beach, Fla. 33444. Maybe you, too, will strike it rich!



The famous Kernel Kutter. One of the gadgets developed and marketed through the methods described in this article.

BEARFOOT BLUEGRASS

Can a six-foot-tall bear named Big Al sing bluegrass music and strum a mean guitar? He can, if he's part of the "Country Bear Jamboree" at Walt Disney World in Florida. The Pepsi-Cola/Frito-Lay spectacular features 20 of the most talented grizzlies in a down-home songfest. They owe their talents to the almost magical Walt Disney system of "Audio-Animatronics," the combination of lifelike sounds and actions in three-dimensional animated figures. But the bears are so real, visitors to Frontierland's Grizzly Hall applaud their efforts!

HURDLER FIGHTS FOR OLYMPIC BERTH

Tom Hill, Arkansas State University high hurdler, shows the form which is likely to make him a member of the U.S. Olympic Team in the summer games at Munich, Germany.

"In adversity, remember to keep an open mind."
—Horace, the Roman poet

Tommy Hill, a hurdler on the Arkansas State University track team, is following Horace's advice not to panic. He's putting more than his mind into the effort, too. He's calling on his courage.

The 6' 1" Hill, a cadet captain in the campus Army ROTC unit, seemed like a cinch to make the American Olympic High Hurdles team for the games at Munich this summer. His best time for the 110-meter (120-yard) event was just two-tenths of a second off the world record of 13 seconds. And he was getting better all the time.

But in December, 1970, in an invitational meet at Monroe, La., the fellow in the next narrow lane accidentally brushed Tommy as both went up to clear hurdles. Tommy came down hard on his right "lead" knee — and tore a ligament in the process.

That put him out of commission — but not permanently. After strengthening the muscles around the knee in a series of weight-lifting exercises during Army ROTC Advanced Camp last summer, he began working out again.

Early this year, he was ready for a return to competition. And in a series of indoor meets he showed a return to the form — and the time — he had achieved before his accident.

The Army ROTC cadet will be heading for the Olympic trials at Eugene, Ore. this summer. If you're a betting man, you can make a wager that he'll win a spot on the U.S. team — and bring home a medal from the Munich games.

Area Officials Discuss Problems From Emotions

New ideas in coping with people having emotional and alcohol-related problems were under discussion last week at a meeting of law enforcement officers, district judges, county attorneys, probate judges, municipal judges, probation officers, highway patrol and welfare directors in Thief River Falls.

The session in the meeting room of the Thief River Falls public library attracted 35 people from Thief River Falls, Crookston, Roseau, Red Lake Falls, Hallock, Ada, Mahnomen and Warren.

Participating in the program were Hap Lindquist, addiction coordinator for the Northwestern mental health center in Crookston, Charles Richards, Pennington county sheriff; Mayor A. E. Jacobson; Dr. Ron Young, director of the day-night unit at Northwestern hospital services in Thief River Falls; and Dr. Jeanette Baker, medical director at Fergus Falls state hospital;

Also Robert Wittenstrom, executive director of the Northwest council on alcohol and drug problems; Roy Waters, program director for the mental health center; Nolan Dugan, chief deputy of the Mower county sheriff's office at Austin; and Dick Allyn, representing the Minnesota attorney general's office.

Considerable attention was focused on the talk by Dugan who teaches classes on safe driving to persons convicted on drunken driving in the court of Judge Fred Kraft in Austin. The Austin Herald had the following report on the school for drinking drivers:

Judge Fred Kraft of Austin municipal court determined that heavier fines, revocation of driver's licenses and even jail sentences weren't curbing the number of drunken drivers in his court so he went one better: he's sending them back to school.

"I don't think that people are going to avoid drinking while driving just because of the fear of going back to school either," said the 41-year-old magistrate: "The purpose of the school is to educate these people on the serious dangers of drinking and driving."

"There has to be some kind of rehabilitation and this could be a very productive first step," he added.

Kraft initiated his back-to-school program in January and he says that although the nine-month period isn't adequate to evaluate the learning process there is at least one favorable indicator.

None of the 121 persons he has sentenced to the school has reappeared in his court on an alcohol-related charge. "I think the school needs more time before we can draw any real conclusions, but it is gratifying at this point," Kraft said.

Kraft said the program is the first of its kind in Minnesota and is patterned after a similar school in Phoenix. He said he heard about the Arizona program last year and decided to give it a try.

Final decision on trying education as a deterrent to drunken driving came after he boosted the fine for a first offense from $100 to $250 but the number of such cases increased instead of decreasing.

"We don't want to leave the impression that we are going to be of help to everyone enrolled in the school," he said. "The school is an individual situation. We do want to impress upon them that there is a problem and caution them that there is a possibility they are approaching alcoholism as well."

Each student pays $20 and the money is used for equipment purchase and rental and for a nominal fee for instructors.

Nolan Dugan, chief deputy of the Mower county sheriff's office, conducts the classes and employes a safe driving manual used by the Phoenix school.

Classes, which never include more than 25 persons, cover insurance rates, law enforcement officers' handling of drunken drivers, a presentation by representatives of Austin's Alcoholics Anonymous chapter and a message from either a layman or clergyman.

Each session also includes one or two films relating to actual accident cases caused by drinking drivers.

Dugan said during the third session the class is divided into two groups aimed at encouraging the students to openly discuss their personal situations.

The student's final assignment is to write a paper on what has transpired and what he or she intends to do in correcting any habits that might have caused the problem.

Dugan said the initial resentment about having to atend the classes has all but disappeared by the final session. "They gain a valuable lesson from the unfortunate experience by going to these classes," he said.

Some Taxpayers Make Improper Medical Claims

Most taxpayers are aware that they can deduct certain medical and dental expenses for themselves, their spouses and children if they itemize their deductions on schedule A of their federal tax return.

But, according to George O. Lethert, district director of internal revenue for Minnesota, the IRS is finding that some taxpayers are not claiming their medical deductions properly and are, therefore, slowing up the receipt of their refund.

Medical and dental expenses are deductible only to the extent they exceed three per cent of adjusted gross income on line 18 of the federal tax return. Medicine and drugs may be included in medical and dental expenses only to the extent they exceed one per cent of adjusted gross income.

Taxpayers may deduct, disregarding the three per cent limitation, one half of the amount paid for medical insurance. This deduction, however, may not exceed $150. The remainder may be included as a regular medical expense.

Identifying taxpayers' errors of this type is a part of a new internal revenue service program this year at all service centers. Service centers are checking returns more carefully in order to correct these errors so that taxpayers will not be subject to later interest charges.

Lethert urged taxpayers to check their returns over carefully when deducting medical and dental expenses, making certain that they take into account the one per cent limitation on medicine and drugs and the three per cent limitation on medical and dental expenses. A few minutes to double check the return will avoid errors and speed up any refund due.

For additional information about itemized deductions, contact the nearest internal revenue service office.

House Passes Water Pollution Control Act

U. S. House of Representatives last week passed the comprehensive federal water pollution control act of 1972 which establishes a goal of 1985 to eliminate the discharge of all wastes into navigable waters and authorized $24.62 billion to support the project, according to 7th District Congressman Bob Bergland.

Bergland said that the major portion of the funds, $18.35 billion, are designated for "the rehabilitation and improvement" of existing and new municipal sewer systems. The federal share, Bergland explained, will average between 30 and 60 per cent of the total cost of a project with a maximum of 75 per cent if the state agrees to pay 15 per cent of the cost.

The new law also eliminates the existing grant allotment formula, based on population, and replaces it with a formula based on the waste treatment needs of a state. Anti-pollution standards included in the bill include: a requirement that industry must employ either the best controls available or meet existing standards by 1976 and achieve zero discharge of pollutants by 1981; zero discharge of pollutants, by 1985, from all sources including communities; and national standards to control new sources of pollution.

It directs the National Science foundations to conduct studies to determine the best alternate ways of waste disposal. It also provides, Bergland noted, a maximum fine of $10,000 per day for violations of the act. Under the bill states may enact regulations stronger than those imposed by the federal government.

While Bergland expressed his full support and general approval of the legislation, he was "disappointed" over the defeat of several amendments designed to strengthen the bill and bring it closer to the Senate version of a similar act. The most important of these, according to Bergland, were provisions to require national standards strong enough to prevent industries from moving from one state to another to avoid state regulation and requirement that game and fish agencies be consulted prior to granting any discharge petitions.

Consumers Ask For Fabric Information

"Where can I buy flame-resistant clothing? What fabrics best resist flames?" These are some of the questions on fabric flammability that Mrs. Beverly Lundgren, consumer information specialist at the University of Minnesota, fields almost daily.

Close to her telephone, Mrs. Lundgren keeps thick files on clothing, carpets, blankets and draperies that help her provide information that consumers need to make buying decisions.

The broad question of manufacturers' responsibilities to consumers on fabric flammability is coming under debate at this time. A sweeping proposal is being considered in Congress that would establish a new federal agency to enforce the flammable fabrics law and set other consumer product safety standards.

Another plan in Congress would create a federal product safety commission. Both proposals would shift federal administration of the law from the federal trade commission (FTC) and commerce and health, education and welfare (HEW) departments.

Meanwhile, the FTC has established a policy on enforcing the flammable fabrics act where products have been tested and failed:

Manufacturers, importers, distributors and retailers are asked by the FTC to voluntarily stop the sale and distribution of the flammable fabric, furnish the FTC with a list of customers who have purchased the product and notify these customers of the test results, remove and recall flammable fabrics and supply data on the amount of flammable fabric in the channels of commerce.

Then the FTC will advise consumers on the distributors, retailers and other handlers of the product in question, according to the FTC's written enforcement procedures. Consumers can get this information by dialing a toll-free number, (800) 424-8589, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. CST weekdays.

When consumers ask about the flammability of carpets of draperies, Mrs. Lundgren first asks them what material they are considering. If the type of material is in question, they can put a lighted match, excercising care, to a sample of the material to determine if it is flame-resistant.

Information on window fabrics' resistance to heat and fire is contained in Extension Pamphlet 217, "Curtains and Draperies," available from county extension offices and the Bulletin Room, University of Minnesota, St. Paul 55101.

Temproary flame-retardant solutions can be applied in the home by dipping, spraying or sprinkling fabrics. For suggested solutions and procedures, get "Making Household Fabrics Flame Resistant," USDA leaflet 454, from the Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C. 20402.

The FTC's consumer protection laboratory will begin testing children's sleep wear for flammability on July 29 in accordance with a standard issued by the U. S. department of commerce a year earlier. Manufacturers will be allowed until July 29, 1973, to continue selling sleep wear that has failed to meet the testing standards provided they are clearly marked "flammable."

The final federal standard on mattress flammability is expected to be published in the Federal Register within the next 30 days and will be effective about 13 months from now.

Also, the FTC has adopted a rule requiring "reasonable and representative" flammability tests for rugs and carpets upon which manufacturers can base guaranties that the products are not dangerously flammable. The rule became effective last July 20 and the tests concern all rugs and carpets subject to a department of commerce flammability standard which went into effect last April 16.

To Use Parasites In Control Of Spruce Sawfly

Scientists have launched an attack on a forest insect pest called the yellow-headed spruce sawfly that defoliates spruce in the northern border states and in Canada and Alaska.

The weapons chosen for the fight are not the often used powerful insecticides, but natural fly and wasp parasites that feed on sawflies. Scientists hope parasites will drastically reduce sawfly populations in tests near Grand Rapids.

The study has been initiated by University of Minnesota entomologist Herb Kulman with a grant from the Blandin foundation of Grand Rapids.

The sawflies are a serious problem in forest plantations. There have been heavy infestations of sawflies in white spruce plantations of the Grand Rapids area for several years, entomologist Kulman said.

Native diseases and predators of sawflies don't control the pest adequately, so the scientists hope to introduce sawfly parasites from another state—perhaps Michigan, Maine, Alaska or a Rocky Mountain location in the U.S. or Canada. If those introduced parasites are not effective, others may be obtained from Europe or Japan.

Chances are about 50-50 that the sawfly can be controlled by introducing a new parasite, Kulman said. Even if they can't, the parasites might hold sawfly populations down—preventing some damage to spruce and reducing the frequency of needed spraying, he said.

"In Canada, there are seven or eight species of forest insect pests that have been successfully controlled on a regional basis by use of parasites or insect diseases. With four other species they had partial control, two species are still under study and studies on 10 other species have failed," Kulman said.

Scientists justify the use of biological control this way: Chemical control is highly effective, but must be repeated frequently. With biological control, once the parasitic insect is established, they remain indefinitely reproducing and spreading to adjacent areas.

Insect defoliation occurring with biological control may be greater than if spruce stands were sprayed with chemicals, Kulman said. "But a single year of heavy defoliation or continual light defoliation apparently has little detrimental effect on spruce."

Kulman explained how the sawfly damages spruce: Eggs are deposited singly in slits made by the female sawfly in new spruce needles in spring. The small yellow-green caterpillars chew their way out of the eggs in five to 12 days. They feed on new spruce needles and move to older foliage only after the new foliage is nearly all eaten.

When the caterpillars are about an inch long, they drop to the ground and dig into the soil, spin a cocoon and overwinter. Adult sawflies cut their way out of the cocoon in late May or early June, soon after the buds of white spruce expand, and deposit eggs in the needles.

A lot more than just peanuts.

Whoever he is, wherever he is — I respect this man.

Naturally I respect anyone whose presence can bring calmness and peace where there could have been confusion and turmoil.

As for me, I'm just a writer. With others I've been writing on behalf of the Church — with conviction and enthusiasm — for many a year. Rarely until now have I written in the first person.

But this picture challenges one to identify himself. On this rocky hillside teeming with restless life only one is master, guide, guardian of all.

I share with you the common realization: I am not that one. We share too the simple faith that knows: The Lord is my Shepherd.

Did You Know . . .

That just the right — or wrong - ratio of grease and water can cause problems if the layer of melted fat prevents the water from boiling naturally.

The Reynolds test kitchens found, during research on oven cooking bags; that the problem of grease — water combination can be prevented. A tablespoon of flour shaken inside the bag before cooking does the trick.

Since oven bag cooking is new, instructions should be followed carefully. Roasting pans should be at least 2" deep and large enough to hold entire bag without overhang.

Six slits with a knife in the top of the bag are essential to release excess vapor. As in all types of cooking, normal care should be taken to prevent burns or other kitchen accidents.

"We are apt to call things by wrong names. We will have prosperity to be happiness, and adversity to be misery. If thou wouldst be happy, bring thy mind to thy condition and have an indifferency for more than what is sufficient." —William Penn

Out At Home!

Maybe it's time for America to take another look at its professional sports to determine value received for tribute given. Perhaps the nation should turn its collective back on professional athletes and athletics in recognition of the fact that both have gotten out of hand.

It is difficult to find sympathy for the major league baseball players involved in their dispute with the team owners. Minimum major league salary of $13,500 is a pretty fair sum in itself, and most major leaguers are above that minimum figure. All have an opportunity to make more—much more—if they prove they can do the job and earn it.

Where else but in baseball could most of the players earning in excess of $25,000 per year expect to make that kind of money for even a full year of work? Add to the salary the national publicity and endorsement payments and the major league baseball player's lot is a far cry from poverty.

When the major league record books start carrying statistcs on the most holdouts in a single season, most career holdouts, longest strike by a single player, longest team strike, fastest walkout by a team and some of the other coersive actions which fill the sports pages today, we will know the depths to which the national passtime has sunk on a professional basis.

We were once rather eager for the major league baseball season to open. As of Tuesday there was little hope that it would open today. After all the petty bickering and carping we have heard in the past couple of weeks, we wouldn't be disturbed if it never opens at all. It seems to us that the players have found the line between what is right and what is agreed and want to cross it. We feel they have walked, stolen second and stolen third, only to be thrown out at home. There may be some justice in this world at that.

Rights Or Tradition

If 38 states ratify within seven years, a constitutional amendment designed to provide equal rights for women will become the law of the land. The burden has now been placed on the states to do in seven years what took more than 40 years in the U.S. Congress.

More significant than the equal rights created by the amendment, however, are the equal responsibilities created thereby. Some of these fly in the face of tradition which will not soon be forsaken even if enough states do provide ratification.

Women have won and are winning important rights and privileges, and most do not shirk responsibility that goes along with these rights. Most of America, however, is not ready to accept the visage of women in military combat on the front lines, although subjecting females to the military draft seems plausible. To accept the draft, and eliminate front line duty for women, however, would certainly be a form of discrimination.

Further, on the civil scene, the tradition of the father as the breadwinner and having responsibility as the provider for his children would also be legally changed. While most men would continue to assume this responsibility willingyly and voluntarily, they would do so because of tradition rather than law.

While we sympathize with women who have been the victims of some discriminatory practices, we feel that attempting to eliminate such discrimination through a constitutional amendment is a bit like drowning the dog to kill the flea. There must be a better way where the desired end can be accomplished without such drastic action.

In our opinion, passage of such an amendment by state ratification can be extremely dangerous for our nation. It has the machinery for deeper erosion of the American home, the basis upon which our free way of life has been built. It undermines the quality of pride which, on a reasonable basis, is an essential in personal and national progress and development.

In our traditions of America, women have been able to take pride in their ability as homemakers, and their influence upon their husbands and children. Men have been able to take equal pride as providers and often as family disciplinarians. There have been some notable exceptions, entirely to the credit of those who have broken with tradition to establish themselves in chosen fields.

And in spite of legal similarities which a constitutional amendment would provide, there are enough biological differences to make equal application of the law absolutely impossible. Until men bear children, there can be no completely equal application of all law to all people. Neither will any all-encompassing law change the emotional composition of men and women.

Minnesota's legislators—the ones which the courts will let our state have—will have some soul-searching to do before voting on ratification of the amendment. So will the legislators of the other 48 states (Hawaii ratified within an hour after the senate vote) as they deliberate the consequences as well as the conveniences of the proposed amendment.

When men and women have different roles to play, there are patterns to follow and standards to seek. Each marriage partner can know what to expect from the other and take pride in his or her own responsibilities. Disregard of tradition in favor of new law would serve to further reduce the influence of the American home, lead to additional frustrations and contribute to greater disunity among parents.

For centuries women have tried their hardest to be women. We would dislike being in the generation which replaced fashion boots with combat boots on the women of the United States.

What Color Hat?

Following article is by Arch N. Booth, executive vice president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States:

Th scene is a stock ingredient of grade "B" Westerns: The camera takes us through the swinging doors of the saloon. Within, a tense group of hard-eyed men sits around a smokey, green-felt-covered table, playing poker. One of them is losing heavily.

Suddenly, the big loser accuses another player of cheating. As he makes the accusation, he jumps up, knocking over the table and going for his gun. The lights go out. There's an exchange of gunfire.

In the confusion, it's very hard to tell who's right and who's wrong. And that's exactly what the loser has in mind when he breaks up the game.

George Meany followed the script pretty closely when he quit the pay board, dragging three of the other four labor members with him. The only substantial deviation is that instead of being a big loser, his problem seems to be that he wasn't winning enough. And a look at the record makes it quite plain that "winning enough" for the AFL-CIO means cleaning out everyone else in the game.

Meany's first demand was that the pay board be completely independent of the administration's cost of living council. The President agreed. Meany's second demand was that the pay board be tripartite, with equal representation from business, labor and the public. The President agreed. So organized labor started the game with a deck stacked to its specifications.

Not surprisingly, the subsequent decisions of the pay board favored the big unions. After announcing that 5.5 per cent would be the maximum permissible annual wage increase—with seven per cent allowed in special "catch-up" cases—the board granted the following increases in excess of its own rules: Soft coal miners, 15 per cent; aerospace workers, 8.3 per cent; United Transportation Union, 10 per cent; and West Coast dock workers, 14.9 per cent. The Board also acquiesed in construction industry wage settlements averaging about 11 per cent a year.

But even that wasn't enough for organized labor. The dock workers wanted 20.6 per cent, not a "little" raise like 14.9 per cent.

So, kick over the table, douse the lights, and start shooting.

Labor fired two wild shots. The first was the charge that wage controls are "unfair" if profits aren't controlled. The second was the charge that profits are "soaring."

Profits were better in 1971 than in 1970, but then, they could hardly have been worse. In 1970, after-tax corporate profits, as a per cent of sales, were 2.3 per cent. That was the lowest profit for any year since the end of World War II. In 1971, the figure rose to 2.5 per cent. An increase? Sure—but still the second lowest profit for any year since World War II. Only 1970 was lower. These are official, U.S. Government figures, by the way.

But it's a mistake to try to control profits in any case. Profits are a reward for efficiency. Tax revenues come from profits. So does the money to invest in new businesses, which could provide the new jobs we need so badly now. That's why the government chose to control prices, rather than profits. After all, prices are what concern you, as a consumer. And prices—for the big corporations, anyway—are very firmly controlled. The limit on annual increases is 2.5 per cent. Only the "little guys" and the farmers are exempted. Whether such an exemption is wise is arguable, but it certainly isn't an example of favoritism for "big business."

The labor czars obviously hope to deceive people by appealing to vague fears of "big business," to cover up their own sordid record. In an election year, they will have a lot of help from politicians seeking their support. It's safe to predict that the situation will get more confusing, rather than less. And, unfortunately, we won't be able to spot the "good guy" by his white hat.

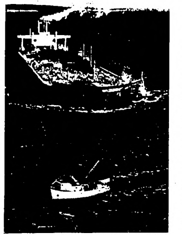
Largest To Cross Atlantic



The "Universe Japan" is the largest ship ever to cross the Atlantic, and one of the largest ships in the world. It is shown on the last leg of its first transatlantic voyage in the Strait of Canso nearing Point Tupper, Nova Scotia, its destination.

The dock at Point Tupper is the first and only one in the Western Hemisphere built to handle the world's largest tankers.

The ship, under charter to Gulf Oil Corporation, is 1,133 feet long. Standing on end, it would be almost as tall as the Empire State Building. Its cargo of more than two and one quarter million barrels of crude oil is enough fuel to supply a city as large as Washington, D. C. with electricity for three months. A conventional tanker would have to make five transatlantic crossings to transport the same amount of fuel.

Advanced technology is employed to assure safe landings for the "Universe Japan." The ship is equipped with sophisticated space age navigational instrumentation. The Canadian Government installed a million and a half dollar all-weather system of buoys, range lights and electronic guidance devices to assist mammoth tankers entering and leaving the Strait.

Do you really want your brother-in-law to know how much you earned last year?

Of course not. It's nobody's business but your own.
However, annually millions of tax payers bear this kind of personal information to people who really shouldn't know. For what? Just so they can save a few dollars doing their income tax.
That's some price to pay.
You see, for only a few dollars more than it costs to do it with any amateur, you can have your tax return done by a specially trained member of the H & R Block team with complete confidentiality. There are thousands of them in over 6,000 conveniently located offices. H & R Block's fees start at $5 and the average cost was under $12.50 for the 7 million families we served last year.

Help For Nation's Communities

United States Army Reserve technician prepares patient for X-ray during 5502nd USAR Hospital unit's training assembly at West Side Health Center in Denver. Army Reserve is marking 64th anniversary with volunteer community improvement projects like this one.

Persons or organizations which celebrate anniversaries normally receive gifts, but the United States Army Reserve, which marks its 64th birthday in April, prefers to give them.

Many of the Reserve's 3,500 units and almost 1,000,000 members will observe its founding by Congress in 1908 with a Community Month — a program of projects throughout April designed to improve the places in which its members live, work and train.

This is the fourth consecutive year in which the Army Reserve has observed its anniversary with a Community Month, but this year special emphasis is scheduled for projects tackling the most serious problems plaguing the nation's communities.

The project will range from efforts to preserve the ecology to providing services for civilian hospitals and clinics short of skilled personnel. The program also will stress aid for the physically and economically deprived and for alienated youth and neglected aged in communities across the nation.

Army Reservists are particularly suited to take on such community betterment efforts because many of the skills their units require parallel those in the civilian community. They increasingly are undertaking this broad-scale program as part of their regular training to reinforce their readiness to meet any national emergency.

University Says Farms Make Poor Use Of Forage

Poor utilization of hay and pasture land was again evident in Minnesota during 1971, according to University of Minnesota researchers.

Less than 15 per cent of the hay and pasture land in the state is fertilized, and farmers have not yet been motivated to shoot for high levels of forage production.

Under general farm conditions in Minnesota, the use of fertilizer on grass pastures or haylands is characterized by excessive amounts of phosphorus and potassium in relation to nitrogen. Economical use of fertilizer on grass pastures must be based on the plant food needs of the crop and its responses to nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium and the management and harvest of the grassland crop, the scientists say.

During 1971, production trials were conducted in Marshall, Pennington, Roseau, East Polk, Norman and Mahnomen counties to determine the effects of fertilizer on forage production.

The results of fertilizer applications on grass pastures or hay land were:

—Pastures with mixed grasses, particularly those containing considerable timothy and brome grass, produced higher average yields with or without fertilizer use than those pastures which were predominantly Kentucky bluegrass.

—Fertilizer applications containing an equivalent of 150 pounds of nitrogen, 50 pounds of phosphorus and 50 pounds of potassium resulted in increased hay yields of more than two tons per acre in each of two cuttings. Yields with these fertilizer applications were nearly three times those obtained from no fertilizer applications.

—The application of 30 pounds of nitrogen per acre in combination with 15 pounds of phosphorus and 15 pounds of potassium resulted in yield increases in the first cuttings, but did not significantly increase yields in subsequent cuttings.

—Nitrogen applied at the rate of 100 pounds per acre without phosphorus and potassium fertilizer resulted in yield increases. However, these increases were not of the magnitude obtained when the equivalent quantity of nitrogen was applied in combination with phosphorus and potassium fertilizer.

—The average protein yield per acre obtained from the two cuttings on both the mixed grass and predominantly Kentucky bluegrass pasture sites was increased by fertilizer applications. The total protein per acre on the fertilized plots was more than three times that obtained on nonfertilized areas.

Forages properly fertilized and harvested can be just as valuable as corn when comparing the production of total digestible nutrients and protein from the two crops. However, farmers must have sufficient livestock to utilize the additional forages produced as a result of increased fertilization. If forages are not properly grazed or harvested for hay, forage fertilization may not be a paying proposition, the University of Minnesota scientists warn.

WITH ITS BARREL SAWED OFF just beyond the legal length, no charges were brought under the federal firearms law when patrolman Holland found this loaded shotgun while apprehending the driver of a vehicle that fled as he approached to investigate suspicious circumstances at Valley 24 grocery. The ski mask was found in the vehicle and may have been worn by an individual intending to rob the store.

TRF Policeman Foils Attempted Robbery

Alertness and reaction of a Thief River Falls police patrolman shortly after midnight Saturday resulted in likely prevention of an armed robbery of the Valley 24 grocery store. Apprehension of a local young man, Eddie D. Lemky, 21, was made following a chase which involved patrolman Duane Holland and a pickup driven by Lemky and containing two other men.

Account of the circumstances was provided by Chief Roland E. Waller of the local police department as follows:

Shortly after midnight Saturday, Patrolman Holland was cruising past Valley 24 grocery on First street when he noticed a pick up truck parked in front of the store with two men in it. A third man was on foot. As the patrolman drove past he thought there was something unusual about the head of the pedestrian. Holland turned his vehicle around to investigate. When he did so the men in the pick-up motioned for the other man to get in and started driving away at a high rate of speed with the right door open and the third man hanging from it trying to get in.

The truck turned north on Horace at high speed with Holland in pursuit. It proceeded to Sixth street and turned left. It turned left a half block later and stopped about 50 feet into the alley between Horace and LaBree.

Two passengers jumped out and ran away while Holland apprehended the driver. The patrolman believed that one of the fleeing men was carrying a gun. Holland also found a sawed-off, 20 guage, single-barrel shotgun near the truck. A ski mask was found during a subsequent search of the vehicle. Holland was of the opinion that the mask was worn by the man at the store.

The truck had been reported stolen in Moorhead during the early part of last week. When the owner claimed his vehicle he stated that the mask had not been in the truck when it was taken.

The driver, Eddie D. Lemky, Thief River Falls, was booked on charges of reckless driving and suspicion of attempted robbery.

After the apprehension, it was learned that the clerk in the store had been in the basement and heard footsteps when one man entered. When the clerk reached the upstairs area Holland was initiating pursuit of the pickup.

Investigative efforts are continuing to identify the two people who were in the vehicle with Lemky. Anyone with information on Lemky's companions or his movements or whereabouts on Saturday evening are asked to contact the Thief River Falls police department.

Roland E. Waller, chief-of-police, stated that he commends patrolman Holland for his patrol alertness and diligence in spotting the suspicious circumstances as well as his bravery in challenging three men in this situation.

Waller continued to state that all-night grocery stores and filling stations offer an extreme opportunity for robbery. Managers should consider safety of employees and keep only a minimum of cash on hand to keep losses down and discourage potential robbers.

Reflect Bumper Crop In '71 Farm Summary

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Bumper crop year for this area in 1971 was reflected in the farm records analyzed by the farm management program of the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical institute. Labor earnings on the average increased four-fold from 1970, net worth increased by more than $7,000 per average farm total farm capital jumped almost $10,000 for the average farm in the program.

Results of the analysis will be reviewed and discussed at a meeting of cooperators to be held Tuesday at 8 p.m., according to Ed Sisler, coordinator of the program. The group will meet at the vocational-technical institute on highway one east of Thief River Falls, then walk across campus to Northland state junior college for the study session.

Dr. Philip Raup of the agricultural economics department of the University of Minnesota will be the guest speaker on the topic, "You And World Agriculture". Musical entertainment will also be provided.

The report prepared by the department deals with 544 farmers enrolled in agriculture programs sponsored by 26 schools in northern and western Minnesota and one North Dakota community—Stanley. The number has grown from about 400 cooperators a year ago. This year there were 490 records processed in comparison with 385 in 1970.

The program started in 1955 and this year recognition will be given to Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Olson, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Hanson and Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Koop, all of Thief River Falls, for 15 years of participation. To be recognized Tuesday for 10-year membership will be Mr. and Mrs. Donovan Dyrdal, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Trontvet, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Myers, Mr. and Mrs. Lenord Swanson, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Swanson and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Swanson of Thief River Falls and Mr. and Mrs. William Omdahl of Warren.

According to the report, average labor earnings in 1971 were $8,916 in comparison with only $2,184 in 1970. Return to capital and family labor multiplied from $4,892 a year ago to $11,595 in 1971. Net worth on the average increased from $52,572 to $59,873. The fact that farmers had more product to sell as a result of the excellent crop year is shown by the fact that expenses per dollar of income dropped from 93 cents in 1970 to 78 cents in 1971.

Tillable acres per farm increased slightly from 465 to 476 acres. Work units (one work unit equals one 10-hour day) per farm increased from 353 to 381 with the largest gain being in livestock which climbed from 174 to 197.

Gross farm earnings averaged $18,361 for crops and $17,480 for livestock in 1971 in comparison with $13,135 for crops and $15,011 for livestock in 1970. Other gross farm earnings averaged $3,376 per farm in 1971, an increase from $2,087 the previous year.

With 419 farms in the average, total farm capital increased from Jan. 1, 1971, to Dec. 31, 1971, from $87,909 to $97,200. Livestock provided about $2,000 of the increase, crops about $3,000, power, machinery and equipment about $2,000, land about $1,000 and buildings, fences and other items about $1,000.

Necessity of large investment in today's farming is shown by farm capital figures in the report. The 83 low farms in the program increased total farm capital from an average of $71,798 to $77,373 during the year while the high 83 farms averaged a greater capital growth from $151,922 to $172,280. Crops played a greater role in the increase for the high farmers than the low farmers in the averages.

Total farm sales averaged $31,810 per farm for 419 farms in the program in 1971. The 83 least profitable farms had sales of $18,834 in total farm sales.

Sales of productive livestock averaged $16,961 per farm with the most profitable selling an average of $26,545 and the least profitable selling an average of $10,023. Sales from crops averaged $10,826 with the most profitable averaging $26,291 in sales and the least profitable averaging $5,642 in sales.

Averaging figures to reach

FARM MANAGEMENT program participants will hear Dr. Philip Raup of the University of Minnesota speak on "You and World Agriculture" Tuesday at the annual analysis meeting in Thief River Falls. Dr. Raup has had a number of writings published and has been a professor in the department of agricultural economics at the university since 1953. He has traveled in much of Europe and the Orient in connection with his studies.

Another Arrest Made On Drug Charge In Area

L. M. Graham, investigator for Minnesota's bureau of criminal apprehension, announced another area arrest for violation of drug laws.

Kermit Knutson, Red Lake county sheriff, and Graham arrested Keith M. Hamm in his apartment in Red Lake Falls Thursday night. The 19-year-old was charged with possession of marijuana.

Law enforcement officials confiscated about one pound of manicured marijuana and 20 small tablets suspected of being a controlled substance.

According to Graham, the recent frequency of drug arrests is no coincidence. It is part of a continuing effort. Officials are receiving and acting on information from people who are close to the drug scene.

Council Acts On 1972 Projects

Primary business conducted at Wednesday's meeting of Thief River Falls' city council involved proposed construction for 1972.

After considering the opinions expressed at the hearing held March 27, the council instructed the city engineer to prepare plans and specifications for numerous street improvements and sewer and water extensions.

Construction on North Duluth and Arnold avenues, Cottonwood avenue north from West First street, West First street and countryside trailer court, streets between Fourth and Eighth streets and Main and Atlantic avenues, Riverside trailer court, Riverdale drive, South Tindolph avenue, South Crocker avenue, Dale street, the off-sale store lot and frontage road; and sewer and water extensions in the Nelson-Hess addition, west of Oakland Park road and South Barzen avenue will be as originally proposed.

The work proposed for Park and Nelson's addition was reduced considerably. The suggested project would have spent about $175,000 to build a

James Harry Ranum Weds In Baumholder, Germany

Jane Stenhouse Barnhardt and James Harry Ranum, both of Baumholder, Germany were united in marriage on March 30 with Chaplain William DeVeaux performing the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. John Robert Barnhardt of Davidson, N.C. and the groom's parents are Mrs. Harry Ranum and the late Harry Ranum of this city.

The wedding was held in Felsenkirche, meaning "church in the rock", at Idar-Oberstein, Germany.

The church, built in 1482, is built into the side of the mountain high above the Nahe river. The church is dominated by the ruins of the old and new castle, formerly the seat of the lords of Ober-Stein.

To reach the church one must climb 214 steps that lead from the Oberstein market platz to the church.

For the wedding, the church altar was graced with arrangements of mixed spring flowers, flanked by two silver candelabras. Above the altar was a beautiful Icon, dating back to the early history of the church.

Jerry Danielson served as organist and played, "Trumpet Voluntarie" by Percell and "Ode to Joy" by Beethoven.

The bride was given in marriage by John Usilton, brother-in-law of the bride from Salisbury, Md. She was escorted to the altar, wearing a full length gown of white organza over rayon taffeta and styled with a portrait neckline and elbow-length sleeves. The modified empire bodice was made of chantilly lace embroidered with tiny seed pearls. Matching lace and pearls were appliqued on the front of the A-line skirt. Her detachable chapel train was edged in matching lace and her veil was a full length mantilla, outlined with lace and scattered lace appliques. She carried a bouquet of pale yellow roses and lillies of the valley.

Mrs. John Usilton was matron of honor and wore a floor-length gown of aqua peau-de-soie and fashioned with an empire waist and a high rolled collar. Her headpiece was a matching bow with silk illusion and she carried a bouquet of mixed spring flowers.

Best man was Captain Joseph Potenza of Boston, Mass., and the ushers were Captain William Sims and Captain Lenny Bay.

For her daughter's wedding, the bride's mother selected a blue tiara polyester ensemble with matching accessories and her corsage was a white orchid.

A reception was given by the bride's parents for friends and relatives following the wedding ceremony.

Out-of-town guests were Mrs. Arthur Meachan of Huntersville, N.C., Miss Salli Parker, Raleigh, N.C., Miss Kristi Scott, Davidson, N.C., Captain and Mrs. William Sims, Frankfurt, Germany; and Mrs. Spencer Brown of Brussels, Belgium.

The newlyweds spent their honeymoon in Spain and Portugal.

The bride is a graduate of East Carolina university and a member of the Delta Zeta sorority and the groom is a graduate of the University of Minnesota.

The groom was recently released from the United States army as a lieutenant and is now employed by the Department of Defense at Baumholder, Germany, as a first grade teacher.

Hungry to Bed

Do you know how many people go to bed hungry each night? One million? Two million? Colorado State University's "Pesticide Pipeline" reports two billion people — that's two-thirds of the world's population — have an insufficient food supply. This hunger leads to 10,000 deaths from starvation every day. Undernourished children and adults become victims of diseases the average person probably has never seen or heard of, or die from illnesses which our well-nourished bodies fight off with ease.

Bergland Will Seek Reelection As Congressman

At a Moorhead press conference Friday 7th District Congressman Bob Bergland announced his candidacy for reelection. Bergland said he was seeking DFL endorsement and voter support "on the basis of what has been accomplished during my first term and a sincere desire to meet the challenges of tasks yet to be done."

Among the greatest challenges facing the next Congress, Bergland listed the establishment of a "permanent farm program that will truly preserve and protect the family farmer and the communities which rely on him; enactment of tax reform legislation placing the burden on those best able to pay; improving benefits for the elderly; continued pressure to end the tragedy of Vietnam; and adequate financing to help communities meet strict new pollution standards."

Bergland noted that the next Congress will rewrite the farm program and act on tax reform measures which he has helped develop.

While citing his successful legislative efforts, Bergland said he considered his two major accomplishments "making urban Congressmen more aware of, and sympathetic to, the problems of the countryside" and demonstrating that he is "willing to listen" and "able to make the voices of 7th district residents heard in federal agencies and in the halls of Congress."

Concluding, Bergland said he believed "that my work in the agriculture, small business and space committees, and my votes on the floor of the House, have reflected the views and represented the best interests of the people of our district. Based on this performance and the confidence so many of you have expressed in my ability to provide greater service in the future, I am asking your support," he said.

New Water Tank Being Installed At Middle River

Installation of a new 50,000 gallon steel water tank to replace the old wood type tank on the water tower in Middle River was completed recently by Master tank service, which submitted the low bid of $28,024 last September.

The installation was to have been completed by February 6, according to the village clerk, but work did not start until mid-March. Although the tank was in place by April 1, sandblasting of the new tank and old tower, along with painting, remain to be completed.

The new steel tank has a usable capacity of 50,000 gallons and a minimum steel thickness as follows: roof, three-sixteenths inch; shell, one-fourth inch; and float, five-sixteenths inch.

The tank has an outside ladder with safety cage, a roof ladder with 42 inch high hand railing and intermediate rail on each side extending the full length of the ladder. As now required, a safety cage will also be installed at the tank balcony and extending down the tank tower to within seven feet of the foundation. The lower 12 feet will be enclosed with a locking door.

In order to pay for the construction of the new tank and repairs the village has sold $25,000 of general obligation and water revenue bonds to the First National Bank of Middle River at a net interest of five per cent annually. These bonds are issued for a period of 15 years, payable $1,000 per year and interest from October 1, 1972, through October 1, 1980, then $2,000 per year from October 1, 1981, through October 1, 1988. The bonds can be called for payment at the request of the village.

To finance the payment of bonds and interest, a tax levy will be placed on all taxable property in the village with the first levy of $2,250 payable in 1972.

In the future, all earnings from the operation of the village water system must be used for repayment of the bonds and interest.

Time Extension For Filing Tax Form Is Listed

Taxpayers planning to request an automatic extension of time for filing their 1040 returns are reminded by George O. Lethert, internal revenue service district director for Minnesota, that these requests are due no later than April 17 and must be accompanied by the full balance due.

"Taxpayers requesting an automatic extension of time must do so by filing a Form 4868 with Ogden service center," Lethert said. "This request must be received no later than April 17 and must be accompanied by the full balance due. No requests received after April 17 will be granted."

In filling out the Form 4868, the taxpayer must make a tentative estimate of the tax for the year. The full balance due shown on the application must be attached to the Form 4868.

"The filing of a Form 4868 is a request for an automatic two-month extension of time in filing a Form 1040," Lethert added, "not a request for a delay in payment of individual income tax."

Form 4868 is available at any internal revenue service office.

Community Pride Program For '72 Is Expanded

4-H'ers have pride in their communities. Last year over 7,000 youth were involved in 4-H community improvement programs, primarily beautification projects.

Many more clubs will be involved in the 4-H community pride '72, program that is designed to stimulate 4-H clubs to improve the environment of their communities. Why don't you join the effort?

It's important to identify the crucial needs of your community or area, deal with one of those needs and carry a project to completion. Not only will you help improve your own community, but you will experience the pleasure of working with public and governmental officials on something that benefits everyone.

Groups that might assist in the program include highway departments, township officers, village councils, conservation agencies and civic or garden clubs. Some of last year's projects included beautifying a shopping center with flower beds, developing picnic and recreational areas, cleaning and revitalizing neglected cemetaries, starting a glass recycling center, planting flowers at nursing homes and cleaning and painting town halls.

Northrup King and company and the university's agricultural extension service, the program's sponsors, would like reports of community projects to be submitted to your county extension agent by Aug. 7, 1972. Pictures of project should be included with the report.

Clubs submitting the most effective project story through pictures will qualify for one of 10 awards including cameras and gift certificates for garden seeds. One member from the top 4-H club in each county enrolled in the program will represent his club in Minneapolis-St. Paul during September 18-20, compliments of Northrup King and company.

For more details and enrollment forms, contact your county agent.

Home Fires Take Lives Of 6,500 People Annually

Fire in the home takes the lives of 6,500 Americans annually, of whom 800 are children four years old or younger, and 1,400 are under 15 years of age, Minnesota State Fire Marshal Eugene L. Weber warned today.

"This type of accident is the second largest single home accident killer, second only to falls," he said. "It is also the second largest killer of small children."

Small children have a fascination for playing with matches, he pointed out. "We estimate that about one home fire in 10 is set by a child playing with fire. These are not bad or abnormal children, just curious and experimental. And they need close supervision and guidance.

"Parents are advised to keep this in mind when they engage a baby-sitter. Here are rules that have been developed out of experience:

"Choose a responsible person, one who can supervise the children and guide their activities, one you can rely upon to be on the job.

"Give the sitter a telephone number at which you can be reached in an emergency, if this is possible.

"Discuss possible emergencies and what to do about them: the telephone number of the fire department, in case of fire, and in such a case, how to guide the children out of the house, exits to use, etc.

"Impress on the children that they are to follow the guidance of the sitter while you are away."

Weber pointed out that many fire departments in recent years have been giving special attention to training youths in handling fire safety emergencies, and that more and more departments are taking up the training program. "It would be a good idea to look up baby-sitters who have had this training," he said.

Reflect Bumper Crop In 1971 Farm Summary

conclusions can be dangerous however, as shown in the labor earnings chart. While the average labor earnings for 419 farms were $9,201, the average for the 83 most profitable was $24,005 and for the 83 least profitable was an average loss of $1,035.

Not surprisingly, the farms with the lowest operator's labor earnings showed the highest average income off the farm. The 83 low income farms, for instance, had a loss of $522 in labor earnings but averaged $5,163 in non farm income. The 83 high income farms averaged $23,065 in operator labor earnings and only $1,446 in non farm income.

Also as might be expected, the farmers who were able to obtain the largest yields were generally able to get the most profit from their grain crops, in spite of increased costs for fertilizer, seed and chemicals.

In oats, for instance, the high 187 farms analyzed had an average yield of 79.9 bushels, gross return of $41.55 per acre, total listed costs of $25.07 and return over total listed costs of $16.48. The 187 low farms had an average yield of 56.5 bushels, gross return of $29.38, total listed costs of $23.41 and return over total listed costs of only $5.97 per acre.

In wheat the top 165 farms averaged 45.3 bushels per acre, gross return of $63.42, total listed costs of $29.84 and return over listed costs of $33.58. The 165 low farms had average yield of 29.9 bushels, gross return of $41.56, listed costs of $26.96 and return over listed costs of $14.60.

In barley the difference in net return was more dramatic than in wheat, averaging $21.23 for the 105 high farms and only $7.17 for the 105 low farms in the program. Yield average for the top farms was 62.8 bushels per acre and for the low farms only 41.5 bushels per acre.

For rye the span was even greater, with high average yield of 53.4 bushels and low of 29.1 bushels and net return of $19.03 per acre compared with only $3.85 per acre.

Corn and soybeans showed the greatest variance. The 76 high corn farms averaged a return of $29.59 per acre while the 76 low farms averaged a loss of 41 cents per acre. In soybeans the top farms averaged a return of $17.11 and the low farms a loss of $7.38 per acre.

Since the program had only a few farms in sugar beets or potatoes, no comparisons were drawn. Beets yielded a fabulous 17.44 tons per acre and returned a gross of $301.71 per acre. Costs totaled $225.70 per acre for a net return of $137.80. Potatoes yielded an average of 131.9 hundredweight per acre and returned a net over listed costs of $63.55 per acre.

Sunflower producers averaged 1,010 pounds per acre with a return over listed costs of $16.63 per acre. The high 20 farms averaged 1,270 pounds per acre and returned $27.11 while the 20 low farms averaged 750 pounds and returned $4.22.

Large livestock operations are not always the most profitable, the record shows. The high 13 farms raising hogs produced only 19,371 pounds of hogs while the 13 low farms averaged 57,480 pounds produced. The high farms averaged a return per hundredweight of $14.22 while the low farms averaged only $1.71. Feed cost made a major difference.

Feeder pig prouducers in the program averaged a return over all listed costs of $36.22 per litter, but the top 12 farms averaged $97.52 per litter and the 12 low farms lost $21.21 per litter. The top producers had larger litters, weaned more pigs per litter due to lower percentage of death loss, held down feed costs and costs of power, machinery, equipment and buildings and fences.

Dairymen on 215 farms averaged a return of $215.94 per cow with an average of 30.4 cows in each herd. The 71 high herds averaged a return of $311 per cow and the lower 71 herds averaged only $74.18. Bulk of the difference between top and bottom was production per cow, with the top herd averaging 434.8 pounds of butterfat and the low herds averaging only 296.5 pounds. Total value produced was $639 for the top herds and $387 for the low herds.

Beef cows on 102 farms showed an average return of $75.26 per cow, with the top herds averaging $128.15 and the bottom herds averaging $19.28.

Feeder cattle returned $11.78 per head on the average on 57 farms with the 19 high farms averaging $19.44 and the 19 low farms averaging $2.58.

Only 37 sheep flocks were included in the report and contained an average of 98 ewes per flock. Return over listed costs were $419 per flock or $4.28 per ewe, on a total value produced of $2,413.

Turkey producers in the program averaged 3,280 turkeys produced and return over all listed costs of $11,631.

According to the report, net farm income for participants in the program increased from $1,501 in 1955 to $2,629 in 1960, $3,733 in 1965, $4,951 in 1970 and $5,694 last year.

The number of servings you can get from a pound of pork depends upon individual appetities, of course, as well as the amount of fat and bone and the quantity of meat left after cooking. But Richard Epley, extension meats specialist at the University of Minnesota, gives this rough guide to the amount of fresh pork to buy: figure two to three average size servings per pound for a bone-in fresh loin or fresh ham roast, a picnic or Boston butt; three to four servings per pound of a fresh roast, trimmed and boned, and one half to two servings per pound of spareribs.

Trash Compactor Is Among Newest Home Appliances

"Why didn't someone think of this before?" That's what women are saying about the newest appliance to make housework easier—a trash compactor.

Into the compactor go bottles, cans, paper cartons and everything else that normally goes into the waste basket and from there to the trash can. The trash is placed into a plastic bag inside a sanitized basket through the appliance's tilt-down door. The door is then locked, and the turn of a lever sets a ramming mechanism going for about a minute, after which it turns off automatically. A week's trash for the average family can be compacted into a 1½-foot cube weighing about 25 pounds.

The compactor has built-in safety features, according to a pioneer in the field of garbage disposers as well as compactors. The machine will operate only when the doors are securely closed, and the doors won't open when the ramming operation is under way.

The appliance comes either as a free-standing or built-in unit in four colors and can be installed wherever there's an electric outlet. Inside it's galvanized metal ~~and stainless steel and~~ is easy to keep clean. The appliance is very quiet, too.

For free information on the compactor write to the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau, 35 E. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. 60601.

Department of Economic Development

Not long ago, we told you how to get good autumn pictures in this everchanging scenic state. Now with springtime a whole new group of subjects is available for the wandering shutterbug. Following are just a few locations to investigate.

The dozens of streams emptying into Lake Superior above Duluth are swollen with the spring thaw. These provide great views of frothy, gushing waters hurtling against rocks and over waterfalls. Some of the better-known falls are at their most beautiful at this time of year, such as those in Gooseberry State Park and on the Pigeon River.

Incidentally, this is also a good time to try those wildlife shots, before the underbrush and grass gets too tall.

This is also the only chance you'll have to capture the magnificence of apple blossoms, blooming on hundreds of trees in the orchards near Stillwater and in the southeast corner of Minnesota near La Crescent. Wild flowers, too, will soon be appearing along the roadsides all over Minnesota, but keep especially to the backroads and river valleys.

During May, the annual return of warblers—hundreds of species of them—will splash the woods and meadows with packets of rainbow hues. But don't worry about not getting too close—a well-composed shot of green leaves and sky only needs the accent of a tiny, bright bird somewhere to make it a memorable photograph.

For human interest pictures, spring is good because youngsters suddenly re-discover the outdoors with all the exuberance only little people seem to muster. They fly kites, wade in rain puddles, build tree houses and sniff out wild flowers. After a time, these things will be old hat, to be replaced by more organized activities.

One problem encountered in shooting outdoors at this time of year is the increased probability of cloudy skies or fast-changing light conditions. A good idea is to take a flash or strobe with you, so if you see something desirable, such as that jack - in - the - pulpit or crocus, you will not be caught by a hiding sun. Even on a nice day, that artificial light will help you shoot in those shady areas.

State's Tourism Industry Shows Big Potential

Minnesota's nearly $1 billion tourism industry could expand further by encouraging metropolitan dwellers from outside midwest states and international tourists to enjoy a "northern woods and waters" experience.

"This part of the tourism market has not been tapped by Minnesota, and there's tremendous potential if the state's tourism marketing service could be improved," said Uel Blank, University of Minnesota economist. "And more tourists won't degrade the environment if we have adequate resource management," he added.

The long travel distance from potential market areas has been a problem for the state's tourism business since most tourists travel to Minnesota by automobile. Most tourists who visit Minnesota from outside the state come from the surrounding states and Illinois, Blank said. About one-half of the tourists come from within Minnesota.

"The combination of the north woods attractions of Lake Superior, the BWCA, Voyageur's national park and Lake of the Woods, along with the iron range and the Twin Cities metropolitan area could attract people to fly to Minnesota from outside our present market area."

Only a small percentage of the state's tourists fly to Minnesota—and this is an angle that we should work on, Blank said.

There's also a large potential for attracting more of the nation's $2 billion international tourism business, since Minnesota's share of the market is quite low.

And, we should improve service for people within the present market area who travel to Minnesota by auto, Blank maintains. "I know families who want to take a resort vacation in the state, but don't know what's available. Perhaps some type of vacation counselling service could attract more of these people," he added.

Such a service, along with a computerized lodging directory, is being considered by the tourism division of the state's economic development department and would aid prospective tourists, Blank concluded.

Impaired Drivers Found In Many Freeway Mishaps

More than two out of 10 drivers primarily responsible for fatal rearend collisions on interstate highways are impaired by sleepiness, fatigue or illness, a federal department of transportation study has revealed. The study was cited today by the Minnesota department of public safety.

Fifteen per cent of involved drivers were allegedly asleep at the time of the accidents, according to the reports of attending officers. Five per cent were fatigued and one per cent were ill.

Tractor-trailer combinations were heavily involved in this type of fatal accident.

Letters to the Editor

Mr. Editor:

May I make use of your privilege of space granted for "Letters To The Editor" because I choose to express myself as a citizen of our city and not necessarily as a pastor.

I have questions with regard to the matter of detaching of land from the city and then reannexing it for the purpose of granting a liquor license and yet granting city conveniences as well as maintaining city control. We each may have our own opinions on whether there should or should not be liquor served within the city and whether a modern motel business can or can't be operated successfully without liquor, or even whether such a facility is wanted in our city. But in this whole matter we seem to be missing a basic question in city politics and I find the mayor's and councilmen's explanations completely evasive on this point.

More basic questions have to do with the politics, and if you please, with the morality of politics, of who and who doesn't govern Thief River Falls.

Does a vote at the polls and the expressed will of the voters count for anything in Thief River Falls? Is the city council now saying to the voters, "We know better what is good and right for our city than the voters did when they turned down the split liquor question?" Do pressure groups mean more to this governing body than the ballots of voters? Do city councilmen even have the right to supersede the expressed will of the voters by using their own judgement when that judgement disagrees with the expressed will of the electorate? Do they have a right to by-pass a decision made by the voters to make use of a loop hole in the law, which loop hole is expressly designed for just such a reversal of the intent of the voters?

Now, it is true that our councilmen were also elected by ballot with strong support. It is also true that they were entrusted to use their judgement in some matters by the very fact of their election. We must say of them that they are respected men and have been honest and open to the public in seeking to carry out their duties. In much of their work they have a thankless task. But, were they not elected first of all to use their judgement in accordance with laws of the city already on the books and in accordance with the expressed will and intent of the voters?

In short, does a decision of the voters at the ballot box on a disputed matter count for anything anymore in Thief River Falls, or has power politics arrived in our city to the point where the council will annul a decision of the voters for the sake of letting special interests rule by the "back-door-method"? These are the questions which the citizens of our city are asking right now, even though they do sound sharp and pointed.

Yours Sincerely,
Reuben A. Wangberg

sewage lift station and extend the city's sewer and water systems. Presently the council plans to extend water service on East First street to Sherwood avenue.

A request had been made to extend water and sewer service for Noper's second addition. That project was reduced and an extension of about 150 feet will be built.

Street improvements on North St. Paul, Markley, Kendall, Tindolph and Crocker avenues was approved with the omission of the 300 block of North Kendall.

Approval for work to be done in Greendale Manor trailer court was given provided the owner pays an outstanding water bill which accrued while a pipe was broken and part of the money owed to the city for connection charges from 1969.

It is expected that the plans and specifications will be ready soon, to be let for bids.

The council acted on a request by John Nelson for excavating and backfilling for the property he owns near the Catholic cemetery. It has been a policy of the city to pay for that, so it was decided that city employees would do the work out of municipal funds.

A resolution was passed to exclude all supervisory personnel from the bargaining units of the Teamsters union and the police union.

DNR Schedules Trout Stocking Program In 1972

Nearly 1,700,000 trout will be stocked in state waters this year, the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources reported.

Included in the total are 180,000 coho salmon which will continue to be stocked on an experimental basis in Lake Superior and selected inland lakes.

Of the total stocking of trout and salmon for this year, yearling size fish will comprise some 927,000 - representing a total weight of almost 100,000 pounds.

Stan Daley of the DNR fisheries staff said stocking is already under way in the southern part of the state.

"Most of these fish will be released before the season opens April 29, but others will be held back and stocked at intervals during the season and some will be released this fall after the season closes," he said.

Among the yearling trout to be stocked are:

2 - 215,000 brown trout with 80 per cent headed for southeastern Minnesota.

3 - 75,000 rainbow trout with 80 per cent in lakes with balance in streams in southern and central part of the state.

4 - 300,000 lake trout including 250,000 fish from federal hatcheries destined for Lake Superior.

6 - 130,000 coho salmon for French and Beaver rivers on the north shore of Lake Superior.

1 - 154,000 brook trout for specially managed stream trout lakes.

2 - 29,000 brown trout for fall stocking lakes and streams.

3 - 530,000 rainbows for stream trout lakes, north shore streams, and Lake Superior. Includes several thousand pond-reared Donaldson and Kamloops which are expected to be considerably larger than the average hatchery-reared rainbow when stocked out next fall.

4 - 50,000 coho salmon for fall stocking in inland lakes.

Daley mentioned that trout being stocked this year are averaging larger than those stocked in 1971 due to improvement in hatchery food and other factors.

He reminded anglers that there is a continuous fishing season on trout and salmon on north shore streams within the posted boundaries but that the balance of the states streams and lakes are now closed to trout fishing until April 29.

The daily limit on trout is 10 and not more than 3 may be 16 inches or more in length.

HARWOOD RETURNS!

If you were old enough to drink back in the late 40's, chances are you remember Harwood with respect, if not affection. A fine rich Canadian with its own ideas about quality. But just about the time you began to enjoy it, we disappeared. We apologize. You see, our production at that time was limited, so reluctantly we decided to keep most of it at home.

Since we went away, more Americans have developed a taste for Canadians, today's Canadians, the lighter ones. And we have developed a way to supply them with one we can truly call Harwood. Lighter, yes. Lesser, no.

Now that we are returning to America, with all due modesty, we trust America will return to us.

Especially as Harwood costs no more than those Canadians-come-lately.

"To learn that we have said or done a foolish thing, that is nothing; we must learn that we are but fools: a much fuller and more important lesson." — Montaigne

More Favorable Ground

Squashed again in the Wisconsin Presidential primary, Sen. Edmund Muskie said he would press on to the primaries in Pennsylvania, Massachusetts and Ohio, saying those states would provide "more favorable ground". So far his prospecting for political support has found only rocks and brambles.

And Sen. Hubert Humphrey must be doing some deep thinking after placing third behind Gov. George Wallace of Alabama in the next-door state to his home state of Minnesota. Gov. Wallace polled 22 per cent of the vote while Humphrey collected 21 per cent.

Sen. George McGovern won 30 per cent of the vote and immediately declared himself "a major contender in the public mind". He was quoted as saying that, "I really think we received a boost tonight that could take us all the way." It was presumed he meant the Democratic Presidential nomination rather than all the way back to South Dakota.

Muskie captured only 10 per cent of the Wisconsin vote. Mayor John Lindsay of New York, a one-time Republican who became a Democrat when he heard that party was looking for a Presidential candidate, finished sixth in Wisconsin and threw in the towel.

All of which leaves a scramble in the party for the Presidential nomination and more non-decisive primaries to come. For the once front-running Sen. Muskie, we are doubtful they will provide much more favorable ground.

Such A Tragedy!

When a teenage girl's life is ended in a traffic accident, when a fine young man dies on the battlefield, when a beginning farmer meets death beneath the wheels of his tractor, when a young businessman succumbs to a heart attack, people are heard to remark "Such a tragedy!"

And they are right. It is tragic to see young lives ended, for we value future and potential of our young people and almost feel cheated if that future is not permitted to happen and that potential is not permitted to be realized.

How much more tragic, then, is the life destroyed even before it has a chance to be introduced into this world? Doesn't it bother our inherent spirit of fair play that entirely defenseless human beings can be totally eliminated and calously deprived of the life they have since conception been struggling to maintain?

We refer, of course, to the performance of abortion.

"An unborn baby is an individual human life," writes Ellen McCormack of an organization called Women For The Unborn. "The modern science of genetics demonstrates this. Will our society, the most scientifically advanced in history, ignore this truth and pretend it isn't so?

"Unlike past ages, when we talk of abortion today, we are rarely putting the mother's life against the life of her child. Rather, we are putting the life of the child against the relative health, social or economic comfort, or convenience of another person," the author writes.

"The advocates of abortion maintain it will eliminate much suffering. It is the answer, they say, to many grave social, economic and personal problems. Other solutions may exist, but they would be more difficult and take more time. Abortion is easy, quick and final—very final.

"Yet, if we sanction abortion, what are we doing? This really is the first and central question to consider. The answer is clear, and it comes not from the moral code nor from religious belief but from science—we are taking human life."

The writer continues to make her point as follows:

"There is a person in the womb. . . . a truly human, living person who is feeling, learning, reacting, struggling and growing toward life in the world. He may be a fantastically tiny creature. At the very beginning he may not look like us. But even then the indelible genetic stamp of humanness is there.

"Few abortions are performed before the eighth week. By that time our littlest human being is fully formed, with tiny arms and legs, eyes which open and shut, and a heart that vigorously pumps blood through microscopically fine blood vessels.

"An unborn child of three months is no bigger than his father's thumb, and weighs only about an ounce. Yet he has ears which hear not only the thump-thum- of his mother's heart, but the loud bark of a dog in his family's back yard, the clatter of a dish that his mother drops, all the noises of this outside world he doesn't yet possess.

"For some abortion advocates, killing an unborn baby doesn't seem to matter because his past has been so limited. They measure his importance by his life history, and since that is brief, his death is passed over as insignificant. Women For The Unborn looks at the baby and asks about his future: What years lie ahead, what possibilities for this unborn child whose fate we are debating? For do we not destroy a future when we sanction abortion?

"The unborn baby at one week, eight weeks, or six months, needs only one thing he doesn't already have, in order to become a person who is active in the world: he needs time. The big question is, are we going to give it to him?"

Remember "Central"?

Following article was written by Ferd Froescle in the Lisbon, N.D., newspaper:

It was a pleasure to learn that the last stand of the hand-crank telephone is being made not in the mountains of the west nor the prairies of North Dakota, but in the semi-civilized fastnesses of New York state.

In Summit, New York, the 180-customer exchange is going to convert to dial telephone some time this summer, and the people there no doubt will regard the change as progress—for a while.

I suppose newspaper people all over the world regard the coming of dial phone service as a step backwards. The impersonal little dial just sits there waiting for you to make mistakes and letting its recorded voice tell you that you're doing something wrong.

It's a far cry from the day when the local telephone operator—"central" she was called—would help in the search for your party.

My favorite of that Clon was Cora Dehn, an elderly widow who not only operated the switchboard in my home town, she presided over it.

Call 40-J and she would announce, "I don't think your mother is at home. I heard her tell Mrs. Hanewald she was going to Mrs. Jacob's house for coffee."

She provided a sort of small town detective service, electronically searching until she located the person you were trying to call.

"Mrs. Dehn," I'd say, "see if you can find Ted Sailer for me."

One of her first calls was usually to the barber shop. Not only did most local businessmen have a professional and social contact there, but the barber was in a strategic position to see almost anyone who went either way along Main Street.

Bill, the barber, would know if Ted Sailer had passed in that direction. If he went west it was probably to the drug store for a cigar or a coke.

If he went east it may have been the garage or lumber yard. In any case he was going to be located shortly, and in a couple of minutes I could expect Ted on the line.

You needed no Yellow Pages to find what you wanted. In fact, you could get information no yellow pages will ever provide.

When oil was discovered near Tioga, a call to the Tioga operator simply specified, "I'd like to talk to someone who can give me more information on the oil well." She had the right man on the line in minutes.

The greatest service from "Central" came in times of real emergencies.

"Operator," a voice could say, "I need a doctor." The operator knew who was calling, where from and she didn't have to look up the number of the doctor. She knew.

If you needed the police, you weren't connected with a recorder at the police station. She pushed a button. A bright bulb lighted up in front of the police station. If the policeman didn't call in a minute or so, she set to work finding him, and she always did.

And there were no obscene phone calls. The operator knew where the calls were coming from, and nobody was stupid enough to try to fool her.

Sometimes the little drop plate on the switchboard would fall without a ring. She would check that. Quite often it meant a small voice on the line with the information, "I want my mama." She knew how to locate mamas, too.

Borrowed Nonsense

After giving what he considered a stirring, fact-filled campaign speech, the candidate looked out at his audience and confidently asked: "Now, are there any questions?"

"Yes," came a voice from the back of the room. "Who else is running?"

"How can I cure my husband of snoring?" the lady asked her doctor.

"By kindness, understanding, helpful advice and patience," advised the doctor.

"But I've tried all that," she said.

"In that case," replied the Doc., "you must try stuffing an old sock into his mouth."

Interesting Opinions

"With me health means keeping up my accustomed way of living without discomfort. I find that sickness upsets my balance in one direction; if I take the advice of the doctors they will upset it in the other." —Montaigne

notes from the governor

Much has been said and written about the problems of the aged in our society. By any index of social well-being, whether it be income, nutrition, health or ability to function in a community, it is clear that a great number of our nation's senior citizens are in dire need.

Yet despite the "concern" focused on the aged, it is also clear that they have been neglected, if not ignored, as social planning and programs have proliferated.

There are existing resources to meet at least some of the needs of the elderly, if we will but use those resources wisely. This week, in Ramsey County, a significant attempt to do just that was placed in operation.

Developed under the supervision of my office, it is called the greater St. Paul comprehensive service project for the elderly.

It is the first of its kind in the nation. Its purpose is to demonstrate that services for the elderly can, at little extra cost and staff, be greatly improved if the efforts of senior citizens themselves and those of public and private agencies are properly coordinated. More than 30 agencies have participated in the planning.

The first phase of the project calls for improving services in several areas, including transportation, employment and in-home chores. For instance, the Metropolitan transit commission will operate two specially-equipped buses six hours a day, 365 days a year over routes designed specifically with the needs of the elderly in mind. The Ramsey county welfare department, at minimal cost, will obtain light housekeeping help for elderly persons who have difficulty maintaining their homes or apartments.

In phases two and three of the project, the focus will be on the nutritional, health and housing needs of the elderly.

Dr. Arthur S. Flemming, director of the White House conference on aging, has hailed the project as one of the most promising experiments for the aging in the nation.

It is my expectation that the Ramsey county project will be a resounding success. It is my hope that it can be duplicated throughout Minnesota.

"The Newspaper Skills Course gave me my start in a very rewarding career!"

The young fellow above is Bob Francis, the new co-publisher of The Trimont Progress and Ceylon Herald, a weekly newspaper in southern Minnesota.

Bob is a 1970 graduate of the Newspaper Skills Course at Anoka Technical Education Center. Each summer a group of selected students spends eight weeks of hard work at this course, learning the skills of newspaper writing, editing, advertising and photography. Bob is the first of the course's 36 graduates to own his own newspaper.

"I had absolutely no newspaper experience when I entered the course," he says. "But after two months I found that I was able to write news stories, take news photos (develop and print them, too), make up ads, compose pages for printing, and perform many other intricacies of newspaper work.

"To my amazement, that was only the beginning. After learning the basic elements of newspapering in the Skills Course, I have been able confidently to branch out, enhance the skills I learned, and ultimately to manage my own newspaper."

If you have a high school diploma, can type, have a "feeling for words," and — this is the most important — have a deep interest in going into newspaper work, you may be accepted as one of the 20 students in the 1972 Newspaper Skills Course. Write Newspaper Skills Program, Box 191, Anoka Technical Education Center, Anoka 55303. The course starts July 24 and ends Sept. 15.

Racers speed around turn during the running of the Miller 500 at Ontario, California. After his victory, Ellen Frank, Miss Chemguard, greets winner A. J. Foyt. The race saw drivers Bobby Isaac and Mark Donohue pile up their cars in a violent crash in a turn on the 46th lap.

Ontario, Calif. — Although the lead changed hands 36 times during the Miller 500, veteran driver A. J. Foyt was first across the finish line when it counted. This was a back-to-back win for Foyt who also took the event in 1971.

Foyt collected $31,695 for his 3-hour 56 minute 6.4 second ride. This breaks down to $134.30 per minute. In second and third spots were Bobby Allison and Buddy Baker.

After the dust had settled, Ellen Frank, Miss Chemguard — representing one of the major race sponsors, was on hand to congratulate Foyt.

Richard Petty, who finished fourth, marked a milestone in the race. He became the first driver in stock car history to complete 100,000 miles in stock car competition.

Petty might have won the race had it not been for unscheduled pit stops. This is not the first time bad pit stops have cost a driver the race. "I made two unscheduled pit stops, two too many", NASCAR's all-time driving champion lamented following the event.

A crowd of 68,498 was on hand for the race as the temperature climbed to 89 degrees.

Moorhead Tops Powerful Field For Shanley Invitational Title

Moorhead raced to a surprisingly easy 14-point win in the powerful Shanley Invitational track meet in the spacious tartan-covered North Dakota State University field house Saturday as the Spuds captured six individual titles.

Thief River Falls tied for seventh in the impressive field of 23 teams which included the 1971 state champions from Minnesota (Moorhead), North Dakota (Bismarck) and South Dakota (Sioux Falls Lincoln), as well as the defending Minnesota Catholic state champion (St. Paul Benilde).

Moorhead finished the all-day affair with 65 points, ahead of Sioux Falls Lincoln with 51, Bismarck 28, Fargo South 17½, Sioux Falls Washington 14, Fergus Falls 10, Thief River Falls and St. Paul Bendile 7, Grand Forks Central 6, Crookston 5, Tuttle 4, West Fargo and St. Cloud Cathedral 3, Wahpeton 2 and Grand Forks Red River 1½.

The top effort turned in for the Prowlers was a second place finish by junior Markoe Hanson in the 60-yard dash. Hanson recorded a 6.5 in the event, but was edged by talented Jim Gravalin of Moorhead who set a new meet record with a 6.4 clocking.

Gravalin, a senior, is the Minnesota defending 100 and 220-yard state champion who won two sprints and ran the anchor leg on Moorhead's record-setting 880 relay team to be named the meet's outstanding athlete.

Prowler head coach Jim Sims was real pleased with his squad's performance against the top-flight field, feeling his team turned in a fantastic effort.

Other top individual performances turned in by Prowler Thinclads included 6.6 clockings in the 60-yard dash by both Rob Swenson and Steve Beich, a pair of speedy seniors. Hanson and Swenson both gained spots in the semi-finals, but Swenson was forced to leave the meet early due to the Lincoln operetta.

Senior distnce runner Paul Battleson ran a 2:01.6 in the 880, good for a fourth-place finish, with Crookston's Todd Peterson placing third.

Bruce Johnson failed to place among the top five in the meet in the two mile run, but the Prowler senior broke the Lincoln school mark with a 10:15.5, bettering last year's 10:36 performance by Jon Folkedahl.

Prowler captain Mike Fitzgerald ran a 53.6 in the preliminary 440 races, but failed to place after gaining a spot in the finals.

Senior Doug Aaseby paced the Prowler hurdlers with a 7.7 time in the 60-yard lows and an 8.7 in the 60-yard highs.

Greg Bulger recorded a 4:54.5 in the mile and Hanson turned in a 24.0 time in the 220 prelims.

The Prowler 880 relay team placed fifth with a 1:38.9 time with Beich, Jon Markstrom, Kent Smith and Battleson forming the squad. The mile relay team, Markstrom, Smith, Battleson and freshman Jerry Sandahl, ran a 3:45.2.

In the field events, senior Rande Smith tossed the shot put 44-1½, Kent Smith jumped 5-6 in the high jump and Mark Kaushagen made 10-6 in the pole vault.

Northland Opens 1972 Spring Sports Schedule At Crookston

Northland state junior college will open its 1972 spring sports season tomorrow (Tuesday) when track coach Chet Engelman leads an 11-man delegation to Crookston for an indoor quadrangular meet against Crookston Tech, Lake Region and Fergus Falls.

The Northmen golf and tennis squads will not open their seasons until April 25.

Taking a look at the track outlook this spring Engelman stated, "We don't expect to set the world on fire this year, but we'll have a couple of kids in events where we'll be pretty tough. We should be pretty fair in the weights, hurdles and distance events, and maybe the relay teams."

Providing plenty of scoring power in the weights, particularly the shot put, will be sophomores Tony Burke (Bemidji) and Mark Kays (TRF), along with freshman Mike Rasch (Hoffman). Engelman, in his second year at the Northland track helm, believes that all three weightmen are capable of tossing the 16-pound shot over the 40-foot mark, which would break the school record by two feet. All three are expected to try a hand with the discus while Burke and Rasch also toss the javelin.

In the distance events - the 880, mile and two-mile races, Engelman will probably use freshmen Kim Murphy and Dale Hanson (TRF), along with Terry Haaven (McIntosh) and Jeff Brummer (RLF).

Sophomore Tim Olson, a fifth place finisher in the 120-yard high hurdles in last year's MJCAA state meet, will again lead the Northmen hurdlers while also competiting in the triple jump.

Freshman Brian Boman (TRF) and Dean LaChance (RLF) will run in the sprint events for the Northmen while freshman Les Swanson (Warren) does the pole vaulting.

The Northland track squad will open the season with three indoor appearances at Crookston, against UMTC and other opponents on April 11, 18 and 26 before traveling to Babbitt on April 29. The Northmen will run at Virginia May 9 before competing in the region 13 junior college meet May 12 at Wahpeton. The MJCAA Northern Division meet will be held in Thief River Falls May 16 and the state MJCAA meet will be staged May 20 at Anoka-Ramsey.

Golf coach Al Adams announced the names of six candidates who will compete for the Northmen duffers this spring, headed by return letter winner Bob Lundbohm, a sophomore from Roseau.

The other members of the Northland golf squad include sophomores Curt Jensen (Erskine) and Steve Johnson (TRF), along with freshmen Roger Erickson (Roseau), Dave Steen (Duluth East) and Bruce Grundeyson (McIntosh).

Orrin Bendickson will coach the Northland tennis squad this spring with five boys working out for positions on the squad. The lone sophomore on the team is Jay Forney (TRF), while freshman candidates include Mark Hughes (EGF), John Buringrud, Dale Hanson and Stuart Waltonen (TRF).

The Northland golf and tennis squads will open their seasons together April 25 when they take part in invitational meets at Brainerd.

The golf squad will host an invitational meet in Thief River Falls May 1, while the Tennis team travels to Grand Rapids on the same date. The two squads will again appear together at invitationsl May 12 at Hibbing and May 15 at Grand Rapids.

Adams, NSJC athletic director, also announced possible triangular meets in both sports against Crookston Tech and Fergus Falls during the season, with each school hosting a meet.

The MJCAA state and the region 13 golf meets will be held at Rochester May 18 and 19 while the state MJCAA tennis tournament will be played at Austin May 19.

MPCA Advises On Disposal Of Abandoned Autos

Minnesota county officials are currently being advised how to proceed to take advantage of the state's new program for disposing of abandoned automobiles and other scrap material.

Under a 1971 law, a recycling tax of $1 is collected on the transfer of title of any motor vehicle weighing over 1,000 pounds, (except transfers to dealers for re-sale) in order to finance the program. The Minnesota pollution control agency, (PCA) which administers the program, proposes to assist the counties or other units of government in the purchase of sites for the collection and storage of abandoned motor vehicles.

Since the collecting of old cars is a limiting factor in the reprocessing of the metals, the PCA expects to speed the removal of junkers by assisting with the establishment of collection sites throughout the state. The plan calls for the purchase of permanent sites, but allows for the rental of temporary sites. These can be existing automobile graveyards.

The guidelines call for location of the sites at or near places where abandoned motor vehicles have already been accumulated so that hauling distances are minimal. PCA also will require them to be located to permit access by large, heavy transports by means of all-weather roads. Joint operation of sites by two or more units of government is also provided for.

After a substantial number of junkers has been accumulated in a storage area, they will be sold at public auction. If no buyer is found the unit of government could contact with qualified reducers to flatten the car bodies and transport the reduced scrap to a scrap processor. The larger processors now operating convert the cars by shredding the metal in hammermills. The scrap is then sold to steel mills in the Twin Cities area, Winnipeg, Chicago or where the best scrap price is available.

Transporters, processors and disposers will be licensed by PCA, and processes used in reducing the scrap, such as incineration, will be required to meet state standards.

The tax, which is collected by the motor vehicle services division of the Minnesota department of public safety, is expected to yield in the neighborhood of $700,000 annually.

THIRD STREET in Thief River Falls as it looked in the early 1900's is shown in this post card sent to the Times by Wilson Tingle of St. Paul, who found it among some papers which belonged to his father. On the back of the card was hand-written the date April 22, 1917, and the comment: "Rich soil. Pop. 7,000. Very favorable impression." The population figure may be in question but, for its day, the community likely was impressive to visitors.

PLANNING for the public affairs seminar to be held at Northland college April 18 are (left to right) Willard Kottke, Northland college administrative assistant; Terry Courneya, Pennington county extension agent; and Victor Charles, president of Northland college.

History Lesson

Chard or Swiss chard grows wild in the Mediterranean area and was known to gardeners as long ago as the 4th century B.C. It is a beet with a small, inedible root, but highly developed leaves. It is thought that our beet was developed from chard.

U of M Research Team Questions Damage By DDT

Commonly held belief that DDT damages animal life and is dangerous to man has come under some question as a result of recent research, University of Minnesota scientists report.

Feeding extremely high levels of the DDT pesticide to laying hens, the scientists found that neither egg weight nor shell thickness was affected. Chicks hatched from the eggs were normal and grew normally. The month-long experiment using a 300 part per million (ppm) level of the chemical was recently completed by university animal scientists George Speers, Paul Waibel and student Gil Waibel.

"The test raises some question of how dangerous DDT is to animals. If such a high level doesn't affect chickens, then it is questionable that exposure to lower levels over a longer time period, would affect other animals," Speers said.

He acknowledges that other experiments have shown that high levels of DDT fed to ducks and quail have reduced egg shell thickness causing many eggs to be broken. And DDT probably doesn't affect all animals in the same manner, he said.

However, other tests where chickens were fed DDT at the 300 ppm level also showed no adverse affects, Speers said.

The scientists also wanted to find out what affect charcoal would have in the hens' diet. Three per cent charcoal reduced the DDT deposition in the hens' fat and in egg yolk.

The experiment demonstrated how easily DDT can spread in the environment. Even though the hens fed DDT were separated from those fed a normal diet, DDT was found in small quantities in the body tissues of hens not fed the chemical.

Although DDT has been banned in most parts of this country, Speers feels it still should be used in certain instances. "It is one of our most efficient pesticides," he said.

And Speers thinks that we have gone overboard in our reaction to commonly used chemicals such as DDT. "Maybe our society can exist without it, but other parts of the world need it to control mosquitoes that spread malaria.

"In the future we are going to have to make a more rational comparison of risks versus benefits when evaluating chemicals for use in controlling pests and diseases of plants and animals," Speers said.

COUNTY BOARD PROCEEDINGS

OFFICIAL PROCEEDINGS
BOARD OF COUNTY COMMISSIONERS
PENNINGTON COUNTY, MINNESOTA.
March 28, 1972

The County Board met in special session in the Commissioners Room in the Courthouse at 1:30 p.m., March 28, 1972 to review the Preliminary draft of the Pennington County Solid Waste Management Plan.

Members present: Hanson, Olson, Anderson, Stenberg and Tasa. All present.

Mr. Wayne Jensen, representing the firm of Clark & Enersen, Hamersky, Schlaebitz, Burroughs & Thomsen, was present to review the Preliminary Plan. The Plan consisting of nine sections of facts and figures along with maps and suggestions was reviewed in considerable detail.

Because of the volume of the document the Board was asked to review their individual copy in more detail and submit a letter with comments and suggestions to the Planners so that a final draft could be drawn and another meeting be held on or about June 1st. The final Plan must be in the hands of the Pollution Control Agency of the State of Minnesota by July 1, 1972.

A number of copies of the Preliminary Plan were made available to the Board and the Auditor was instructed to make the Plans available to interested persons and especially the State Pollution Control Agency, the SCS Committee and the County Agent. Several copies should also be made available to the City.

Moved by Anderson seconded by Stenberg that meeting adjourn. Motion carried.

Don L. Olson, Chairman
Pennington County Board

Attest: C. W. Rodekuhr, County Auditor & ex-officio, Clerk of the Board.

April 10, 1972
OFFICIAL PROCEEDINGS
PENNINGTON COUNTY, MINNESOTA
March 24, 1972

The County Board met in special session pursuant to motion of March 7, 1972 indicating a need for a meeting to discuss the need for reapportionment of the Commissioner Districts in the County.

Members present: Hanson, Anderson, Stenberg and Tasa.

Members absent: Commissioner Olson was not able to be present because of a meeting of the Committee on Crime Control in Crookston.

Vice-Chairman Hanson called the meeting to order in the absence of Chairman Olson.

Robert Kinsman appeared and discussed a proposed Motel complex that he is planning to construct during the coming summer. The Board was asked for tentative approval of a County Liquor license should the complex be built in the County. The matter was taken under advisement.

The matter of reapportionment of the County into equal districts by population was then discussed. The absence of adequate records to establish where the people actually lived was indicated as being a major problem in attempting to draw Commissioner District lines. Tentative lines were drawn on the map of the City of Thief River Falls and the Townships were realigned in an attempt to arrive at equal population figures. Federal Census Enumeration District totals will be ascertained and an attempt made to match the figures with the tentative boundaries. Additional information relative to the enumeration districts were requested so that the matter could be taken up at the next meeting.

Moved by Tasa seconded by Anderson that the meeting adjourn. Motion carried.

Odin C. Hanson, vice-chairman
Pennington County Board

Attest: C. W. Rodekuhr, County Auditor and ex-officio, Clerk of the Board.

QUESTIONS Answered for VETERANS

Q—Will the recent Social Security increase affect Veterans administration pension and dependency and indemnity compensation (DIC) payments to dependent parents?

A—For those on VA rolls on the date of approval of the Social Security increases, pension or DIC will not be reduced or discontinued, where required, until January 1, 1972.

Q—I am a Vietnam veteran interested in training under the GI bill, but am not sure what courses to take. Can the Veterans administration assist me?

A—Yes. Eligible veterans may receive vocational counseling from the VA at no cost to help them derive greater benefits from their training. Application should be made to the VA office nearest the veteran's home.

Q—In 1948, I purchased an automobile with special adaptive equipment with a grant for disabled veterans from the Veterans administration. I now plan to buy a new car. Will the VA pay for the adaptive equipment?

A—Yes. You should apply for this equipment on VA Form 10-1394. The VA will provide an eligible veteran with adaptive equipment necessary for the safe operation of his automobile or other conveyance, so as to comply with the standards of licensure of his state.

Q—Is it too late for a veteran over 65 years of age to apply for a waiver of government insurance premiums?

A—No. If a veteran becomes totally disabled before his 65th birthday and meets other requirements, he is entitled to the waiver even though he does not apply for it until he is over 65.

Q—If a veteran's widow who draws death pension benefits is a patient in a nursing home and is in need of regular aid and attendance, is she eligible for additional pension?

A—Yes, she is entitled to an additional special monthly pension of $55 under the current law. Widows requiring regular aid and attendance are entitled to an additional $50 monthly pension under the "old" law.

Q—As the widow of a veteran who died 14 months ago, Can I collect a Veterans Administration burial allowance?

A—Yes, provided your husband was a wartime, Korean Conflict or Vietnam veteran with an other than dishonorable discharge, or was drawing service-connected compensation at time of death or discharge, or retired for disability incurred in line of duty. Application for a maximum $250 burial allowance may be filed within two years of burial or cremation.

Q—Is the educational assistance allowance I get from the Veterans administration taxable?

A— No. VA benefits are not taxable or assignable, and are exempt from claims of creditors, attachment or seizure.

Q— I hear the Veterans administration has a new insurance policy called modified life 70 plan. How can I find out more about this insurance?

A— Your local VA office will be happy to provide information on that insurance or any other VA benefit.

Q— Can I buy a Veterans administration repossessed home if I am not a veteran?

A— Yes. The VA sells repossessed homes to any credit-worthy individual, veteran or non-veteran.

Q—I was attending college under the GI bill and changed to vocational school. Can I change back to college?

A—Yes. The Veterans administration may approve the second change if, after counseling, it is determined that the change is in keeping with your abilities and interest and there is a reasonable chance you can successfully complete the program.

Q—I am a 66-year-old veteran with a $10,000 national service life insurance five-year level premium term policy. I suffered a disability after I reached 65 which kept me from working for six months. Am I eligible for a waiver of premiums on my insurance?

A—No. Your disability must have been incurred before your 65th birthday to qualify for the waiver.

Q—Can it be arranged with the Veterans administration to automatically apply dividends from my GI life insurance policy toward payment of the loan on the policy?

A—Yes, if you request the VA to use your dividends for that purpose.

Q—I hear a lot about Veterans administration's on-the-job training program for eligible veterans. How much does the VA pay a veteran in the program?

A—Under approved programs, the VA pays subsistence allowances to veterans while in training. Veterans with no dependents receive $108 per month the first six months of training, $81 the second six months, $54 the third and $27 for the balance of the training period. Veterans with dependents get higher allowances. Meantime, the salary paid by the employer increases as the trainee develops skills useful to his employer.

Q—I was honorably discharged from military service after serving from May 1, 1955 to May 7, 1959. Am I eligible for Veterans administration educational assistance?

A—Yes. Any veteran is eligible for this benefit after serving more than 180 days of active duty, any part of it after January 31, 1955, and receiving an other than dishonorable discharge. Veterans released for service-connected disabilities (regardless of length of service) and servicemen with more than 180 days of service are also eligible.

Q—If social security benefits are increased again this year, will it affect my Veterans administration pension?

A—Yes, but not during the current year. Any required pension adjustments are made effective the first of the year following the year social security increases are received.

Q—If a veteran has provided for a lump sum payment of proceeds from his national service life insurance, may the beneficiary select payment under another option?

A—Yes. A beneficiary may elect payment of all or part of the insurance under one of three monthly installment plans.

Q—I am drawing monthly educational assistance checks from the Veterans administration, and would like to have them continued when I go to summer school. How can I accomplish this?

A—After you enroll for the summer session, notify the school of your continued eligibility for VA educational benefits. The school will certify your re-enrollment to the VA, and you will receive your payments effective the date of re-enrollment.

Land Use

Farmers aren't the only ones who benefit from the use of pesticides. Any of us who enjoy a day outdoors benefit, too. Without pesticides and agricultural technology, much of the land now available for wildlife and recreation would have to be cultivated. In addition to the 320 million acres of crops now harvested, it is estimated that over 800 million acres — equal to the area of Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Tennessee, Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama — would be needed to feed the U.S. population.

George Shaffer of Louisville led the National League in home runs with three during the 1877 season.

Final Report On Grain Signup Listed By ASC

Final report on the 1972 feed grain program signup held February 3 through March 10, including delayed register enrollments through March 23, confirms that a new signup record has been set in Minnesota, according to Elton R Redalen, chairman of the Minnesota state agricultural stabilization and conservation committee

Number of farms enrolled set a record. For 1972 the total is 103,130 farms as compared to 95,350 in 1971

Base acreage on farms signed up for 1972 totals 7,955,275 acres or 12 per cent larger than the previous record of 7,099,171 acres set in 1969

The set aside offered for the 1972 program totals 2,748,212 acres, the largest except for the record 3 million acres of diversion signed up in 1969.

Of the total feed grain base of 7,955,275 acres on enrolled farms this year, 6,893,990 acres are corn base, 3,851 acres represent grain sorghum base, and 1,057,434 acres are barley base.

The 2,748,212 acre set aside for 1972 has a required 25 per cent totalling 1,985,955 acres. It also includes up to 10 per cent voluntary additional set aside under two separate options for corn-sorghum base acreage and up to 20 per cent for barley to make a group total of 578,305 acres, plus additional offers under both options totalling 183,952 acres of corn-sorghum.

Of the two options for additional set aside available, option "B" announced February 2 provides a higher payment rate than the original option but requires farms to reduce 1972 corn-sorghum plantings below 1971 corn-sorghum acreage by twice the amount of voluntary set-aside. Additional set-aside offered under option "A totals 101,560 acres. That offered under option "B" totals 82,392 acres and will assure a reduction in 1972 corn-sorghum acreage of at least double that amount.

Final signup returns for the 1972 wheat program, according to Redalen, lists 41,147 farms enrolled in Minnesota.

Signed farms have allotments totalling 326,883 acres or 96 per cent of the state's share of the national domestic allotment of 341,711 acres.

Wheat acreage set aside on enrolled farms in Minnesota totals 401,708 acres. This includes the required 83 per cent set aside of 271,229 acres and 130,479 acres of voluntary additional set aside.

Plans for the refresher course for registered nurses that will be offered May 1 through May 26 in Thief River Falls under the co-sponsorship of Northland state junior college and the Northlands regional medical program are progressing on schedule.

Betty C. Heldstab, R.N., recent director of nursing service, Riverview hospital, Crookston, will be the coordinator-instructor for the refresher course. Miss Helstab is a graduate from St. Louis university with M.S. degree in nursing education. She has experience as a professor in nursing education at the University of North Dakota, Seattle university, St. Scholastic college and the University of Wisconsin-Eau Claire.

The four-week course is designed to prepare inactive RNs to return to their professions and provide continuing education for practicing nurses. Course content combines classroom work and actual clinical experience in health care institutions.

St. Paul State Fairgrounds Has Heavy Activity

More than 40 days of activity are planned for the Minnesota state fairgrounds between mid-April and early July. Shows and events to be held at the fair include horse shows, fire fighters school, a rodeo, a Boy scout exposition, college commencement exercises and a circus.

Because fair buildings are not equipped with heating plants, their use for spectator events is limited to warm weather months. Intense preparation for the annual state fair, to be held August 25 through September 4, makes it necessary to restrict use of the grounds after July 4.

In spite of these limitations, off-season use of the fairgrounds facilities is increasing. During 1971, a total of 46 special events were conducted with a combined attendance of 239,975 persons.

Students Urged To Apply Early For Summer Jobs

Approximately 210,000 Minnesota young people between the ages of 16 and 21 will be looking for work this summer, according to J. K. Stadum, manager of the Minnesota state employment service at Thief River Falls.

We expect there will be many more students than jobs when high schools and colleges close for the commer. Competition this year is expected to be exceptionally keen" he said.

Young people are already filing applications and he urged employers to place job orders with the nearest state employment service office as soon as possible.

Stadum offered some suggestions for high school and college students seeking employers, either permanent or temporary. "Impressions often make the difference," he said, and "applicants should avoid extremes in hair styles and dress.

"Be on time. Be prepared to fill out an application form and do it neatly and completely. If you get nervous, remember the interviewer was once a job applicant, too.

"Don't walk in and say, 'Do you have anything for me?' Apply for a specific type of work. Let the interviewer take the lead, and answer all questions truthfully and courteously," he added.

Stadum also suggests thanking the interviewer for his time. "Try to make as good an impression in leaving as you did when entering."

Youth may register for summer jobs at the state employment service office in Thief River Falls between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Last summer 60,878 youth registered for work with Minnesota manpower services offices. Of that number, 13,605 nonfarm placements and 39,050 agricultural placemtnts were made. The majority of the agricultural placements were short-time jobs.

Schools in the area served by the Thief River Falls office will pour about 600 youths into the local labor market. Most will be seeking summer work only, but a portion will want permanent employment, Stadum said.

2 Mpls. Stores Disqualified In Food Stamp Plan

Two Minneapolis stores have been disqualified from the federal food stamp program for violations, the U.S. department of agriculture has announced. They sold alcoholic beverages, socks, paper products, detergent, light bulbs and cigarettes for food stamps.

Disqualification for the two stores began March 18 and will last for one year.

The owner may apply for reinstatment of the store in the food stamp program to take effect at or after the end of the disqualification period, but until the store is reinstated, the grocery may not accept food coupons.

The USDA official explained that food coupons, by law, can be used only to buy food, excluding certain imported items.

Food stores participating agree in advance to abide by the laws and regulations. Any store that breaks the law or regulations—and anyone who pressures a store to do so— weakens and endangers the whole program, established to combat hunger and malnutrition, states Dennis M. Doyle, midwest regional administrator of USDA's food and nutrition service.

NW Minn. Highest In Housing Inadequacy

Highest percentages of housing units in Minnesota lacking complete kitchen and plumbing facilities were in rural areas, according to a housing profile prepared by the Minnesota analysis and planning system (MAPS) at the University of Minnesota.

A MAPS computer analysis of 1970 census data shows that rural state Senate District 1 had the highest percentage—24—of housing units lacking some or all plumbing facilities and the highest percentage—18.1—lacking complete kitchen facilities. Senate District 1 includes the northwestern part of the state.

The MAPS data is for Minnesota's state Senate and House districts as apportioned by the U.S. district court on January 25.

William J. Angell, extension housing specialist at the University of Minnesota, said lack of kitchen and plumbing facilities is an indication of housing adequacy.

A housing unit with complete kitchen facilities, according to the census bureau, has an installed sink with piped water, a range or cook stove and a mechanical refrigerator all inside the structure. A housing unit with all plumbing facilities has hot and cold piped water, a flush toilet and a bathtub or shower, all inside the structure for the exclusive use of the occupants of the unit.

Angell compared the MAPS housing profile data for three rural Senate districts, 1, 2 and 7; three metropolitan suburban districts, 18, 20 and 21; and four metropolitan core districts, 29, 30, 34 and 35.

The highest percentages for housing units lacking kitchen and plumbing facilities were in the three rural districts. In Senate district 2, in the north central part of the state, one-sixth of the housing units lacked complete kitchens and more than one-fifth lacked some or all plumbing facilities. In Senate District 7, in the west central area, one-tenth lacked complete kitchens and one-sixth lacked some or all plumbing facilities.

The percentages were considerably lower for the suburban and core districts, except in Senate District 30, which includes north Minneapolis, where 7.3 per cent of the units lack complete kitchens and 11.6 per cent lacked some or all plumbing facilities.

Overcrowding in housing units is indicated where a room used for living purposes is occupied by more than one person, Angell said. In Minnesota in 1970, the proportion of units with more than one person to a room was 7.6 per cent as compared to 8.2 per cent for the national average. For the nation, there was a 15 per cent decrease from 1960 to 1970 in the percentage of units having more than one person to a room, while in Minnesota the decrease was 17.5 per cent for that decade.

Highest percentages in 1970 for housing units having more than one person to a room were 13.7 for Senate district 21, a suburban area including Anoka county; 13.1 for rural Senate district 8, which includes Stearns county; and 12.4 for rural Senate district 2.

Angell said the high percentage of population in Senate district 21 in the child rearing rather than the child bearing age group may account for the relatively high percentage of units with more than one person to a room in that suburban district.

The ratio of vacant owner-occupied homes for sale is very low for Minnesota as compared to the national average, he added. In 1970, it was 1.2 per cent for the nation and eight-tenths of a per cent for the state. There may have been some change since 1970, but Angell said proportionally Minnesota remains below the national average.

The percentage of multiple

Co. Heart Fund At 30 Per Cent Of $1,568 Goal

$497,000 or 58 per cent of the state goal of $860,000 has been reached in the Minnesota heart fund campaign, according to Lynn Nord, state heart fund chairman. He added that returns of the campaign to date in Pennington county total $464, which represents 29.5 per cent of the county's goal of $1,568.

Nord continued, "Weather conditions in some areas during the latter part of February were poor. Consequently, I urge all those chairmen hampered by the weather to complete their assignments as soon as possible."

Nord pointed out that since 1948, Minnesota Heart has contributed over $3,000,000 for research projects in the state as well as conducting professional education, public education and community service projects. During the 1971-72 year, MHA allocated $175,000 for research in Minnesota. Nord added that the Minnesota heart board of directors has approved an increase of approximately 10 per cent for heart research for 1972-73. He stated, "If this increase is to be met, it is essential that all community drives be completed."

Heart disease is the nation's number one health enemy accounting for more deaths each year than all other causes combined, including cancer.

RIC Board Gives Assurances For Special Services

Affirmation of efforts to continue providing comprehensive services to handicapped children in northwestern Minnesota was given at a meeting of the Thief River Falls Regional Inter-District council (RIC) for special education Tuesday in Thief River Falls.

Eric Allen, executive secretary for the council and director of special education, said that area concern for the program had been expressed following a decision by the Thief River Falls board of education on March 13 to no longer serve as host school.

It was noted at the meeting, Allen said, that at no time was the action intended to jeopardize the program. The decision was made, he said, due to fiscal problems in school funding under new tax laws enacted at the last session—of the Minnesota legislature.

Superintendents of the 17 school districts involved in the RIC program in attendance Tuesday voted unanimously to continue cooperating in providing services to children in need of assistance.

The group is now working on an agreement to rearrange the funding pattern of the RIC cooperative so that it can continue its present high level of service without affecting local programs within the individual school districts, Allen said.

County Board Lets Contracts For Work

CLOTHING and ammunition found in the area where two men eluded patrolman Duane Holland, led police to a local young man who admitted his involvement in the attempted robbery at Valley 24 dairy store. The trousers on the left bear a laundry mark which provided the key information. The ammunition consists of 20 guage shotgun shells, .22 caliber cartridges and a .25 caliber pistol cartridge.

Pennington county commissioners awarded contracts for road work and other items at the regular meeting held Tuesday. Discussion was also held but no action taken on possibility of contracting with the village of Goodridge for law enforcement through the county sheriff's office.

DuWayne Thygeson of Middle River was the successful low bidder on two of the larger projects awarded by the board There were nine bidders on each project.

Thygeson had a low bid of $91,913.98 for grading and graveling of CAR 17 from SAR 3 south to the Red Lake county line, a distance of about four miles. The road is the extension of the airport road and is located a short distance west of the south end of the airport road. High bid among the nine bidders was $102,929.40.

A bid of $48,175.20 was low and accepted from Thygeson for grading and graveling of SAR 23 in Cloverleaf and Kratka townships. The project involves about four miles of road south from highway 1 to near the Red Lake river. High bid on that project was for $56,392.20.

A county-wide graveling contract, involving a number of projects in the county, was awarded to William Scepaniak of Holdingford with a bid of $52,600. High bid among five bidders was for $59,800.

Charles Hedeen of Thief River Falls was low among three bidders for the furnishing and installation of a large concrete culvert where county road 55 crosses a ditch in section five of River Falls township. The low bid was $8,888.74 with the high bid being $10,273.34.

Wheeler Lumber and supply company of Cass Lake was accepted by the board as supplier of bridge materials for the highway department during the current construction season.

Standard Oil company had the low total bid on petroleum products with an estimated volume producing a total contract of about $9,130. Bid prices were 15 cents per gallon for number one fuel oil and number two diesel fuel and 15.4 cents for gasoline.

Quotations obtained by Joseph Seidel, county highway engineer, for the widening of six bridges were accepted by the board. Commissioners also voted to call for bids to be opened May 9 at 11 a.m. for a new panel truck, tractor with mower and a new weed sprayer.

Blacktop surfacing was approved for approximately three and three-fourths miles of road in and around Thief River Falls. This includes Dewey avenue north, the county road running east from near the Seventh-day Adventist church to highway 59, and a portion of 13th street.

Sheriff Charles Richards and members of the Goodridge village council appeared before the board, noting that the present law enforcement officer for the village will be leaving that position soon. The board asked for a definite proposal for contract services to be considered at a later meeting.

Approved by the board was a cost share of $7,050.56 for 1971 probation and parole office costs in Pennington county. The county's share of $14,635 in the Northwestern mental health center was also approved as the center's budget figure.

A nine-man county planning agency was formed to consist of the five county commissioners, county auditor C. W. Rodekuhr, county treasurer Ellsworth Jorgenson, county engineer Joe Seidel and county agent Terry Courneya.

It was also noted that a solid waste disposal plan had been submitted to the Minnesota pollution control agency and that a meeting will be held at 3 p.m. on May 9 at which time county residents may be heard in regard to that subject. A final solid waste disposal plan must be submitted to the state in July.

Charge Two In Robbery Attempt

Police have identified two young local men who escaped after the attempted robbery at Valley 24 dairy store shortly after midnight Saturday.

Being charged today with attempted armed robbery are Dennis Garfield Benson, 21, and Thomas Bruce Hall, 20, both of Thief River Falls. Charges on unauthorized use of a motor vehicle—the stolen pickup truck used in the aborted robbery attempt—are still pending, according to police officials.

Eddie Lemky is still in police custody and has appeared in Pennington county court where he pleaded guilty to a charge of careless driving in connection with the high speed pursuit in the stolen pickup. He was fined $75.

A local citizen found some items of clothing and ammunition under a vehicle near the area where two fugitives eluded patrolman Duane Holland after he pursued them from the Valley 24 store and apprehended Lemky. The items were turned over to police who found a laundry mark in one of the garments. The mark was traced to a suspect.

With help from the suspect's concerned father, the young man admitted his connection with the case and implicated another young man who also admitted his part in the incident.

One of the young men produced a .22 caliber rifle which he turned over to Elton Cummings, police investigator, as a weapon involved in the attempted robbery. Another weapon is also believed to be involved.

AFTER ADMITTING his part in the attempted robbery at Valley 24 dairy store, one of the suspects turned this rifle over to Elton Cummings, police investigator.

American Legion Aux. Has Many Subjects at Meet

David Strong, community information co-ordinator for the Day-Night unit of Northwestern hospital, was guest speaker at the April meeting of the American Legion auxiliary recently and explained some of his contacts with youth of the community and particularly the Hotline program.

He stated that a cross section of youths from the community had been selected to present views and ideas as to the foremost programs desired by them.

Strong said that the Hotline was working out very well with the youth and has been very satisfying in that they have taken over control in setting up the project and manning it almost on their own. The young people at the telephone have been well trained in listening to those who call in with problems, but do not give advice except to encourage the caller to seek professional help if necessary.

All the calls are confidential and names are not given by either the caller or the receiver. He stated that many of the calls are just to have someone to talk to about their problems. Strong urged the cooperation of the community in backing of this program.

He also urged parents to be concerned about the item a child may have in his possession which may seem harmless but could still be a dangerous weapon.

Tom Leblanc was introduced by Mrs. L. W. Larson, children and youth chairman. He is a senior at Lincoln high school and he expressed his thanks to the auxiliary for the assistance given him to help overcome the drug habit which he had been developing since the age of 13. He stated that he plans to attend a ministerial college this fall and try to assist others in overcoming the drug habit.

Mrs. Larson reported that a family had the misfortune of losing its home by fire and it was voted that the auxiliary send $100 to the needy family.

Mrs. Robert Brooten, junior chairman, reported on the district and state junior convention to be held in Warren on April 15 and at Waite park on April 29. Thd group will be going to Warren and it was voted to send two girls to the state convention at Waite park.

Area Housing Said Inadequate

family dwelling units in 1970 in Minnesota was highest in Senate district 30—79.8—a metropolitan core area. It was second highest in another core area, Senate District 34—64.1 per cent—in the western part of St. Paul. The lowest percentages in this category were in the three rural districts, averaging 10 per cent.

The data on multiple family units indicates that there are considerably more renters in the core area than in the rural and suburban areas, the university housing specialist said.

On April 9 two juvenile boys were apprehended in a local store. The 17-year-old admitted stealing some merchandise. The other boy was not implicated.

JoAnn Emerson reported that two windows, a jar and a light bulb were broken in her home during the afternoon of April 10. She stated that the damage would cost more than $20 to fix.

About 6:20 a.m. on April 10 Gordon Phelps of Goodridge was driving west on Eighth street and collided with a pickup driven by John Brennan of Thief River Falls. Their vehicles received $365 and $175 in damages respectively.

Also on April 10, Amundgaard Implement reported that someone had used rocks to break two double windows. They will cost about $500 to replace.

Due to an error in the list of students announced as named to the president's list at Northland state junior college for the past quarter, the name of Huan Quo Pham of Saigon, South Vietnam, was omitted from the list. Several other Vietnamese students at Northland were also named to the list, and one of those names was reported twice in place of Huan's listing. The Times regrets the error.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of Benjamin Jack Rindahl, Aug. 22, 1965-April 14, 1971.

There was a little boy by the name of Ben. Jesus called one day and said come to my den. So he was taken from us at the age of five. Even thou we all wished he could be alive. The Pastor said on that final day. That Jesus had a reason for taking him away. He needed a gem to put in Mother's crown, To beautify her headpiece, so plain and round. So many ask why, But there's never a reply. Only God knows the answer to something like this. We only know, there's a little boy we sadly miss. Northmen Win Triangular Track Meet at Crookston

You might say that Northland had a field day in the Crookston fieldhouse yesterday, as the Northmen romped to an easy triangular junior college track meet victory over Crookston Tech and Fergus Falls in the Crookston Winter Sports building.

The win was a milestone for Northland, marking the first time the Northmen have finished atop a track meet of any kind. Northland posted its season-opening win in a relatively easy manner as the Northmen rolled up 77 points to Crookston's 51, while Fergus Falls finished with 27.

The Northland thinclads set seven new school records in yesterday's meet as the Northmen managed to score a point in every event.

Sophomore Tim Olson (TRF) led the Northland squad as he collected three record-breaking first place finishes and ran the lead on Northland's record-setting 1520 relay. While winning the events, Olson set new school standards in the 70-yard high hurdles (9.1), 70-yard low hurdles (8.6) and the triple jump (36'4''). All three records were set by Olson himself last season.

Freshmen turned in the other two individual record performances last night, as Mike Rasch (Hoffman) tossed the 16-pound shot put 44'5'', which broke the school record of 38'10½'' set last year by Tony Burke. Rasch's throw also bettered the fieldhouse record of 41'6'' set by John Kroll of Mesabi in 1968.

Les Swanson (Warren) set a new Northland mark in the long jump with a 19'7'' performance, breaking Ray Walter's 19'5'' standard set in 1968.

Northland cindermen ran in the sprint medley and 1520 relays for the first time, so their times of 3:53.2 in the sprint and 3:32.6 in the 1520 were record-setting performances.

"I'm very happy with our performances in our first meet of the year," said Northland coach Chet Engelman. "It feels good to get that first win, and I think we'll be able to show well in a couple of meets this year."

Northland's next competition will be Thursday, April 20, at Crookston again, against Mesabi, Fergus Falls and Crookston Tech.

Tony Burke Ranks Among National Rebound Leaders

Northland state junior college sophomore Tony Burke ranked eighth nationally in the final National junior college basketball rebounding charts, it was announced this week.

Burke, a 6-6 center from Bemidji, pulled down 413 rebounds in 25 games, an average of 16.5 caroms per game. Ed Parker of Newcaster business college of Newcastle, Pennsylvania, led the nation's two-year schools with an astromical 25.5 rebounds per game over a 21-game season.

Jerry Schwantz of Fergus Falls was the only other MJCAA player ranking among the nation's junior college individual statistical leaders, as the sophomore forward ranked 15th in the national scoring parade with a 27.5 average. Jaye Beye of Ingelwood Cliffs college in Ingelwood, New Jersey, led the nation's junior college scorers with a 38.1 average.

Three Minnesota teams ranked among the nation's team leaders during the 1971-72 season. Lakewood of White Bear Lake ranked fifth defensively, giving up an average of 63.9 points per game. Robert Morris JC of Pittsburgh led the nation with a stingy 60.7 defensive average in 27 games.

Inver Hills junior college of Inver Grove Heights ranked fifth in field goal percentage during the year, connecting on 52.3 per cent from the floor. Morrow community college of Rochester New York led the nation with a 56.4 mark from the field.

Crookston Tech ranked eighth nationally in free throw shooting with an accurate 71.8 mark from the gift line during the campaign. Marrow Institute of Marion Alabama, led the nation with a 75.0 shooting percentage from the free throw line.

Prowler Baseball Team Opens Season April 22

Veteran head coach Ralph Skay began his 19th year as Lincoln high school baseball coach April 4 when he welcomed 30 candidates to the Prowlers' first practice inside the city arena.

That original number has since been trimmed to 25, which includes a nucleus of ten returning lettermen from last year's 12-7 squad.

Skay doesn't know quite what to expect from his young squad this season, a team which includes just three seniors. The Prowlers lost four starters due to graduation last year, but the club returns three of last year's four top hitters, including second baseman-outfielder Tom Hanson who led last year's squad with a .475 batting average.

Other letter winners returning with their 1971 batting average in parenthesis include seniors Mike Hamilton (.250), Tom Wurst (.375) and Rick Johnson (.130), along with juniors Rob Almquist (.370), Gary Burstad (.000), Jon Jensen (.333), Kim Johnson (.250) and Pete Sullivan (.258).

"We're about in the same position we were last year," said Skay, "we have five starters returning, but they might not be in the same positions as last year. We have only three seniors on the team, so we are young. I think we have potential, but whether the kids develop or not is the big question. I feel we'll have a representative ball club and we should be in there with Crookston and Red Lake Falls for that district title." In 18 seasons as Prowler head coach, Skay has won 13 district 31 baseball titles while posting an 18-season record of 250-86.

Skay is currently working with 11 pitching candidates, including lettermen Hamilton, Sullivan, Almquist and Johnson. Other possible hurlers include juniors Mike Drury and Bruce Engel, sophomores Randy Dallmann, Cliff Shumway, Joe Folger and Jeff Langlie and freshman Jeff Tunberg.

Catching possibilities include lettermen Peterson, Jensen and Burstad, along with sophomores Greg Sorenson and Mike Goulet and freshman Murray Melander.

Five other sophomores listed on the Prowler roster include Jon Peterson, Duane Dicken, Ed Sabol, Kjell Melvie and Scott Reed.

Working with Skay this season will be assistant coaches Charlie Cornell and Gary Turnberg.

The Prowlers will open the season April at Red Lake Falls before seeing their first home action April 25 against Fertile.

Prowler Runners In Dragon Meet

Following a successful start to their 1972 season Saturday at the Shanley Invitational meet, Jim Sims' Lincoln high school track squad faces two more stiff workouts this week when the Prowlers compete in the power-laden Dragon Indoor today (Wednesday) and the huge Sioux Indoor Saturday.

Almost 350 athletes are expected today for the seventh annual running of the Dragon high school Indoor meet at Alex Nemzek Hall on the Moorhead state college campus.

Meet manager Ron Masanz, MSC head track coach, expects between 30 and 35 teams to enter the Dragon meet which was scheduled to begin at 4:30 with the running events set for a 5:30 start.

Early entries point to another large field for the 19th annual Sioux high school Indoor meet Saturday in the University of North Dakota fieldhouse in Grand Forks.

The large meet is expected to draw top competition from Minnesota and North Dakota and will start at 9 a.m.

Each participating school will be permitted to enter just one competitor in each running and field events for both meets, although a runner can compete in an individual event and a relay event as well.

State power Moorhead will try to add to its Shanley title in both the Dragon and Sioux meets where the Spuds are defending champions in each Invitational.

Prowler head coach Jim Sims announced his line-up for both meets, but the entries are subject to change. The probable line-up for today's Dragon Indoor will find junior Markoe Hanson in the 60-yard dash, senior Greg Bulger in the mile, junior John Wangberg in the 60-yard high hurdles, senior team captain Mike Fitzgerald in the 440-yard dash, senior Doug Aaseby in the 60-yard low hurdles, senior Paul Battleson in the 880-yard run, junior Mark Kaushagen in the pole vault, senior Rande Smith in the shot put, junior Kent Smith in the high jump and a sprint medley relay team consisting of seniors Rob Swenson and Steve Reich, along with juniors Markoe Hanson and Jon Markstrom.

The probable line-up for the Sioux Indoor Saturday will find Hanson running in the 60-yard dash, Aaseby in the high hurdles, Wangberg in the lows, Fitzgerald in the 440, Battleson in the 880, Bulger in the mile, either Kaushagen or junior Gary Halvorson in the pole vault, either juniors Kent Smith of Jeff Rhoden or senior Dave Lee in the high jump, either Rande Smith, Lee or Russ Larson in the shot and Rande Smith in the long jump.

The meet records for the Dragon Indoor are as follows: 60-yard dash, 6.3 by Rich Guff of Grandin in 1970; 440-yard dash, 53.0 by Greg Weber of Moorhead in 1969; 880-yard run, 2:00.3 by Dan Holoien of Fargo North in 1968; mile, 4:33.2 by Leon Conitz of Bismarck in 1969; 60-yard high hurdles, 7.3 by Jerry Johnson of Moorhead in 1971; 60-yard low hurdles, 7.1 by Greg Lokken of Moorhead in 1967 and by Steve Holum of Moorhead in 1970; shot put, 55-8½ by Dale Robley of Pelican Rapids in 1969; long jump, 22-9½ by Laurie Anderson of Moorhead in 1969; high jump, 6-3 by Don Rood of Grand Forks Red River in 1970; pole vault, 13-3½ by Rick Hofstrand of Fargo South in 1968; mile relay, 3:40.9 by East Grand Forks in 1969; and sprint medley, 1:03.8 by Moorhead in 1970.

The meet record for the Sioux Indoor are as follows: pole vault, 13-1½ by Rick Hofstrand of Fargo South in 1968; high jump, 6-4½ by Tom Stuart of Breckenridge in 1964; long jump, 21-8½ by Mickey Anderson of Fargo North in 1969; shot put, 52-11½ by Wayne Welter of Grafton in 1964; mile relay, 3:33.4 by Fargo North in 1969; mile, 4:35.9 by Harvey Jore of Cando in 1971; 60-yard dash, 6.2 by Randy Lekander of Moorhead in 1969; 440, 52.4 by Greg Weber of Moorhead in 1970; 60-yard highs, 7.4 by Jerrx Johnson of Moorhead in 1971; 60-yard lows, 6.9 by Randy Huether of Lisbon in 1969; and the 880, 2:03.3 by Dan Smith of Moorhead in 1971.

NHL Shooting At Wennberg Goals

There are still six teams shooting for a spot in the National Hockey League Stanley Cup finals, with just about every one of them shooting into a Dale Wennberg-made goal.

Wennberg owns and operates his own welding shop in Thief River Falls, a shop which produces the goal sets used in all but four of the National Hockey League rinks in the United States and Canada.

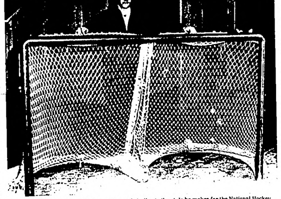
Only Montreal, among the current Stanley Cup teams, doesn't utilize a Wennberg-made goal in its ring. The others, Boston, Minnesota, St. Louis, New York and Chicago have the Thief River Falls-produced goals in their home arenas. The only other NHL teams which do not use the local goals are Toronto, Detroit and Vancouver.

Wennberg began making the new "Art Ross" style goals about five years ago when he received a call from Nester Johnson, a large sporting goods dealer in the Chicago area. Johnson received Wennberg's name as a possible producer for the then-new style goals, which omitted a metal center pipe and added a top pipe, from Billy and Roger Christian.

After a month of hard work perfecting the design, Wennberg produced two sets of goals that first year. The first set was used in the Chicago stadium by the Blackhawks while the second pair went to St. Petersburg, Fla. The output was upped to 10 the second year and has now risen to 30 sets per year, used throughout the United States and Canada.

Orris Stengrim, an employee of Wennberg, does the majority of the work on the goals. Including the cutting, punching, welding and painting, it takes about 18 to 20 hours to produce a set of goals which retail anywhere from $500 to $600. Johnson, along with Jerry Cosby of New York, are the major customers for the goals.

Wennberg is a 1960 graduate of Lincoln high school where he earned All-Tournament honors on the 1959 Prowler state hockey tournament squad. Wennberg set a school scoring record during his junior year when he scored 37 goals and 33 assists for 70 points a mark that still stands. He was football and hockey co-captain in his senior year.



DALE WENNBERG is shown here with a goal similar to the style he makes for the National Hockey league. Wennberg manufactures about 30 sets of goals per year for use throughout the United States and Canada. This particular goal was donated to Thief River Falls by Wennberg.

Fosston Jaycees Plan Marathon Softball Game

Members of the Fosston Jaycees have initiated a slow-pitch softball marathon which is reaching county-wide proportions.

The Jaycees have dedicated themselves to raising a sum of money large enough to save the Fosston golf course from financial debt. The help - save - our - golf - course marathon is dependent on pledges from the public to raise money.

The continuous 24-hour softball game, scheduled for May 27 and 28, will be held at the Fosston athletic field. Teams challenging Fosston in the event include Bemidji Highway Host, Goodridge, McIntosh, Rice Lake, Fosston Agriculture class, Lengby, Fosston college boys, Fosston junior Legion, Bagley, Oklee, Trail, Solway, Shevlin, Bemidji Jaycees and the Fosston old timers.

Fosston's team of 17 men is restricted to the playing field at all times, except in the case of emergency. Tmey will play continuously until the 16 games are completed.

Pledges to date have reached a total of $250, but more is needed to save the sports complex. To pledge, contributors promise to donate an amount of money, like 50 cents or a dollar, for each game that Fosston wins during the 24-hours of softball.

Donations of any size can be sent to: Fosston Jaycees, box 187, Fosston, Minn. 56542.

UND Cage Camp Openings Remain

Enrollment for the third annual University of North Dakota basketball school for junior and senior high school student-athletes "has been going very well," according to head basketball coach Dave Gunther. Over 100 have enrolled.

"We have openings in all three sessions of our school. Early response has been good and we are getting registrations daily from all over the midwest," Gunther added.

The three sessions of the cage school have been scheduled June 4-10, 11-17 and 18-24. State high school athletic associations in North Dakota, Minnesota, South Dakota, Canada and other midwest states have approved the UND school.

Due to increased interest Gunther decided to open the school to junior high age youths this summer. "We accept boys who are entering seventh grade this fall through those who will be entering twelfth grade," he explained.

Total cost for a one-week session is $65, of which $35 must accompany applications and the balance must be paid at registration. Local commuting youths will pay $30.

Gunther emphasized youngsters in the school will be assigned to others of the same age and abilities. "The primary purpose of our school is to teach skills in fundamentally sound basketball and improve abilities in the finer points of the game. Students will have eight hours daily of scrimmages, drills, lectures and film study. We'll keep the boys busy and active all day and they will be housed and fed in UND facilities," Gunther said.

Helping Gunther with the school will be UND assistant coach Dennis Geinger and other college and high school coaches to be named later.
